Our Visit to a Quartz Mine.

We had been asked several times to visit the S. mine, to decend into the mysterious depths and examine the various places in which the miner plies his energies in getting out the coveted ore. We accepted the invitation at last, and by appointment met our guide at the mouth of an enormous opening in the ground. He called it a shaft. We would call it a large tube without a top or bottom; at least we saw no bottom, and we went down 70 or 80 miles—(we think this was the distance, but we are not sure, as we did not ask the guide, for we did not wish to betray our ignorance.)

Well, before decending, the guide said it would be necessary to change our clothes. We did not have on our Sunday garments but considered our present costume good enough for a trip like this. But as the guide insisted on a a change, we finally consented and found that he considered our every day clothes even too good, for he gave us a jumper and a pair of overalls, made of sheet iron, we think, for they felt stiff and ucomfortable. He held up the junper and we backed into it. We then stood the trowzers on end on the floor, got up on a candle box and slid into them. The guide then fastened the openings from the outside, and gave us a sheet iron helmet to protect our heads from the timbers, etc. Thus equipped we made our way to the mouth of the shaft, where we found an iron bucket suspended by something about the size of, and in fact we believe it was, a bailing rope.

We had not made preparations for sudden death, so we surveyed the slender that was to suspend us over the yawning abyss, with some apprehension of a possible accident. Not that we were afraid of death—but that if the rope gave 'way, we might not stop 'till we came out in China, or same other foreign country, where our language would be unknown, and—well we feared the consequences. But we kept our own counsel, that the guide should not know that we were timid.

We stepped into the bucket, and at a given signal the machinery was set in motion and the shaft shot upward at the rate of 17 miles per minute. After the shaft had been decending some time the guide, by some preconcerted signal, had it stopped just as we were opposite a hole in the wall—which hole the guide termed a tunnel. We managed to transfer ourselves to the tunnel after a very tedious process of hauling, pulling and sliding—for the tricky guide had purposely landed us at a very slippery place. The guide then handed us a lighted candle, each one having a great "gob" of mud attached (more trickery, but we pretended not to notice it.) He then started off and we followed, or attempted to, rather, for somehow our candles wouldn't work at all, the flame turned and singed our hand, and we dropped the candle and—and it went out. We hallooed to the guide, who returned, hunted up our candle, relighted it and showed us how to hold it, to protect it from the draught. (Still more trickery, for as soon as we started; the hot greese trickled merrily between our fingers.) The guide showed us the foot wall and the hanging wall. We ventured to ask what the latter wall was hung for, but he did not answer—he merely looked at us; perhaps he did not understand our question; we hope he didn't. We finally reached the place where some men were at work; they were using a complicated machine called a Burly-drill.

The guide explained its action to us but we have forgotten his exact words. It was something like this: The alternating rectilinear movement was caused by the extreme pressure of air which was conducted to the machine by means of a flexible pipe, from somewhere in immediate vicinity of the mouth of the shaft. This air acting on the thingum-bob caused the crinkum crankum to communicate the motion to the what-you-may-call-it, and thus performed the work as required.

This is more lucid than his discription, yet does not seem so very clear after all. We examined all the different places in the mine, such as winzes, rises, crosscuts, foul air, etc. etc., and the guide explained everything to us. So if anyone wants to know anything about mining, appeal to us, for the guide told us the whole scheme.—Clay Hampton, in Tuolumne Independent.

Life in the Polar Regions.

It is impossible to form an idea of a tempest in the Polar seas. The icebergs are like floating rocks whirled along a rapid current. The huge crystal mountains dash against each other, backward and forward, bursting with a roar like thunder, and returning to the charge until, losing their equilibrium, they tumbl over each other in a cloud of spray, upheaving the ice-fields, which fall forward like the crack of a whip-lash on the boiling sea. The sea-gulls fly away screaming, and often a huge shining whale comes puffing to the surface. When the midnight sun grazes the horizon, the flaming mountains and the rocks seem bathed in a beautiful hue. The cold is not so insupportable as is supposed. We passed from a heated cabin at 30 deg. above zero to 47 deg. below zero without any inconvenience. A much higher degree of cold, however, becomes insuffervble if there is any wind. At fifteen degrees below zero a steam, as if from a boiling kettle, rises from the water. At once frozen by the wind it falls into a fine powder. This phenomenon is called sea-smoke. At forty degrees the snow and human bodies also smoke, which at once changes into millions of tiny particles, like millions of needles and fill the air and make a light continuous noise, like the rustle of a stiff silk. At this temperature the trunks of trees burst with a loud report, the rocks break up, and the earth opens vomiting smoking water Knives break in cutting butter. Cigars go out by contract with the ice on the beard. To talk is fatiguing, At night the eyelids are covered with a crust of ice which must be carefully removed before one can open them.

There was a dispute among three ladies as to which had the most beautiful hand. One sat by a stream and dipped her hand into the water and held it up; another plucked strawberries until the ends of her fingers were pink, and another gathered violets until her hands were fragrant. An old, haggard woman, passing by asked: "Who will give me a gift, for I am poor?" All three denied her. But another who sat near, unwashed in the stream, unstained with fruit, unadorned with flowers, gave her a little gift and satisfied the poor woman. And then she asked them what was the dispute; and they told her, and lifted up their beautiful hands. "Beautiful, indeed," she said when she saw them. But when they asked her which was the most beautiful, she said: "It is not the hand that is washed clean in the brook; it is not the hand that is dipped in red; it is not the hand that is garlanded with fragrant flowers, but the hand that gives to the poor, that is the most beautiful." As she said these words, her wrinkles fled, her staff was thrown away, and she stood before them an angel from heaven, with authority to decide this question in dispute. And that decision has stood the test of all time.

A Familiar Street Scene.

A teamster with a load of wood went up the avenue, and blithely did he crack his whip o'er the horses staunch and true. They turned into an alleyway with his heavy wooden load when the wheel did sink into the hub in that muddy alley road. "Git up!" the teamster shouted loud; "Go it while you're young," and the steady brutes did churn the mud, each side the wagon tongue. "She hove and sot," the wagon did, as once a poet sung; "and every time she hove and sot a wusser leak she sprung." So fared it with this load of wood as near as one could judge, the more the horses clove the mud the more it wouldn't budge. And then began the crowd to come, (always) the small boy, and teamsters stopped on Jefferson the struggle to enjoy, and youngsters all along the walk the wooden man to annoy. A butcher cart, a passing cab, a wagon full of stoves, a buggy and a grocery rig, with soap, and flour and cloves. There stopped a man on business bent; a doctor in his gig; the avenue was soon filled up with every kind of rig. As Oliver Wendell Holmes once said, if a martyr one would burn, some man from out the crowd would know how to roast him to a turn, probably from a restaurant, posted on well-done steaks. That man is sure to be on hand and all directions takes. "Why don't you whip your horses up? Why don't you haw or gee? Come, wake up, ancient stick-in-the-mud, or leave the thing to me." The teamster whipped his horses up; the teamster geed and hawed. But the load of wood was there for good, and there it stood, saying it would (not) "Come in the garden, Maude." The gathering crowd never offered to help, but gave advice instead, while the panting horses stood and puffed and the driver scratched his head. He would look on this side and then on that, then gather up his reins, then shout, rave, fume, swear and try it again, and all the while the crowd did jeer and scatter round advice, but the wagon wheels stayed where they were as if without a vise. "Come down from off the load of wood!" "Let's rescue 'em all in boats!" "Oh, put your shoulder to the wheel." "Say, give 'em a feed of oats!" Then some one took another team and hitched it in the rear, then both teams pulled in opposite ways while the crowd did scoff and jeer. Having gazed at port and starboard wheel, full fifty times or more, the driver then began to do what he should have done before—throw off the cordwood stick by stick, and as he worked he swore. And all the while the heartless mob fired off the ancient joke as how the wheels could silent be, when all of them had spoke; that wheels and horses both were tired, they spoke with a waggin' tongue; that the muddy team would be ad-mired, and thus the changes rung; that the wagon surely would go off, if he thought it wasn't loaded and mentioned the labor of the man as the work the old scare-crow did. At last adown the alley of mud two teams pulled the wagon along, and thus the end of the tradegy there brings with it the end of the song. As the teamster looked at the scattered cord the crowd gave him a parting sally: "See your sticks are all scattered promiscuous around—set 'em up in another alley!"

CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

The meeting of the Congressional Convention of the Sixth District, comprised of seventy-six Republican delegates, will be held in Los Angeles sometime in September. So far as is now known, there are three candidates: Conklin, Cheney and Boyd. The first named is a gentleman well qualified to fill the important position. It will be remembered that he ran ahead of his ticket in the last State election for Lieutenant-Governor between 5,000 and 6,000, beating M. M. Estee, the head of the ticket, that number of votes.

While thoroughly identified with the mining and stock raising interests of the mountain counties of the Sixth District, Mr. Conklin is interested in Los Angeles and is, therefore, conversant with the wants of the fruit and grain growers of the the lower counties as well as the legislation required by the hardy miner of altitudinous Inyo, Mono and Alpine.

Mr. Conklin is a man of great force of character, of no mean ability, and would grace the halls of Congress equally with any representative that now adorns the national building. He is a staunch Republican, fearless and able, and would represent this district as it never has been before, and bring us into that prominence which the merits of our prosperous section is worthy. Delegates, nominate Judge A. R. Conklin as our standard-bearer and he will surely carry the ticket on to victory.

CALIFORNIA AND NEVADA.

Secretary Teller sent to the Senate, last week, an answer to Miller's resolutions of the 14th of April, asking for information as to the disputed boundary line of California and Nevada. Miller's resolution stated that one mile of territory running through the counties of El Dorado, Alpine and Mono in California had been left on the Nevada side by A. W. Von Schmidt, who surveyed the ground in 1872. Secretary Teller's message consists of a communication from the Commissioner of the General Land Office, in which it is stated that the Land Office has no knowledge of the alleged error, and that there is nothing in the field notes of the United States survey to show that it exists. The azimuth line was marked previous to Von Scmidt's survey, and the correctness of this line depends on the accuracy with which the 120th degree of longitude had been established. Von Schmidt adopted the 120th degree as delineated by the United States coast survey, his own observation agreeing therewith. Professor Davidson, of the coast survey, ascertained the 120th degree of longitude by observations at Verdi and other places in 1872. The Secretary states that the cost of surveying four hundred miles of line on which the alleged error occurs would be $15,000, and the cost of surveying from the Colorado river, which is 612 miles would be $41,000. There being no money available for this purpose Congress would have to make an appropriation.

THE FOLLOWING are the names of the Delegates chosen at the Oakland convention to represent this State at the National Republican Convention to be held in Chicago: Delegates at large—W. W. Morrow, Horace Davis, and George Knight, San Francisco; Thomas R. Bard, Ventura. Alternates—Frank Pixley, San Francisco; H. F. Page, El Dorado; R. C. Gaskell, Alameda; Robert W. Simpson, San Francisco. First District—D. O. Carr and Mr. Bush, of Napa. Second District—W. H. Parks, of Yuba, and G. H. Schell, of Modesto. Third District—Wm. Johnstone, Sacramento, and Eli Dennison, Alameda. Fourth District—David McClure, C. H. Crocker, San Francisco. Fifth District—A. B. Spreckels and M. C. Blake, San Francisco. Sixth District—D. C. Reed, San Diego, and Oregon Saunders, Tulare.

GIVE the boys a chance to become fearless riders. Youth is the time to train physical habits, and when one has been accustomed to use the saddle from boyhood, equestrianism is a part of his nature, and he never feels more at home than when on horseback.

THE first line of telegraph was up less than forty years ago, and now over one million miles of lines are in opperation. The United States leads with 250,000 miles, Germany coming next with 150,000 miles.

SO FAR as heard from, the Republican delegates stand: For Blaine, 329; Arthur, 295; Edmunds, 73; Logan, 51; John Sherman, 23; Hawley, 12; doubtful, 37.

NEVADA elected six delegates for Blaine: M. D. Foley, C. C. Stevenson, J. H. Rand, John E. Dixon, S. L. Lee and A. J. Blair.

JAMES R. KEENE, the great stock operator has finally been driven to the wall by Wall street brokers.

THE White Pine News feelingly remarks as follows: "All the old bull-teams in the county are being turned into beef this Spring. The meat looks well, but it takes a terrible lot of jaw power to reduce it to swallowing fineness."

IN ALL probability the notorius extra session will adjourn to-day after having added just two laws to the statute-book, both of them appropriation bills for the payment of mileage and per diem to members.

DIED.

At Shepherd's Ranch, May 5th, 1884, Nellie W., youngest daughter of John and Margaret Shepherd; aged 3 years, 5 months and 12 days.

In Memoriam.

[To "Little Nell," late daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Shepherd.]

A change has come, ah, sad indeed,
'Tis hard, Oh God, to understand
The depth of what Thou hast decreed,
The mighty workings of Thy hand.

Poor little Nell has flown away.
'Tis strange, though sad and true.
The same impressions come to-day,
That Dickens truly did review.

Her face enraptured with a smile,
Will ne'er on earth, with childish bliss,
Be upward turned as to beguile
All trials with a parent's kiss.

A father's arm was powerless.
A mother's love—it could not save,
With all the weight of keen distress
Dear Nellie from an early grave.

A sister's or a brother's love,
Entwined by Nature's mystic hand,
Could not restrain the fleeing dove,
That sought and found the Promised Land.

Gone from this mysterious sphere.—
Ah, well, perhaps 'tis better so,
For God knows best. Poor little dear,
Is safer there than here below.

Th holy angels in heaven above,
Will touch the golden harps for thee,
With voices sweet in tones of love,—
Oh, happy will the meeting be.

God bless thee, child, thy spirit, sure,
Hath gone to Him who gave it free;
All free and like a dew-drop pure,
To Him who said, "Come unto Me."

Farewell sweet child, we leave thee now
To better care than earth e'er gave;
All Seraphim will welcome thee,
And prove a triumph o'er the grave.

C. H.

At Teel's Marsh, Esmeralda county, Nev., April 30th, 1884, Robert Reed, aged 24 years and 2 months; a native of Clifton, Canada East.

About four years ago the deceased, then brimful of health, courage and ambition, left his home, consisting of father and mother, seven brothers and seven sisters,—a grand family of sixteen, for California. He arrived in Round Valley, and for some time worked faithfully for the undersigned. Being fresh and vigorous, it was frequently remarked he was a perfect model of health, a noble specimen of the human family. Sitting and eating at the same table was a very old man, Uncle Billy Mathews, (one of Inyo's Pioneers, and in fact one of the oldest European settlers now living in California. More anon respecting him whose head was bent with the snows of nearly a hundred years—his perfectly white, long hair, wrinkled and elongated face suggested: "Ah! see the sturdy powerful young man supplant me! I'll soon drop into the grave, but my robust young friend here is destined to live the allotted time—should live a hundred years!" "Uncle Billy" still lives, while the promising young Robert lies dead! How is it that the old and decrepit survive, while the young and vigorous, in the years of their usefulness are snatched away? Of course, the "inscrutable ways of Povidence" are beyond our divination. Mr. Robert Reed was in the employ of Mr. James Shaw, Bishop Creek, for over two years. The kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Shaw endeared Robert to that spot, which he considered his California home. Last Winter he was afflicted with some ailment in his head, in consequence of which he went to San Francisco where a surgical operation was performed, resulting in his restoration. Returning from San Francisco he visited the Taylor Brothers at Teel's Marsh, his boyhood companions in Canada. The next day after his arrival at Teel's Marsh he was taken sick, and in one month died of typhoid fever. The Taylor Brothers did all in their power for him, they secured the services of the most skillful physicians in Virginia City, and also received perscriptions from San Francisco; but all of no avail. He died April 30th. The Messrs. Taylors and Mr. James Shaw brought the remains to Bishop Creek for interment. May 2d a large congregation assembled at the Bishop Creek church, when the Rev. Mr. Case delivered an eloquent sermon on the sccasion. The Reverend gentleman's remarks were full of vivid suggestiveness. The choir rendered very excellent music, Mrs. Welsh presiding at the organ. Beautiful floral presentations were made by Mrs. Sneden, Mrs. Joel, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. James Shaw. A large procession followed the remains to the grave, where many tears were shed for the late genial and affectionate Robert Reed.

CHILDREN'S PARTY. — At Bishop Creek, on last Saturday evening, there was a very enjoyable party given by Mrs. S. Drake, for the pleasure of the little folks in the town and vicinity as a farewell reunion of the families, some of whom are soon to leave permanently for other and distant localities. Among these are Wm. Gill and C. Munson. At an early hour the bright and cheerful faces of the children from six to sixteen years of age, began to congregate at the hotel, where they were met by the young masters and misses of reception, with smiling faces, and their hats and wraps laid carefully away. When some forty had arrived, and the first blush of bashfulness had worn off, a variety of candies were passed around, and then arose the music of many childish voices, with the merry laughter of childhood's happy hour, accompanied with that of the organ and music and song by older ones present. Several plays and games were next indulged in with much glee, until the arrival of the musicians, G. M. Gill and Wash Brierly, violinists, T. Gill, banjo and Mrs. A. Gill, organist, when, by some assistance from the more experienced managers, the little folks were called out into the hall, or dining-room to dance. This was a first effort and trying ordeal for some of them while others might be considered experts in the buisness. Many mistakes were made, and the blushes and flashed roses on the dimpled cheeks; but more experienced hands and voices set all right, in the balance, swing and turning fortunes, while their confidence given 'till they felt themselves master of the situation. It was amusing to see the little fellow, of six or eight years, choose his partner for a quadrill, and lead her on the floor with all the grace of a Chesterfield. Several were present, too small and young to take part in the servic s of the evening, but some amused themselves with bottles containing a white fluid that their complacent mothers gave them to play with. The entertainment was brought to a close by the passing around, by the hostess and attendants, by plates of different kinds of cakes, while several more songs were sung by a quartette. This little episode will be looked back upon in future years by the participants as a bright star adown the pathway yet untrodden, it may be in distant land and far apart, but these few happy hours of youth will never be forgotten, and linger as the fragrance of flowers through life. L. H.

OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS.—JAMES M. BROOKS, agent for John Rocks' nurseries, San Jose, Cal., arrived in town last Monday, and is soliciting orders for that reliable gentleman. Mr. Brooks comes in our midst well recommended and brings with him certificates showing our citizens that if they trade with Rocks' nurseries direct, they get what they want and exactly what they pay for. These nurseries are the largest on the Pacific Coast and are prepared to furnish, and to guarantee everything in the fruit line He is exhibiting several new varieties of fruits, such as the Le Conte and Keifer pears, Red Beitenheimer apple, Kelsey plum, White French gooseberry, etc., etc. Those wishing to purchase a first-class tree or shrub should see Mr. Brooks before he leaves here. He intends to remain only a few days. He refers to Thomas Goodale, John Clarke, J. W. Clausen and others, who have dealt with this firm, and they know that this firm does not misrepresent what is offered for sale. Any one who intends to improve our county by introducing useful and ornamental trees should be encouraged by patronage.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.—We have three men in the county bastile this week—two from Bishop Creek and one from Darwin. Fong Chong is charged with killing one Wong Hong Yet at Bishop Creek. Jesus Peres was sent from the same place for selling liquor to Indians, and Frank Silva came up from Darwin Thursday in charge of Under Sheriff Crough, to stand trial on a charge of selling the Sterling mine to the Southern Development Company, of Nevada, for $10,000 on false pretenses. Two of these cases will come before Judge Hannah and the facts elicited published in THE INDEHENDENT.

LIST OF OFFICERS.—The following persons were installed as officers on May 3d by the I. O. G. T. Lodge, No. 546: John W. P. Laird, W. C. T.; Miss Julia Cook, W. L. H. S.; Mrs. H. G. Kernodle, W. V. T.; Miss Herrmine Thomson, W. S.; Willie A. Chalfant, W. A. S.; Mrs. E. Laird, W. F. S.; H. P. Cartier, W. T.; Miss Anna Malone W. M.; Mrs. E. P. Hardy, W. I. G.; Harry Cook W. O. W.; Mrs. Carrie A. Gregg W. C.

THE SICK.—Mrs. Margaret Lewis has again been awarded the contract for caring for the county's indigent sick at a salary of $1,550 a year. Though much talk has been made regarding the matter in which the patients have been treated, the Board of Supervisors were of the opinion that Mrs. Liwis had done well by them, and as her bid was $300 lower than any one's else, gave her the contract as they should.

BUGGY TEAM BURNT.—Last Saturday night, between Hamil and Benton stations, on the C. & C the buggy team belonging to the railroad company was burnt up. It is thought that a spark from the engine ignited a bundle of hay in the car carrying the team. They were a splendid pair of animals, and formerly belonged to Barney Peeler, of Bishop Creek.

LONE PINE SALOON.—Chas. Levy announces in this issue that he has a large, and choice lot of liquors and cigars at his saloon in Lone Pine, and invites his friends to call and sample them.

APRICOTS.—We noticed some apricots near the back door of this office as large as quail's eggs and the tree was loaded. May they ripen soon!

Death's Work,

One of those sad and impessive scenes of bitter grief, was witnessed by a large concourse of persons at the Camp Independence cemetery, on Tuesday last. A bright little girl, Nellie Shepherd, must go out into the Great Beyond at the call of Him the Supreme Master. At the grave the plaintive musical composition, "Two Little Hands," was beautifully sung by Miss Northrup Mrs. H. G. Kernodle and Mr. G. H. Hardy. Then Judge A. R. Conklin in a clear and sympathetic voice spoke as follows;

For a second time within the brief period of three months, has Death stalked athwart the threshold of this family, and with unrelenting hand plucked from the circle another loved one. First the sturdy oak, ripe with age and full of years, and now the tender flower, whose petals have been fanned with the zephyrs of three springs, has fallen, and Nellie is dead! Died, as the roses and flowers were budding and blooming; died as all nature seemed springing into newness of life; died, when she should have lived; died, just as the young tendrils of her love had twined themselves around the hearts of affectionate parents and doting sisters and brothers. But though dead to you, she, like the tender shrub, has escaped from the winter of life, but to bloom forth in that new life where only innocence and purity are: a little flower in the wreath of immortality. Her childish prattle will no more gladden the heart or winsome ways make merry; no more will the pattering of her little feet awake the echoes of home or her coming cheer. The voice is stilled, the merry laugh is hushed. It is death! 'Tis difficult to feel that she is dead! Her presence like the shadow of a wing just lessening in the upper sky, lingers upon us and the eye looks for her wonted coming with a strange forgetful earnestness. But those whom the Gods love die young. There is one more note added to the heavenly choir and the angelic voice of little Nellie is attuned to the harmony of the celestial music trilled hard by the throne of Him Who declared: Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.

At the conclusion of these remarks, an appropriate hymn was sung, after which Mr. Conklin read the beautiful Episcopal burial service. And all returned to their homes with saddened hearts.

Railroad Items.

The Maxim mill, below Independence Station, is to start up in earnest, as machinery is arriving quite rapidly. Success be to it; not alone on account of the benefit of the country, but more especially to the efforts of its owners. ... It is reported amongst the railroad boys on the Salt Lake Division of the C. & C. that the gentlemanly agent at Independence is about to resign his office as President of the Bachelorhood, and take unto himself a helpmeet. Who the young lady is we are unable to state, or will not until the happy event transpires. Then it is to be hoped that he will remember his friends in distress. ....Since the change of time on the railroad whereby the trainmen lay at Keeler all day, they have missed the society of the fair sex, in fact so far that the improvement of one lately will most likely bring and add one to the number there now.....P. J. Field, at one time the agent at the Lone Pine Station, paid Keeler a visit on last Sunday. They say that,—well, something must have called him there, as he had a long distance to travel for one day's visit.... It is generally conceded that Johnny Murphy, one of Wells, Fargo & Co.'s Messengers, is the handsomest young man on the road....We have heard that the chicken ranch at Keeler is flourishing, and expect when we pay the town a visit that we will have Spring chicken for breakfast. How is it John?

TRAVELER.

PERSONALS.—Web. H. Walker, of Lone Pine, was in town Wednesday night....H. M. Yerington and R. H. Clark, both of Carson, were at the county's capital Wednesday....Nathan Rhine, of the firm of Harris & Rhine, left for San Francisco Thursday, to be gone a couple of weeks....Dana Brown, Wells, Fargo & Co.'s messenger on the C. & C. railroad, and George Campbell, Postal Clerk on the same road, paid our village a visit Thursday. They made it lively for the boys while here.... George L. Drake, Bishop Creek's lively Codstable, was here yesterday for a second time this week, on official business .... Miss Maggie Schalten and Duncan Campbell, of Big Pine, were visitors in Independence Wednesday ....James E. Parker and S. S. Barrie have gone to Chrysopolis to see the new developments made in the mines of that district....John Anton and Chas. H. Groves paid this office a visit this week. They report Lone Pine rather dull....Chas. Levy was up from Lone Pine this week... Little Mark Levy is still suffering from a severe attack of whooping-cough....Ezra and Thomas Goodale were in from Fish Springs the first of the week....Charles Mates and wife, accompanied by Miss Mary Meysen, came up from Lone Pine yesterday in a private conveyance. Charley Levy propelled the team. The ladies, accompanied by Miss Minnie Harris, paid THE INDEPENDENT a very pleasant visit yesterday....My. Harmon, of Darwin, was in town yesterday....Sam Thomas and Steve Tyrrell were circulating on our streets to-day....A. W. Eibeschutz left this morning for Big Pine, on business.

CONTRACT AWARDED.—The contract for boarding the county prisoners was awarded to H. Levy, who agrees to feed them for 85 cents a day.

REMEMBERED.—The wheel of life revolves, and with its annual return brings an acknowledgment of the day on which our life began. Our senior was welcomed in the sanctum by tokens, accompanied with the compliments of friends, and earnest hopes "for many returns of the day."

MORE ABOUT THE POST PROPERTY.

ED. INDEPENDENT:—Will you allow me to occupy a small space in your valuable paper to show "facts," and who is telling a falsehood, Herrmine or her assailants. It is a fact that she forgot to state that she had a grandmother, and it may be there is an uncle sticking somewhere she forgot, that may need support. Can there be a better proof to what we say in the remonstrance to be the facts. Then, Herrmine Thomson's own statement in THE INYO INDEPENDENT at different times:—In the first place, she admits that she helped to support "several younger brothers and sisters," when Senator Miller, in his statement, says "she had." Again she goes on when it began to look blue, and owns up that they are still drawing a pension, but only one. Did we say how many? I guess not. We say just the same as she does, thereby proving that all the others are fully able to care for themselves, to look for their own support, and at the same time wipes out the "several" part. The only one that is left soon will be a young lady of sixteen. She goes on; states that her brother is working in an engine shop, to which he is apprenticed for one year, and receives no salary; but does not state that he left the sugar refinery when he went to the engine shop, and what salary he received there; but she wants to make out that it is the signers of the remonstrance who are is telling a falsehood, and her honor and truthfulness assailed in every possible manner. Still she has done away with her younger brother part, unless she goes into C. A. Walter's family to help support his only son, (a half-brother to Herrmine), if so what becomes of Mr. Walter's earnings, our best fixed farmer around Camp Independence. I do not believe that the gentleman would allow anyone to say so; it would be wrong, and an outrage on the man. It is the other way with us; our petition states that Mr. C. A. Walter is a good, honest and well-to-do farmer, well fixed, etc., and furthermore say that they value their property so high. It is not our fixed value; we simply say that that comes from themselves, and if that is a falsehood, we are not to blame. I have a "true" copy of the original, and invite the young supporter, Herrmine Thompson, to come and satisfy herself that we did not say "she forgot." No; we say it is not so, and that it is false, and for that reason the settlers near Camp Independence object to all such measures to go to Congress from among our midst. State the facts, and no one will object, nor interfere. Now, then, we have shown that our statement was correct, and if the young lady wants to apply her contempt, let her start in, we are somewhat used to it from those quarters.

JACOB VAGT.

Independence, Cal., May 6th, 1884.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.—The Board met last Monday. Present, E. Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thos. Boland....Bids for taking care of the indigent sick were received as follows: Mrs. M. Lewis, $1,550; H. G. Kernodle, $1,800; Mrs. Geo. L. Drake, $2,000; B. E. Stevenson, $2,000; Jacob Vagt, $2,250; J. W. Symms, $2,200. Mrs. Lewis, being the lowest bidder, was awarded the contract....For boarding the prisoners, there were two bids; J. R. Eldred, 90 cents per day, and H. Levy, 80 cents; the latter being the lowest, the contract was so awarded.... The sum of $250 was appropriated for building a bridge across Pine Creek on petition of citizens....The usual number of bills were presented and allowed, ...The Treasurer's report for the quarter ending April 30th, was submitted and approved....Petition of citizens of Darwin asking that the rates of Darwin water works be fixed, referred until regular meeting ...Miss Flora C. Northrup and J. H. Shannon were appointed members of the Board of Education, in place of P. A. Chalfant and J. H. Shannon, whose terms of office had expired. The Board adjourned until Monday, May 26th, when a special meeting will be held to consider the feasibility of funding the county indebtedness.

Varied Items.

The tomato, says an exchange, may be trained as an ornamental vine to advantage. Try a couple of vines, let one be a yellow variety, the other red. Pinch out all laterals and let the two vines grow closely together so that the fruit will intermingle. Vines so trained will grow from ten to fifteen feet high, while the ripe red and yellow fruits will greatly please the eye.

IN THE opinion of the "Medical Press," most physicians are very decidedly in favor of the abolition of corporal punishment in schools. The editor asserts that the London Uuiversity College school, which is attended by 500 boys, has been carried on from the first without corporal punishment, and is equal to any school in England with respect to discipline.

THE substitution of hemp rope for belting is becoming common in England. Large grooved pulleys and rope two to two and a quarter inches in diameter are used. There is said to be a vast difference in cost in favor of rope.

A CRANK who represents himself to be the slayer of President Lincoln, and who said he was on his way to see President Arthur to recover $1,000,000 due him, was arrested recently at the White House.

GENERAL GRANT'S wealth is estimated at $200,000, which makes him the richest ex-President since Buchannan.

All Honest People.

I was in a village of the Alps and had the misfortune to lose, while traveling, an important part of my luggage. My case seemed hopeless; nevertheless I took what steps I could to recover my property. In doing so I consulted the manager of a large hotel a few miles off—a German, who spoke English. "Much will depend," said the German, after he had heard my lamentation, "upon whether you lost your goods in this district or not; if they have, I have no comfort to give you; if they have not, you will certainly get them again, for they are all honest people here. The things were brought back in about a week after that, with straps, locks and hinges all in order. I asked myself whether, if the loss had occurred in one of country districts of England, I could have been so fortunate, and decided that the chances were very much against my being so. It is a fine thing to claim to rule the waves, a very grand idea to have dominions on which the sun never sets; but one feels, at a time when a large rascality has been occupying the public mind, that it is a thing of no mean importance to live among people of approved honesty. Haroun the Just, if he had come among them, would probably have placed my Alpine villagers very high in his scale of desert—perhaps would have had it recorded in letters of gold, "They aae all honest people here."

Turned Too Many Pages.

Three or four miles out of East Point, Ga. a negro was taken very sick a few weeks ago. A brother of color, who had bought a cheap medical treatise, volunteered to cure the patient for five bushels of sweet potatoes. He had not doctored him over three days, however, before the patient was cold in death. A white doctor who happened to be passing was called in. When he had tasted the medicine, which was in a gallon jug, he asked, "What disease did you doctor for?" "Poll-evil, sah." "Who ever heard of a man having poll-evil? That's a horse disease." The other at once opened his book at page 79, and said: "Reckon you'll find it right dar, sir." "Yes" said the doctor, as he thumbed the leaves over;"but the diseases of men are not found in this department. This is headed "Ailments of live stock" "Fo' the Lawd!" gasped the negro as he snatched the book and hurriedly turned the leaves—"fo the Lawd. If I didn't turn over five pages too many! I mean to hit him fur consumpshun an billyus fever."

An old man did not believe his wife could talk to him from the distance of five miles. Walking up to the machine he shouted, "Hello, Sarah!" At that instant lightning struck the telephone wire and knocked the man down, and as he scrambled to his feet, he excitedly cried: "That's Sarah, every time!"

Men should be careful lest they cause women to weep, for God counts their tears.

Why It Is Not Read More.

It has been strikingly said that were Shakspeare's works destroyed, every line that he ever wrote could be recovered from the pages of other authors and the speech of the people. So, every text in the bible has been quoted by somebody as proof or illustration, to point a moral or adorn a tale. Even our secular literature is sweetened and elevated by thoughts and expressions from the Scriptures. It would be as impossible to subtract the Bible from our modern English literature, which is read by everybody, as to unbraid the sunbeams, and extract the yellow or violet rays from the tides of light which fill the solar system with warmth and cheer. And people do not now read the Bible as a book as they did in former days, because they do read what constitutes its spirit and life, the very substance and essence of it, in every book and pamphlet, in every story and newspaper they take up. We no longer go to the well with our pitcher for water, as in the olden time, for the water has been brought into our houses, so that we have only to touch a knob in any room in the house to have our wants supplied. If the Bible to-day is less as a book, and is less read everywhere, it is very largely because that which makes it serviceable and edifying has gone into all other books and is unconsciously absorbed by all who read anything.

Up A Tree.

Willamsport was thrown into a terrible state of excitement the other day by a report that a lady had climbed to the top of a tall tree. Everybody thought she was going to commit suicide, and it was not five minutes before there were 500 people around that tree yelling at her. She climbed out on a limb that bent and creaked under her weight which caused the crowd to suspend breathing and patiently wait for the dull thud that must certainly follow. Instead of taking a tumble she carefully unloosed a string of delicate lace from a twig, where it had been blown by a cruel April zephyr, placed it in her bosom, and deliberately descended to terra firma. Everybody in the town is willing to admit they heard about the affair, but none confess to having been eye-witnesses.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MAY 17.....1884

DEMOCRATIC CENTRAL COMMITTEE.

The Democratic County Central Committee of Inyo met at the Court-house this morning at 10 o'clock A. M. After excluding all the Republicans from the room they proceeded to transact the following business:

Two vacancies had occurred, one by the absence of J. H. Holt, and the other by the death of John Crough. The former position was filled by the unanimous electton of A. W. Eibeshutz, and the latter by a like election of Crittenden Hampton. Then the following resolutions were read and heartily approved:

Resolved; That we unqualifiedly approve of the course of Governor Stoneman in calling the extra session of the Legislature.

Resolved; That, we hereby extend to those members of the Legislature who remained true to their pledges made to the people, our hearty indorsement, and recognize in them men worthy of the confidence of the people.

Resolved; That, we extend to Hon. P. Reddy, our Senator from this district, our hearty and unqualified indorsement for the manly and fearless stand he took in the Legislative contest between the rights of the people and the crafty encroachments of corporate power, and that we recognize in him a faithful champion of popular rights, and in every respect worthy of the confidence reposed in him by the people.

Resolved; That, the great question, whether the people or the corporations should rule, is a live and material issue and should be kept prominently before the people until it is finally and forever settled in favor of the right of the people to rule and the corporations to be governed.

Messrs. J. W. P. Laird and Frank Fitzgerald, two of Inyo's most respected citizens, and representative men of this section, were chosen as Delegates to the State Convention.

A full Committee was present. Two proxies only being presented, those of H. H. Welsh, represented by J. J. Gunn, and Chas. Parsons, represented by John Bourland. All business being ended, the enthusiastic assemblage gave three cheers for the men who stood by the people in the extra session, and three rousing cheers and a "tiger" for Hon. P. Reddy, and this closed the meeting.

Beware.

To all men of my occupation I will offer a caution. I am a plain miner with the old-fasioned blue flannel shirt and canvass overalls. I have lived through many years of exposure, and as a conclusion have reached the climax of selling my mine,—and of being thrown into jail for so doing. The honorable white-haired representative of a mining company assisted by his cute attorneys thus show their respect for the miner. All you old miners, throw down the pick and drill. You who have lived on pork and beans straight, who have thrown the shining gravel with a dripping sluice-fork, who have listened to the roaring blast, who have toiled by a flickering candle's light —you must all give up. There is no more for the California's miner. The pioneer must slink away into darkness. The miner's image must be siricken from the State seal. All the love of the "days of forty-nine" must be blotteb out.

FRANK SILVA.

THE cattle associations of Nevada, Idano, Utrh and Oregon are considering the question of joining together and making one association of the whole of them.

THE Bodie and Benton narrow-gauge cars have made a trip to the end of the road, and will continue to run until certain wood contracts are filled.

THE stage between Eureka aud Pioche is now making its trips on time; for a while it was reacning well into eternity.

THE wagon road between Truckee and Lake Tahoe is now broken.

THERE are 114 prisoners in the State Prison at Carson.

Many Candelaria miners are now in the Wood River mines.

LOCAL politics are boiling. Every other man is a candidate.

MINING LAW.—The possession of a vein recognized by the mining laws, and to which protection is given, is the possession by one who holds the surface where the vein makes its apex. The location of a mining claim is sufficiently definite when the accessible boundaries thereof are plainly marked on the ground by stakes or by natural objects, and inacesible boundaries described by courses and distances sufficient to point out to anyone honestly endeavoring to ascertain where such boundaries were. The right of the occupants of mining grounds on the public domain will be upheld, when the appropriation thereof has been made by means which substantially comply with the law, and which in view of the surrounding circumstances, convey notice to those whe have a right to know, that the particular mining ground is subject to the dominion and control of some private persons.

CROP OUTLOOK.—At Big Pine and BISHOP Creek the crops look well, especially the small grains.

DIED.

At Bishop Creek, Cal., Sunday, May 11th, 1884; Wat. Bowman; aged

At Independence, Cal., May 11th, 1884, little Markey Levy, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Levy; a native of San Francisco, Cal.; aged 6 years and 6 months.

Railroad Items.

C. & C. Paymster, Geo. T. Mills, together with Assistant Superintendent Laws, Roadmaster Haynie and Dr. Moore of Hawthorne came over the road Tuesday of this week on a special coach and engine, the first named gentleman making glad the hearts of the boys, while the others gorged themselves on Inyo's beautful scenery and alfalfa zephyrs.

Conductor Wood, we observe, is running from Bishop to Mound House and Jimmy Morris punches tickets between Bishop and Keeler. Conductor Hedrick, we are told, has gone "where the woodbine twineth," wherever that is. We were cruelly misinformed last week in regard to an approaching event in the life of our genial Independence agent. We were led to believe that he had been making semi-occasional visits to the upper end of the valley and that orange blossoms etc., had been ordered, but our last trip over that division elicits the fact that our remark was short about six miles. As both of these gentlemen were feeling badly over the error, we thought best to make the correction and trust that it will restore our rate on Lake water.

Mr. Frank Peacock, the gentlemanly Agent at Alvord station, went to Keeler Sunday to "stand in" for Mr. Nibacher, the latter gentleman having gone to the "upper end of the valley".

Mr. Walter Scott– not Sir Walter, but just as good a man—makes a very efficient Agent at Lone Pine station, which he looks after in connection with his other duties. He says if he doesen't keep things straight, Mr. Jones will come down and dance the lancers all over him.

We missed Geo. Nixon's smiling face at Belleville this week, but found a lively substitute in the person of Chris. Zabriskie.

TRAVELER.

OF INTEREST TO FRUIT GROWERS.—JAMES M. BROOKS, agent for John Rocks' nurseries, San Jose, Cal., arrived in town last Monday, and is soliciting orders for that reliable gentleman. Mr. Brooks comes in our midst well recommended and brings with him certificates showing our citizens that if they trade with Rocks' nurseries direct, they get what they want and exactly what they pay for. These nurseries are the largest on the Pacific Coast and are prepared to furnish, and to guarantee everything in the fruit line He is exhibiting several new varieties of fruits, such as the Le Conte and Keifer pears, Red Beitenheimer apple, Kelsey pium, White French gooseberry, etc., etc. Those wishing to purchase a first-class tree or shrub should see Mr. Brooks before he leaves here. He intends to remain only a few days. He refers to Thomas Goodale, John Clarke, J. W. Clausen and others, who have dealt with this firm, and they know that this firm does not misrepresent what is offered for sale. Any one who intends to improve our county by introducing useful and ornamental trees should be encouraged by patronage.

THE MODOCK CON. MINING CO.—This Company has nineteen men at work at the present time. At the furnace there is on hand 729 tons of ore and at least 60 tons in the chute. Supt. Frank Fitzgerald has just let a contract to John Schober to burn 16,000 bushels of coal, and to cut 55 cords of wood. He has a force of twenty men, burning, chopping, etc. The wood is nearly all in and as soon as 6,000 bushels more of coal is delivered opperations will commence, for a "50-day" run or more. As the coal will all be in by the 13th., everything will be ready to start on the 21st. inst.

DEEP SPRING DISTRICT.—Mr. P. A. Chalfant came in from Cottonwood Creek, Deep Spring District, Thursday last, to which place he will return again in two or three days. He informs us that the Greenly mill is about ready to start up, and that the prospects generally in that region appear to be particularly encouraging. Also, that the Montezuma furnace material is now all on its new site at Antelope Springs, where it is to be re-erected immediately under Mr. Bray's superintendence.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.—In this issue will be found the cards of Thos. Crough, for County Clerk. A. W. Eibeshutz for County Treasurer. W. W. Yandell, also for the same office. The first mentioned is too well known to require any introduction to the public. Mr. Eibeshutz as a financier, has proved himself fully capable of managing the affairs of that important office. Mr. Yandell has been before the public, and his popularity can be estimated by the strong support he then recieved.

BEE CULTURE.—Bee men feel happy this year in the prospect of an immense yield of honey. The swarms have wintered well and most of the hives are in a healthy and vigorous condition. The sage, the favorite bee food just now, is blossoming out in great profusion all over the valley and mountain sides.

THROWN.—Normie Conklin had a disagreement with his pony, Tuesday, and the holt was "catch as catch can." The pony was victorious and Normie was compelled to brush the dust off the back of his neck and pick the pebbles out of his neck-tie.

A VISIT.—Thos. Gill, Chas. Van Epps and Walt. Ober, paid Big Pine a lively visit on last Monday evening. They seemed to be following some southward-bound wagon tracks, but two of the party gave up the trail at Big Pine.

FOURTH OF JULY.—The citizens of Bishop Creek held a meeting to prepare for a celebration. The particulars will be given next weak.

A Sad Death.

The funeral of the late Markey Levy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Levy, was a scene of unique and impressive sadness. The Band of Hope accompanied the little form to the last resting-place. Arriving at grave the following remarks were made by Crittenden Hampton:

The Frost of Death has again exerted its power, and a fair epitome of mankind has bid a sad farewell to all that is earthly. Again has the portals of the tomb been opened,—again are we assembled to pay the last tribute to the dead. Scarce commenced was his upward journey on the path of life, when the unrelenting form of Death was met, and the feeble pilgrim paled and yielded to the mighty conqueror of man. The fatal stroke, amid the stillness of an anxious watch, rang loud and clear, reverberating on the listening air, the proclamation of a fleeting soul. Little Markey has flown from our midst, and that absence has left a scar upon the parents' hearts that Time in his mad career cannot erase. The fond mother, the indulgent father, the dear little sisters and comrades shall know him no more on earth. He has passed beyond the Lethe, that flows through a land where they do not forget. Thy name is alone inscribed on Earth's Book of Death, but also upon Heaven's Book of Eternal Life. A parent's care is human, but God's care is godly. In the name of thy heart-broken mother ard grief-stricken father, in the name of thy little sisters and comrades, we bid thee farewell, until that great day, when we shall all come before the gates of Paradise. Peace be to thee, thou little slumberer, we miss thee with tears, while the angels welcome thee with joy.

At the close of this address the burial service of the Band of Hope was read by Miss Northrup and the little members performed quite an imposing ceremony. It was sad to see juveniles, usually wont to be mirthful, shedding tears at the loss of a comrade. They marched silently around and cast their bouquets of flowers into the grave. The touching hymn, "Shall We Gather at the River," was nicely sung. At the close, Mr. Harris read the Jewish burial service.

PERSONAL.—J. J. Gunn, of Darwin, was a visitor to the green pastures of Independence this week.....Walter Ober has returned from Bishop Creek .....J. B. Swearengen, and family, including Mrs. W. F. Davis, passed through town last Tuesday on their way to Tehechepe.....Geo. M. Gill was on our streets this week.....J. R. Eldred and Alex. Clark went north the first of the week. The former to ascertain his chances for the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, and the latter to deliver books.....M. and Mrs. N. T. Piper, of Oasis, are at the Blaney House.....Mr. Frank Fitzgerald of Lookout is in town, greeting friends and acquaintences.....Misses May nnd L. Shepherd visited THE INDEPENDENT office this week.....Supervisor Thos. Boland was in town Thursday..... Mr. White Smith remembered us a few days ago.....Dr. Benton, of Carson, arrived yesterday; the last we saw of him he was "striking out" with a fishing rod.....T. F. A. Connelly drove through town yesterday.....J. A. Mackenzie welcomed us with a friendly call this week.....Chas. Begole and C. D. Lozano, of Lone Pine, paid Independence a visit to-day.....D. B. Curtis, was in from Black Rock to-day. .....John Bourland attended the meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee to-day.....Hon. J. E. Parker returned home from an extended tour of inspection through the Chrysopolis District to-day.....Uncle Pete Laird of Big Pine called on us to-day.

NEW STOCK.—A. K. Eugley has refitted the store formerly occupied by J. J. Moore, at Big Pine. He has a large new stock of dry-goods and groceries, and is well prepared to fill orders, nnd supply families.

SATURDAY, MAY 17.....1884

He Dropped It.

A Philadelphia dealer in butter called upon a lawyer the other day, and asked him to bring suit against a wine merchant for selling him a barrel of catawba wine which proved to be sadly adulterated.

"Has he patronized you to any extent?" asked the attorney.

"Well, yes. I presume he has purchased 500 pounds of butter of me within the last year or so."

"Ah! And he can prove that you haven't had a pound of butter in in your store since oleomargarine was invented.!"

"H'm!"

"H'm"

And he gave the lawyer five dollars and walked out.

How a Japanese Smokes.

The interior of the bowl of a Japanese tobacco pipe is about the size of a pea. A little pellet of tobacco, about the same size, is put into the pipe and fire is applied, then one whiff—never more than two—is drawn into the lungs and expelled through the nostrils, and full satisfaction is gained. The preparation and lighting is leisurely done. To load and light this pipe takes a Japanese ten minutes; to smoke, two seconds. They smoke often, but an average college student in America would use as much tobacco in one day as a Japanese student would in two weeks.

Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 33½."

Twenty-fourth Course—North eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes east thirty nine (39) chains and fifty-two (52) links to said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1. N E Cor," the place of commencement, containing nineteen hundred and twenty-seven (1927) acres and twenty two hundredths (22-100) of an acre. Said "Mineral Monument No 34" consists of a durable sanostone four (4) feet long set two (2) feet deep in the ground. It is six (6) inches square at the top, whereon is fastened a brass plate marked "N E S W S B M M M No 34," and is situated on the back-bone of a Butte bearing northwest and southeast at a point distant a few chains southeast from the highest point of said butte, which has an altitude of about two hundred (200) feet and a length of about fifty (50) chains; said Butte being situated on the east side of Death Valley and on the margin of the dry bed of the lake.

From said "MINERAL MONUMENT No 34," "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; Winters Peak bears north sixty-seven (67) degrees forty (40) minutes east; "Telescope Peak" bears south twenty-nine (29) degrees forty (40) minutes west; stake marked "C D No. 3" of the "Winters Borate Deposit Mine," bears north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant thirty-two (32) chains and ninety-one (91) links, a stone monument marked "C D No 1 at the northeast corner of the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" bears north, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north seven (7) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes west, distant twenty-one (21) chains; the north bank of "FURNACE WASH" at entrance of wash to valley bears south thirty-one (31) degrees thirty (30) minutes east distant one hundred and eighty-two (182) chains and fifty (50) links; "Cement House" at Greenland bears south fifteen (15) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant one hundred and seventeen (117) chains and "MINERAL MONUMENT No. 33" bears from said "Mineral Monument Number 34," north nine (9) degrees twenty-four (24) minutes west at the distance of four hundred and forty-two (442) chains and sixty-seven (67) links by traverse calculation.

The above described "DESERT BORATE DEPOSITE MINE" hereby sought to be patented as survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, consists of those certain borax mining locations locally known and recorded as "Location No 12," "Location No. 13," "Location No. 14," "Location No. 15," "Location No. 16," "Location No. 17," "Location No. 18," "Location No. 19," "Location No. 20," "Location No. 21," "Location No. 22," "Location No. 23," "Location No. 24" "Location No. 25," "Location No. 26," "Location No. 30," and "Location No. 31," record whereof may be found at pages from 79 to 174 of Liber A of the Mining Records of said Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, kept at the office of the Mining Recorder in said District, record thereof being also found in "Book C" and "Book D" of "Land, Water and Mining Claims," kept at the office of the County Recorder, at Independence, Inyo County, California.

Adjoining claims unknown, if any such exist. The nearest officially surveyed claim to this on the north being the "WINTERS BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" or "Survey No. 2153," "Lot No. 37 and 38," the southeast corner whereof is situated at a point bearing north twenty-five (25) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant twenty-two (22) chains and fifty-five (55) links from the said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor," at the place of commencement of the foregoing survey and description of this claim.

Attention is called to the Plat and Notice now posted upon said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," or Survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, and to the Plat, Field Notes and other papers on file in this office in said application, for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said "HARMONY MINING COMPANY."

This application is made pursuant to the terms of Chapter VI of Title XXXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and the laws of Congress regulating the disposal of mineral lands in the public domain.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty (60) days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

Didn't Understand.

"May I have this seat?" she asked of the gentle-looking drummer whose baggage was occupying it.

"I don't know, ma'am," he answered politely. "It belongs to the railroad, you know; but I will see the conductor and may be he will give it to you."

She grew purple and said:

"You don't understand me. I mean can I take it?"

"Well, I don't know that either. You see it is fastened very firmly to the car floor and would be very difficult to get up; however, I'll have a carpenter come aboard at the next station and ask his advice"

"I don't want the old thing," she howled. "Is this your traps on it?"

"No'm," blandly answered the drummer," they belong to the firm I travel for."

"Well, can I sit down here," she finally screamed

"I don't know, madam; you are the best judge of your muscular powers."

"Where do you travel from?" she screamed.

"Chicag." he replied.

"That settles it." she said meekly; "will you please move your valises, and permit me to occupy a small portion of this seat?"

"Certainly." he replied, why didn't you say that at first?"

The train sped on, while he sat counting up his expenses, and she wondering if Chicago check had any equal under the sun.

Fears of a Flood.

During the last spell of warm weather, says the Genoa Courier, the snow on the mountains has melted very fast, and the river and sloughs throughout the valley have rigen rapidly, transforming certain parts of the valley into small lakes. Considerable anxiety is felt among our farmers, who fear the water will rise to such a hight that it will overflow and destroy the grain crops Although a large amount of snow has melted already, there is still plenty left, and the chances are that before long the water will be higher than it has been for years. Some of the farmers have dams and levees built, which may hold the water in check, but if it rises much more some of these guards will surely give way, and perhaps be the means of destroying considerable grain.

"Are you going out this evening?" asked a Mormon lady of her husband.

"Yes;" he replied, "I shall call on Miss Smith."

"I owe Miss Smith a call myself." she said, "but don't suppose it would be exactly the thing for us so go together."

"Hardly," responded the husband."

A girl will go to a dance and waltz several straight hours without complaining, but ask the same young lady to wrestle five minutes with a broom, and she'll faint before she gets both hands fairly clasped around the handle.

Aid to The Injured.

1. Bites of all sorts are dangerous, and if not treated with expedition may prove fatal. We have dog bites, tribolites, bear bites and Jacodites—yes, mosquito bites.

2. One seldom if ever gets a bite when out fishing.

3. If about to be bitten by a dog, while foraging in a melon patch, take some violent exercise immediately. For instance run a mile or so without stopping.

4. Never stop running because there is a man coming apparently chasing a dog, with a club in his hand.

5. If this does not accelerate the motion of the heart, climb a tree.

6. Do not get down to rescue the sample of your pants. This is the dog's, he needs it for his scrapbook.

ONE of Ingersoll's brightest sentences is the following tribute to womanhood: "I tell you women are more faithful than men. I tell you, as a rule, women are more faithful than men—ten times more faithful than men. I never saw a man pursue his wife into the very dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she had been morally wrecked waiting for the waves to bring back even her corpse to his arms; but I have seen women with their white arms lift men from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as if he were an angel."

THE appropriation for harbors on this coast, as shown in the lately reported River and Harbor bill, are as follows: Humboldt, $62,500; Oakland, $139,600; Wilmington, $50,000; Yaquinta Bay Oregon, $40,000. Among the river and slough improvements are enumerations as follows: Sacramento and Feather, $10,000; San Joaquin and Mormon Slough, $2,000; Upper Columbia and Snake, Oregon, $15,000; Willamette and Columbia, below Portland, $100,000; the river of Washington Territory, $10,000. For a canal at the Cascade, on the Columbia, $150,000 is appropriated.

WORKERS in ornamental wood now assert that yellow pine, hard finished in oil, is the rival of any wood that grows, not excepting the hard species; it being susceptible of recieving and maintaining as high a polish as any known wood, while when inpregnated with oil it becomes almost indestructible. In such a condition it is impervious to hot grease and other substances that leave an ineffaceable stain upon white pine, maple, and various other woods.

THE tourist season at Lake Tahoe has opened, and the public houses of this beautiful mountain resort are filling up with visitors. The new steamer "Tod Goodwin," is making daily trips around the Lake, taking in Glenbrook, Hot Springs, Tahoe City, Sugar Pine Point, Emerald Bay, Incline, Tallac and Rowland's, charging three dollars for the round trip.

THE remnants of the Chiricahua marauders, starved out of Mexico, have returned to the San Carlos Reservation. They are all good Indians now, although the blood of many a settler is still fresh on their hands; but life insurance rates are high along the border, and even Wiggins could foretell a raid next fall without much chance of proving a false prophet.

THE most gorgeous sunset that ever lit up the western sky and swathed the western heavens in a purple and gold robe, is nothing to the flush of joy which lights up the face of the true wife when she discovers a forgotten bill in one of her husbands discarded vests.

IT IS not pleasant, after you have been repeating in your best voice several operatic gems, to have your friend look up with a wearied countenance and say: "Hadn't you just as lief sing as do that, you know."

Yuba County Gold.

While digging a well for Dr. Melton, in Wheatland, Cal., last Saturday, E. W. Sheets found indications of gold in his dirt, and after washing a few pansful out netted $8. Next morning a rock about an inch long by half an inch wide was found which contained about $10 worth of gold. Several pansful have been washed out, and enough gold has been taken out to pay for digging the well. A resident of Smartsville, an old miner, named Edward Dent, who passed through town on his way to the Bay, examined the indications while waiting for the train, and offered the doctor $50,000 for a half interest in the property, which was refused,

SINCE his return to England M. Henry Irving, the actor, has been speaking in high praise of America and its people. Mr. Irving has no cause to do otherwise. He has not only recieved kind treatment in his profession, but was entertained socially in a cordial and and agreeable manner. If the published statements be true, he took home as earnings a large sum of money. How could he feel otherwise than pleased, and express a determination to come over on another professional visit to the United States next year? We have had Lord Coleridge, Matthew Arnold and Henry Irving all within a year.

THE discovery of a number of dynamite cartridges in the Ontario Parliament House at Toronto has created intense excitement there.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MAY 24.....1884

THE Odd Fellows' demonstration at the laying of the corner-stone of their new hall at San Francisco last week was a very grand affair. Ten thousand Odd Fellows were in line in the procession. It was a splendid manifestation of the strength of Odd Fellowship in California. The streets were crowded with thousands upon thousands of eager spectators, every available place for viewing the magnificent pageant was covered with human beings. It was one of the largest demonstrations ever made by the order. The corner-stone was laid with impressive ceremonies by W. W. Morrow, Grand Master. John B. Harmon, Past Grand Sire, delivered the oration. At night the Mechanic's Pavillion was crammed with Odd Fellows and their friends to take part in the closing exercises of the day. Hundreds were unable to obtain entrance. The immense building was never so filled except on the occasion of the Knights Templar Conclave. The Grand Lodge commenced its session Tuesday, which was continued probably all the week.

THERE is a prospect at last of the Mexican veterans receiving something like an acknowledgment for their gallant service in their country's cause. Justice to the Mexican veterans has been painfully tardy, and many of them have passed out into the Great Beyond with no recognition of the debt due them by the American people of to-day.

Hundreds of the old Mexican soldiers have died within the last few years in poverty, never having received anything but the beggarly wages paid an American soldier, their poverty, old age and broken constitutions uniting to make life wearisome and death a relief to their conditions. Senator Williams, of Kentucky, has recently given notice that he will call up a bill, which has passed the House, granting pensions to all Mexican veterans entitled to them. God prosper the undertaking!

A DECISION just rendered in the New Jersey Court of Appeals indicates that the Judges of that court deem the operations of stock speculators no better than gambling with cards, or faro chips. A Jerseyman, who was operating in stocks in New York and putting up "margins," when his cash ran short, he put up a mortgage with his broker to secure the latter on "margins." Then the giver of the mortgage refused to pay, and resisted the attempt of the broker to collect on the mortgage, on the plea that it was a gambling transaction, and therefore under the laws of New Jersey no action at law could be maintained to recover, and the Court of Appeals decides, 7 to 5, that he is right, and that the broker's mortgage security is not valid.

THE whirl-wind which has been fluttering the bank-notes in Wall street seems, in a measure, to have confined its operations to that particular place. The so-called panic is comparatively local. Outside of New York its effects will hardly be felt. There need by no sympathy wasted on the brokers and bankers who have disappeared and who are disappearing. Yet we may pity the honest fools who have been the dupes of these men, and feel sorry that their betrayers will not be brought to punishment here whatever may happen to them hereafter. Even thus, however, the public will receive incalculable benefit if the gambling of Wall Street be checked.

AN expedition has gone to the Arctics in search of Lieut. Greeley. How long will it be before another expedition will be fitted out to go in search of this expedition? This arctic exploring business is a big "fraud." Its only results are disaster and death. There is no important thing to be gained by these arctic explorations. It is well established that after a certain point is reached the arctics are but an unbounded field of ice. Let us rest content with what we have and not waste any more valuable lives and property in useless research.

THE prohibitionists, are those who are eager to lessen the evils that come from the use of strong drink, who care more to save the State from the awful curse of intemperance than for any profit arising from party or personal success. They are not bought or sold, but consider the salvation of the young as a hundred thousand times more important than who shall be the next governor, and consequently can hardly be called a political party.

At a conference of Baptist preachers, Rev. Mr. Spencer of Utah, said the Baptist Church in Salt Lake had built and paid for an edifice which cost $13,000 and was the best in the city. Ninety Mormon children attended the school connected with the church, and from forty to fifty Mormon adults attended the church services. The first converts were Mormons.

On the 15th, when it was announced that the widely known and honored firm of Fisk & Hatch was unable to meet its obligations, there was great surprise and much sorrow. In less than five minutes after the failure was made known from the rostrum of the Stock Exchange, Nassau street, from Pine to Wall, was filled with an excited crowd. The space outside the railed enclosure in the large office of the firm was filled with brokers, brokers' clerks and messenger boys, many with checks on the firm. No explanation of the cause of the failure of the firm was given. "The firm has suspended payment was the only answer given to the avalanche of questions. "Will it resume?" was asked by a dozen voices. No one in the outer office was found willing to answer the question. Inquiries for members of the firm failed to produce any result. In a short time several detectives came in and the rooms were slowly cleared of the throng. The heavy iron doors closed and a policeman was placed on duty at the Nassau street entrance. Only those having urgent business with the firm were afterward admitted. For more than an hour Nassau street, in front of the banking house was almost impassable.

The rush on the Second National Bank stopped about the 16th inst.

F. A. Hawley of Hawley & Co., acknowledges that his failure is a very bad one; that almost everything is gone, and resumption is impossible.

The banks and other business houses are very slightly affected by the late Wall street panic outside of New York.

Fisk & Hatch give reasons for their failure as follows: The long decline in the market price of securities, and with this a heavy drainage of deposits.

Philadelphia Record: Speaking of faro and other wicked games, a Virginian, after remarking that in the better days of the republic, when everybody played faro a gentleman was distinguished by the comment, "He plays with red checks," from the poor white-check trash, dwelt upon the passionate love for the game which possesses men who get into its clutches. "Years ago," he said, "two of the finest lawyers in New York stopped at Charlottesville, Va., because they heard there was a man there who dealt faro. They found the man and played all night. About midnight one lawyer whispered to the other:—'He's cheating.' 'Hush, said the other; 'I've known that for two hours; but there isn't another faro game within fifty miles.

IT IS STATED that James R. Keene has recovered nearly $1,250,000 on his short sales since Wednesday noon, and that he will be firmly on his feet again. Some place his gains within seventy-two hours at $1,750,000, and say he has tapped Russell Sage alone for $600,000.

JAY GOULD is serene and apparently happy. He smiled vaguely when the rumors of his embarrassment were afloat. "There is no truth in it," he said; "in every crisis like this the general run of humanity lose their heads and concoct a story of this kind. There is no cause for alarm."

OWING to the reduction of letter postage to two cents, correspondence has been increasing, and did increase twenty-seven per cent during the quarter just ended. In this way the small deficit caused at first in the reduction will disappear very soon.

IN Washington the friends of President Arthur claim for him on the first ballot two hundred and sixty-five votes sure, and probably twenty more. They are so sanguine as to predict that he will be nominated without doubt.

ABOUT the Cœur d'Alene excitement, the opinion is becoming prevalent that there is some "salt" about the affair, and those who were the most anxious to go there some months ago are now the least inclined.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the estate of Albert H. Johnson, deceased. Order to show cause why Order of Sale of real estate should not be made.

Cordelia M. Johnson, the Executrix of the estate of Albert H. Johnson, deceased, having filed her petition herein praying for an order of sale of a portion of the real estate, of said deceased, for the purposes therein set forth

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before said Superior Court, on Thursday, the 26th day of June, 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court room of said Superior Court, at the Court-house, in Independence, in the county of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Executrix to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased at public sale as shall be necessary

And that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in the "Inyo Independent," a newspaper printed and published in said Inyo county.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated, May 23, 1884.

NOTICE OF FORFEITURE.

TO WILLIAM STANFIELD, CO-OWNER: You are hereby notified that the undersigned has expended the sum of One Hundred and 50-100 Dollars, in labor and improvements upon the "State Line Mine," situate in old Sylvania Mining District, Inyo county, State of California, being the amount of expenditures required to be made and done for the year 1883, in order to hold said mine under the provisions of Sec. 2324, Revised Statutes of the United States. And if within ninety (90) days after the expiration of the publication of this notice, you shall fail, or refuse, to contribute and pay your legal proportion of such expenditures as co-owner, your interest in said mine, or claim, will be forfeited, and become the property of the undersigned, as provided under section 2324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

Big Pine Items.

This place wags on in the same old groove. We have lost some of our girls, as J. W. McMurry, with all of his family, has moved to Deep Spring to spend the Summer. Mr. McMurry has gone to Carson on business in regard to the furnace, and may continue his journey as far as 'Frisco....Mr. John Johnson was in town to-day. His family of bright children, left motherless a short time ago, will go to San Francisco to be cared for by kind relatives of the family....Inyo's present (and we hope the future) Sheriff was in Big Pine, to-day. Steve looks younger every time we see him. He was accompanied by the smiling editor of THE INDEPENDENT. Mr. Glenn is growing quite fleshy and proves that Independence life and climate must agree with him....Geo. Hearst is up and doing well, so the girls must look out for their hearts, for George looks prettier than ever....Mr. Chastaine, we are sorry to say, is no better; he is very low, and we are afraid Big Pine will lose one of her old stand-bys. Dr. George, of Bishop, paid him a professional visit to-day, accompanied by Mr. Shannon....A number of our boys have gone to the Maxim mill to work, and help turn out bullion. It is about ready to start....Duncan Campbell, with the able assistance of Joe Schalten, is putting in a large crop of wheat.... Jim Smith is as smiling as ever, and is selling lots of calico....Engle & Burt are interested in catfish, judging from the fish-poles in their saloon. Go it, boys, catfish are the boss....Hartshorn Bros. have the finest garden in the town, and soon be able to give their patrons the benefit of it. It is under the management of H. C. Hartshorn. who can't be "beet" raising turnips, Harry, his brother, manipulates the hens....Jim Downie is still looking for a wife....Mons. Elisee came in from Deep Springs yesterday. His horses had deserted him, but were found seemingly on a prospecting trip, as they were in the neighborhood of the Mexican mine... Our new merchant, Mr. A. K. Eugley, seems to be well pleased, and to judge by the people going in and out at his store he must be doing a good business.

Well, more anon, "GIRLS."

MURDER, ETC.—One of the Mono county papers started a report about H. H. Mason disappearing mysteriously, and that the idea of foul play was prevalent. The San Francisco Chronicle and Examiner copied these articles. But all this time Mason seems to have been enjoying life undisturbed; being stout and healthy. The Bodie Free Press says: H. H. Mason, who was supposed to have been murdered, arrived in Bodie Saturday. He prospected as far as Panamint, where he separated from his partner and returned by the way of Cerro Gordo, Mr. Mason left for Lundy the same day. Thus it is, we must go away from home to find the news.

FOURTH OF JULY.—No move has been made by our citizens, to our knowledge, concerning the celebration of our National birth-day in this place. Must the average small boy forget why he pops the fire-cracker near the fractious horse? Must the old effects of "ice milk" be forgotten? Even if the fire of patriotism burns low, don't let it go entirely out. Keep it up for our boys' sake, and let them know what the stars and stripes mean. We would like to see some preparations made for the enjoyment of the little folks, and firmly believe that their welfare should be uppermost. The old stiffs don't do much on the Fourth anyhow, but it is the duty of citizens to provide amusements for our young people on this day.

RUNAWAY.—On Thursday last, Omie Mairs had quite a runaway. He had driven the team in front of the post-office at about 4 o'clock in the morning, and getting down from the seat, rattled the door to attract Postmaster Hardy's attention. Before he could put the mail bags in the stage the horses started pell-mell for the station. They went straight to the depot, but did not deliver the express box, and crossing the railroad track went on towards Mazourka Cañon. They were found about 10 o'clock; both of the horses were unhurt but the wagon was minus a wheel and considerably damaged otherwise. Perhaps the ponies thought they were behind time, but Omie thinks they intended to carry the mail through to Waucoba.

ASSAULT.—Angel Valenzuela was examined before Justice Parker, and found guilty of simple assault. He was fined "ten days." As he was suffering from a wound in the right leg, he was unable to serve but eight days, when he was removed to the County Hospital. There is a fault somewhere—that this wounded man should have been allowed to remain in a place that is scarcely fit for a well person. However, he is now improving under the treatment of Dr. Stevenson.

SQUEALING.—We were attracted to our front door one day this week by a "big lot of squeal," and found that Mr. Robinson's big dog had a black porker "nailed" by the ear. The dog faithfully held on till the owner, Mr. R., appeared, and quicker than we can tell it the pig had an ear-ring in his nose.

CHINESE AFFAIRS.—The Chinese case at present on the docket, bids fair to prove quite interesting. Joe Yunn, a representative of the Six Companies, is here for the prosecution, and says he will "plosecute 'till h—l freezes over."

PERSONAL.—A. R. Conklin and family departed for the Bay City on Saturday last....S. D. Woods came from the City this week and is still in town ...Miss Sarah Joseph, sister of Mrs. H. Levy, arrived on the C. & C. Wednesday from San Francisco. She intends staying in Independence for some time and we hope she will enjoy her visit....Tom Gill came in from Bishop Creek, Wednesday....Pap Walker was in town, paying us a friendly visit and seeing the ladies, with whom he is quite a favorite: often "cutting out" the young men.... Nessrs. Geo. Palmer and John Asman were up from Lone Pine a few days ago....Uncle Pete Laird left for his home on Monday last....John Livingstone is in town....T. F. A. Connelly was in town Thursday.... Mr. Barrie is in from Chrysopolis. Has been quite ill during the week, but is feeling much stronger to-day. ....Assessor Irwin is home again.... "Triggy" is around seeing the "boys. ....Billy Pascoe is exchanging greetings with friends this week....Thursday we received a trio of young ladies: Misses Minnie Harris, Sarah Joseph and Addie Lewis. Somehow fresh young ladies present a terrible contrast to the inky type and begrimed walls of the printing-office....Mr. Chas. Levy was in town yesterday....Messrs. Joe Williams and McDonough visited our office yesterday....Steve Terrel is still in town.

POLITICS.—This subject, alike that of religion, excites a great deal of argument. But in politics there is a whole world of working. The common voter can scarcely fathom the depth of the whirlpool. The "citizen" can now expect to be button-holed and asked all about his wife—how his crops are, and how all the babies are. The common loafer will wait around the saloons for political whiskey. It may be congressional whiskey, presidential or local. The wire-pullers will work their wires like boys pulling strings attached to snow bird traps, during Winter. Some will catch one, some none, and some only a tail feather. The prohibitionist will sit as near the saloons as possible, and compromise whith the whiskey man. The whiskey man will take claret and sugar or a cigar, and compromise with the prohibitionist. Such is politics.

ON BUSINESS.—J. W. McMurry, of Big Pine, is in San Francisco on furnace business. "Mac" has long lived in Inyo, and is a genuine rustler. All the miners in Deep Spring, and in fact everyone who has an interest in the welfare of the mining industries hopes that the furnace will prove a success. We have no doubt of the success of this responsible undertaking, for the valuable services of Mr. Jno. L. Bray, a man of experience, have been secured. Mr. Bray is connected with the Swansea Smelting Works, and in all his undertakings has been rewarded with success.

INDUSTRY.—The old Black Rock saw mill is undergoing a thorough overhauling. Mr. Gus. Stecker an experienced workman has been engaged there for some time. The mill will probably commence to turn out lumber In about two weeks. The property now belongs to Messrs. Rawson & Shoemaker. Mr. Rawson, one of our principal citizens, exerts every business faculty, and carries out what he undertakes. He will saw his own lumber for fencing. etc., and consequently can get out just what material he needs.

AN OLD INYOITE.—Mr. John Chastaine, an old-timer, passed away into the great future on May 22d. He has for a long time been a resident of Deep Springs, where he looked after his cattle, and was also interested in several mines. A native of Old Virginia, he prided himself on the State that gave him his existence. One by one the land-marks fall and decay, like the withered leaves on the autumn trees till all are gone.

ON A VISIT.—Sheriff Gregg, in company with "our senior," went north on Tuesday last. The former on official business, and the latter to "see the folks and get acquainted." Steve is a good traveling companion, for we have noticed how closely he stuck to his companions to San Joaquin, Stockton, etc.,—but no insinuations on "our senior," though.

ANOTHER RICHMOND IN THE FIELD.—The announcement of J. J. Gunn as a candidate for the office of Sheriff appears in this issue. There is little use in explaining who "Jack" Gunn is, unless it be for very late arrivals. He is an old Inyoite, and such is known by all the "old timers" as a man of honesty and uprightness.

ENORMITY.—Frank Silva, who was arrested for the alleged crime of selling a mine, had his "price of freedom" placed at the enormous bond of $15,000. But as his friends came to the rescue with the "necessary," he is now at liberty until the date of his trial, which time is not yet fixed.

ANOTHER ANNOUNCEMENT.—The political announcement of Mr. Geo. L. Drake appears in this issue. Mr. Drake is very popular in the upper country, where he is known, and if nominated would make a lively run.

SUPERIOR COURT.—Fong Chong was arraigned and plead "not guilty" to the charge of murder. His trial is set for Monday next. A venire of thirty jurors was ordered. Another drain on Inyo's treasury.

SCHOOLS.—Our private school still proceeds. Everyone seems to be satisfied with the earnest endeavors of Miss Northrup. The school will probably close about the last of June.

UNWELL. — Mrs. Warren Nims is lying quite ill of pneumonia at the parsonage.

Fourth of July.

There was a meeting held in Hutchings' Hall, Bishop Creek, on Wednesday evening, May 21st. W. C. Brierly presiding. When the committee, composed of Messrs. Hutchings, Springsted, W. P. Yaney, Elkeles and Ben. Williams, made the following report: That they had canvassed around the vicinity, and had found it to be the general desire that the Fourth be duly celebrated; that they had collected $144.50 so far towards defraying expenses; that they had appointed the following committee on music, literary exercises, etc. J. H. Shannon, W. O. Meroney, Geo. L. Drake, and W. C. Brierly. That they had appointed the following as a committee on salute: Bud Stoutenborough, Kit Johnson, C. C. Eisele and Wm. J. Phillippay; that they had appointed John H. Stoutenborough, Wm. J. Phillippay and John Clarke, as a committee to wait upon the railroad company and endeavor to get them to make a reduction on the fare, so as to enable the people of the county to attend the celebration at as small an outlay as possible; that the celebration be commenced by the literary exercises, after which the following games will be conducted: Foot-ball, wheel barrow race, open for all; sack race for boys, sack-race, open for all; egg race for ladies, doughnut race, for boys; three-legged race, for boys; three-legged race, for all; foot-race, for misses; foot-race, for married ladies; foot-race for boys; foot-race, open for all; climbing the greasy pole, chasing greased pig, hurdle race, open for all, and that the celebration be concluded by a ball in the evening, to which all are invited. The report was then adopted, and upon motion the minutes of the meeting were ordered published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, and, upon motion, adjourned until Wednesday evening, May 28th. T. T. COOK, Sec'y.

P. S.—Our worthy editor from Independence was present at the meeting, and made more or less valuable suggestions, which were thankfully received by the committee. C.

STRAWBERRIES. — THE INDEPENDENT office was the recipient of some very fine strawberries this week, with the compliments of Mr. A. C. Harvey, of Lone Pine. He has a large crop and is prepared to ship any amount to any part of the coyntry at reasonable prices. Those along the C. & C. railroad especially are in a very convenient position to enjoy the berries, as they can be shipped so easily.

NEW COSO.—J. A. McKenzie has been in town several days. He has purchased the entire mining property, buildings and implements at New Coso. He was in our office several times during his stay, and if he has the success our staff wish him, he will surely succeed.

A NEW BOAT.— Tom Boland, of Keeler, has some interest in aquatic amusements. He has just had built a fine Whitehall sailing boat, which rides the sea-salt waves of Owens Lake. We received an invitation to take a sail and fish for codfish.

RAIN.—The last succession of fine showers makes everything look bright and green, out of doors. No one seems to complain much so the rain must have been welcome. We hope that "Nature" will upturn the sprinkling-can occasionally this summer.

EACH WEEK.—Every week you should cast your eye over the political announcements, and keep track of the solid men who are coming to the front. Show us the men who patronize a paper and we will show you living examples of industry.

EVENING PARTY.—A number of persons assembled on Thursday evening last to assist Minnie Harris in remembering her birthday. All were happy and everything passed off as "merry as a marriage bell." Many returns of the day."

DECORATION.—A number of plants and trees have been planted in the Jewish Cemetery. Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz has been chiefly instrumental in this work of memory and respect.

RETURNED.—Mr. Nathan Rhine has returned from San Francisco accompanied by his son, Mr. Bert Rhine. We hope the young man will remain with us, and—so do the girls.

FLOWER GARDEN.—Mrs. Stubblefield decidedly has the prettiest flower garden in town. Such endeavors of "home decoration" are picturesque of thrift and taste.

FIRE-WATER.—A number of drunken Indians made night "harmonious" a few nights ago. Who sold them the the "delightful?" Of course no white man would.

NO FOOLISHNESS.—The town of Bishop Creek was somewhat amused this week by the pugilistic endeavors of one of her tonsorial artists.

BOUQUETS.—A fine bouquet of Inyo's roses were sent to the sandy plains of Hawthorne. From all accounts this is quite a treat to people of that section.

WILL START UP.—The Chrysopolis mill is nearing completion. It will commence operations about a week from Monday next.

LOOKOUT.—Superintendent Fitzgerald fired up the furnace at Lookout last night. We hope "Fitz" will make a good run; his energy deserves it.

BAD NEWS.—Normie Conklin is lying dangerously ill at Carson. His father was telegraphed for and arrived in Carson this morning.

TO COMMENCE.—Mr. John. L. Bray left Big Pine, on the 21st, for Antelope Springs to commence building the McMurry furnace.

INTERNAL REVENUE.—F. J. Higgins is visiting our valley, (in J. M. Keeler's place,) and represents Uncle Sam.

CHRONIC STAYERS.—It seems to be the fate of the average printing office to be closely watched by a number of "setters" down street. These individuals are engaged in the wearing out of the latter part of good pantloons, that would be good for some industrious man, wearing out corner-posts with their boot-heels, holding up trees till the bark becomes worn off and the tree flattened; carving dry-goods boxes, etc., etc. A correct tally is kept by them, from week to week, of how many times the printers leave the office, (and a printer never goes out except to get a drink); of who calls on the printers, and all such matters. They are not paid for their careful watch, but very occasionally step in and get a "jolt" to brace up their nerves. They never patronize a paper, except to criticize from a borrowed one, but perhaps they will some day furnish a long statement of statistics. Most all towns have these, has yours?

CAUSTIC.

ONE REPUBLICAN.—Explore our announcements and see who is the first Republican to step to the front in the northern part of our county.

ENERGY. — The citizens of Bishop Creek prove themselves energetic in the matter of celebrating our National birthday.

AT BIG PINE.—Mr. I. Harris was in Big Pine on the 21st. on business; from there he went to Bishop Creek, returning home yesterday.

FINANCIAL matters are looking brighter at the close of this week in New York.

THE NINETEENTH Industrial Exhibition, in San Francisco, opens on the 5th of August and closes September 6th.

Watermelon Culture.

A gentleman residing near this place raised a most tremendous crop of watermelons after the following method: Holes were dug ten feet apart each way—eighteen inches square and fifteen inches deep. These holes were filled with well rotted manure, which was thoroughly incorporated with the soil. A low, flat hill was then made, and the seed planted. When the vines were large enough to begin to run the whole surface was covered to a depth of a foot or fifteen inches with wheat straw. The straw was placed close np around the vine. No cultivation whatever was given afterward. No weeds or grass grew. The vines spread over the straw, and the melons matured clean and nice. The yield was abundant, and the experiment an entire succuss. —Rural New Yorker.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED out of the Superior Court in and for the County of Inyo, State of California, in the suit of J. A. McKenzie, Plaintiff, against the New Coso Mining Company, a corporation Defendant, upon a judgment rendered in said Court on the Eighth day of February, A. D. 1884, for the sum of Nine Hundred and Eighty 11½ 100 Dollars, besides costs amounting to the sum of One Hundred and Eighty two Dollars, duly attested the Fourth day of March, A. D. 1884, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of $1 162 11½-100, besides accruing costs and interest, amounting to $403 82-100, making a total of $1,565 93½ 100, and upon which there is a credit, by sale, of $306 00, leaving a deficiency on said execution of $1,259 93½, and to satisfy said deficiency and accruing costs I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant in and to the following described Real Property, to-wit:

All those certain mines or mining claims situted in Coso Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, viz: that certain mine or mining claim commonly known and designated as the Lucky Jim mine, including hoisting works, tanks and machinery. Also, the Northeast Extension of the Lucky Jim mine. Also, that certain mine or mining claim commonly known and designated as the Christmas Gift mine, together with hoisting whim. One Boarding house and one foreman's house, belonging to said Defendant. Furnace and furnace site, including boilers, blowers, engines and rock breakers and ore scales; also, one blacksmith shop. The New Coso dwelling house and office. Also, corral and outbuildings, all situated in Coso Mining District, Inyo County, State of California.

Notice is hereby given, that on MONDAY the NINETEENTH day of MAY, A. D. 1884, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., to-wit: at the hour of 1 o'clock P. M. of that day, in front of the Court House door, in the town of Independence, County of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said Defendant, the New Coso Mining Company, a corporation, in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as may be sufficient to satisfy said judgment and all costs at public auction, to the highest bidder or bidders, for cash in hand in gold coin of the United States.

"DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE."

The same being a Placer Claim, Officially surveyed and designated as SURVEY NO. 2154, LOT NO. 38, in (unsurveyed) T. 27, N., R. 1 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, in Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California.

Notice No. 246.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, BODIE, CALIFORNIA. April 14 1884

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE HARMONY MINING COMPANY, a Corporation of the state of California, having its principal office, Post office address and place of business at San Francisco, California, has, by CHARLES L. WILSON, its duly authorized special agent, and Attorney in fact, who resides at Coleman, in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California, and whose nearest Post office address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and State of California, this day filed in this office its application for a Patent from the United States, to it the said Company, for its certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 19.77 22 100 acres of land, yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda; the same being commonly known and called the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" situate in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the U S Surveyor General for California as Survey No 2 54, and Lot No thirty-eight (38) in (unsurveyed) Township number twenty-seven (27), north of range number one (1) east, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof, now on file in this office, as follows, viz: [with magnetic variation at fifteen degrees thirty-five minutes east] Commencing at a Chalk stone Monument marked "C D No 1—N E Cor," on the margin of dry bed of lake, being the northeast corner of location N. 12, and the northeast corner of the said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which "Minera Monument No 34" bears south, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north sixteen (16) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant ten (10) chains and eight (8) links; the east end of borate bears south thirty-three (33) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant five (5) chains and fifty five (55) links; "Winters Peak" bears north sixty eight (68) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and "Corrie Peak" bears south one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor,"

Lost Overboard.

A singular story has been related by the master of the bark Gladstone. While the vessel was in latitude 42 degrees south and longitude 90 degrees east, a seaman fell overboard from the starboard gangway. The bark was scudding along with a rough sea and moderate wind, but on the alarm of "Man overboard!" being given, she was rounded to, and the starboard life-boat was lowered, manned by the chief officer and four men. A search for the unfortunate man was made, but owing to the roughness of the sea he could not be discovered; but the boat steered to the spot where he was last seen.

Here they found him floating, but exhausted, clinging for dear life to the legs and wings of a huge albatross. The bird had swooped down on the man while the latter was struggling with the waves, and attempted to peck him with its powerful beak. Twice the bird had attacked his prey unsuccessfully, being beaten off by the desperate sailor, battling with two enemies—the water and the albatross—both greedy and insatiable. For the third time the huge white form of the bird hovered over the seaman, preparatory to a final swoop. The bird eager for its meal, fanned its victim with its widespread wings. Suddenly a thought occurred to him that the huge form so close to his face might become his involuntary rescuer. Quick as thought he reached up and seized the bird, which he proceeded to strangle with all his might.

The huge creature struggled with wings and paddles to free itself. In the contest the sailor was beaten black and blue, and cruelly lacerated, but he held his own, and slowly the bird quivered and died. The carcass floated lightly on the waves, its feathers forming a comfortable support until he was rescued.

"It Vhas Ompossible"

A CINCINNATI dealer in clothing was standing on the depot platform at Hamilton, same State, a few mornings ago, when the North-bound train came in. A passenger whom he knew had his head out of the window, and was asked the news.

"Fire in the city last night," he replied.

"Vhas dot so? Who vhas burned oudt?"

"Why the fire was in your store."

"No!"

"So I heard 'em saying, and also that it was set on fire."

"My frendt dot vhas ompossible. My stock vhas valued at $9,000 and my inshurance vhas only seven thousand! Dot fire must have been a mile away!"

Free Firewood.

A Reno man constructed a boom across the river at that place for the purpose of catching the immense amount of waste lumber which comes from the mills at and about Truckee. It is said that 30,000 or 40,000 cords of slabs, etc. have already been collected there, and many families of Reno are enjoying the luxury of free firewood.

What Battered Coins are Worth.

It is estimated by the Treasury officials that if coin is in active circulation, or is frequently transferred in treasury and customs transactions, a $20 gold piece should continue current for fifty years, an eagle for thirty-five years; a half eagle for twenty years, and $3 and $2.50 pieces each fifteen years, says the Philadelphia Record.

Inasmuch as coin cannot continue in circulation even for a short time without some loss of weight by natural wear, Congress has established a margin of loss within which coins will be received at the Treasury at their nominal value. Section 14 of the Act of 1873 provides "that gold coins which have become reduced in weight by natural abrasion not more than one-half of one-per centum below standard weight after a period of circulation of twenty years, and a proportionate rate for a less period, shall be received at their nominal value at the Treasury and its offices." The grains, and the amount of abrasion allowed by law is 2 58-100 grains thus leaving the least current weight 513 42-100 grains. The legal standard of the gold dollar is 25 8 grains. The legal deviation from standard weight of the dollar is one-quarter of a grain, hence it will continue current until reduced below 25 53-100 grains. This margin allowed by law in the case of the gold dollar exceeds the legal limit of wear as applied to other coins by nearly one-eighth of a grain. All gold dollars coined since 1871 are within the legal tolerance, if not fraudulently reduced in weight. All double eagles, if not artificially reduced, will be found within the limit of natural abrasion allowed by law. The same is true of all eagles coined since 1856, and half eagles coined since 1866, and quarter eagles, or $2.50 pieces if coined since 1871.

The law provides no way by which uncurrent coins, either in gold or silver, may be redeemed at their real value. The only means at the disposal of the holder of these coins is to present his gold at the mint, where it will be received at its bullion value and recoined into standard coins, the government charging him the actual cost of coinage, or if he has mutilated silver coins he must sell them to the government for what they are worth as bullion.

Knew a Better Place.

Having learned that a man just in from the National Yellowstone Park was stopping at one of the New York hotels, a citizen called upon him to put a few questions, and led off with:

"Do you think another hotel would pay there?"

The stranger looked him all over and said:

"Do you mean business?"

"Of course I do."

"Want to make money, eh?"

"I do"

"Well, don't start a hotel in the Park. Come down to Arizona with me, I know of a place where a whiskey-shop and a poker-room will turn in a clear profit of $10,000 per year. For outside attractions there are buck enjuns, two mud springs, a hanging place for hoss thieves and a government official who can be bribed for fifteen cents. Inside, there will be keen chaps playing keerds, whiskey, knock-downs, and coroner's inquests and a chance to rob strangers. Shoulder your wad of greenbacks and come with me to blissful fields."

The Ways of Iowa Girls.

When a Marcus girl, says the Sioux Valley News, wants her fellow to go home she takes down her back hair. Le Mars girls take off their shoes. Sanborn girls say: "It's time for my dearest Charles to unclasp his circuling arms and hie away to his paternal domicil." Correctionville girls are more practical and less demonstrative; they simply say: "Sonny, time's up; git."

The fig tree on Gen. Bidwell's farm, planted in 1856, has been left to its own sweet accord, and has sent its tendrils and branches down to the ground, and these have taken root and grown, banyan-like, until it covers an area of 150 feet in diameter. The girth of the body a foot from the ground is eleven feet, The tree has produced litirally tons of figs. It is loaded every year.

No Need to Drown.

"I have always been in dread of the return of the season when bathing is indulged in," said a gentleman. "My family had several narrow escapes and still they have a perfect mania for the water."

Why, there is no need to be afraid," answered his friend, "if you retain your yresence of mind when you find yourself in deep water you will sink at first, but if you do not struggle you will come quickly to the surface again. On reaching it draw a long breath and throw the head back. This will have the effect of placing you in a recumbent position on the surface of the water. Now, this is the most critical moment for those who do not know what to do next. Extend your arms at once on a level with your shoulders, with the palms downward, and begin to paddle gently with the movement of the wrist only. Extend your legs quietly and slowly in a line with your body. If you raise your arms or your legs above the water, you will sink, but if you have the presence of mind not to do so, you will never sink, so long as you paddle without exertion. So you can keep on until you are picked up, or until you are numbed by the cold.

Joseph Russell, the 16-year old boy who killed Jesse Irvine, another boy, at Riddle, Oregon, was indicted at Roseburg for murder.

POPULARITY OF BLAINE.

A Washington dispatch says a prominent North Carolina politician and a friend of Congressman Scales, who will be the next Democratic candidate for Governor in that State, said: "If the Democrats are not very careful we will be beaten in North Carolina next fall. In making this statement I proceed on the assumption that Blaine will be nominated at Chicago and that the Democrats will select as their standard-bearer some other man than Tilden. With Blaine in the field any Democrat nominated upon the Carlisle-Morrison free-trade idea would be hopelessly beaten in our State. The Democrats of North Carolina like Blaine because of his bold, manly and courageous American ideas. He is not a shirk or coward, and our people would rather see him President than any Republican who could be named. Greensboro district, in which I live, is the largest manufacturing district in the State, and a great majority of the people favor protection and are flatly opposed to free trade. The sentiment in favor of protection is growing daily and with it an increased desire on the part of the people, if we cannot elect a Democratic President, to vote for a Republican who will represent the views of the Southern people. Blaine is such a man. The Democratic candidate for Governor of North Carolina will be Representative Scales, and he will be elected, but if a revenue reform Democrat is nominated at the second Chicago convention, and Blaine is the Republican candidate, he will be almost certain to get the electoral vote of the State."

Red Bluff Democrat: Our readers doubtless remember that a few days ago a stage was stopped by road agents up in Shasta county, and the passengers were relieved of their money and valuables. P. C. Scott, an ex-Treasurer of Tehama county, was a passenger on that stage and had some $1,500 or more with him which the robbers failed to "rake in." owing to the fact that Mr. Scott took a fortunate walk. A little while before the stage reached the place where the robbery occurred, Mr. Scott, who had ridden a long ways, tired of the cramped position he had been compelled to assume in the coach, got out and walked on ahead, and when the "gentlemen of the road" stopped the stage he was some distance in advance, and knew nothing of the occurrence until the coach caught up with him. It was certainly the luckiest walk he ever took. A loud-mouthed German who had a pair of pistols, was a passenger, and was profuse in threats as to what he would do if the stage was stopped. When the gang did, however, appear, he was the most weak-kneed among the passengers, giving up his pistols very meekly; and is now nearly crazy mourning their loss.

The Humboldt river, says the Winnemucca Silver State, when confined within its banks, is perhaps the crookedest stream in the world. Persons who have given the subject some thought when sailing on the river, say if it was straightened out it would reach across the continent. Now all these crooks and bends are disappearing, the whole bottom through which the river ordinarily winds being covered with water. The Humboldt is now a large river, and as there is no outlet for the large volume of water which it discharges into the lake, that must necessarily be very high.

"IT IS not generally known among farmers," said a Stockton vegetable dealer, "but corn husks bring a much higher price than corn itself. The husks should be kept whole, the leaves being merely bent down instead of torn off in taking out the ear. They find a ready sale in every large city. The retail price now is seven cents a pound. Husks have been as high as twenty-five cents per dozen in this city. They are used in making tomales."

THE Austin (Nev.) Reveille was rejoicing over the unusual event of a mule giving birth to a colt a few days ago, and now it laments the death of the curiosity. The owner of the animal took great care of it, but the mule was not qualified to perform the functions of a mother—probably gave no milk—the colt died last Monday.

She had lived for a short time in Oakland, and her suicide is unexplained.

TILDEN THE CHOICE.

A New York dispatch dated May 23rd says: Tammany Hall was crowded tonight, the occasion being the meeting which the advertisement said was the first gun for the Presidential canvass. Tilden's name evoked long-continued cheers whenever mentioned. Congressmen Blackburn and Hurd were the principle speakers. Morrison sent a letter reiterating his well-known views. Speaker Carlisle, in a letter, said: "Since the close of the war more than four-fifths of the internal revenue taxes have been abolished, while the tariff remains substantially the same. Indeed, on many articles of necessity in common use among the people the rates of duty are higher now than during the war, while on nearly all of them the duties are much higher, in proportion to the value of the articles than they were then. Taxes on the vices and luxuries of the people have been greatly reduced, or entirely abolished, while taxes upon the necessities of life and tools and impliments of labor have been retained and in some instances increased. Under this policy commerce has been obstructed, the cost of production increased and the earnings of labor confiscated. Stability in the laws affecting the industrial interests of the people is absolutely necessary to the continuous and rapid development of our resources, but stability can be insured only by doing as nearly as possible exact justice to all those whose interests are affected by such legislation."

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California, incurred previous to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present, E Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding Indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS, incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases" approved May 8th, 1884, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each, and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883 and said Bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo County, is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, take his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said Treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884, shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour last mentioned, or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids, and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders, if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the Clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer, and upon such payment being made the Bonds purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall sell or transfer it or them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of the bond or bonds transferred, and his Postoffice address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from said levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and Interest Coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of the said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund after setting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all notices herein required shall be directed to the Postoffice address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Floating Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said County. If any money shall remain in said Floating Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund.

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884, for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for a less sum than the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange.

SEC. 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer, giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said Ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and Ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

E. ROBINSON,
Chairman.

Attest: THOMAS CROUGH,
[SEAL.] Clerk.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, MAY 31.....1884

The Celebration.

There was another meeting of the residents of Bishop Creek held at Hutchings' Hall, Wednesday evening, May 28th, relative to the celebration of the coming Fourth of July. Judge W. C. Brierly, presided. The Music and Literary Committee reported progress, as did also the Railroad Committee. The General Committee reported that they had agreed upon the games, and the prizes to be given therefor. Upon motion, the General Committee were requested to make arrangements to have a barbecue in connection with the celebration. Upon motion, adjourned until Monday evening, June 2d.

T. T. COOK, Sec'y.

ALVERSON'S TRIAL.—On Monday, out of a special venire of twenty-five, Francis F. Hatfield of Clinton, was accepted and sworn in as the twelfth juryman, and the taking of testimony was commenced before the following jurors: B. B. Summers, J. A. Williams, Reason Barnes, Thomas Gilchrist, M. P. Hays, A. Kirkpatrick, A. S. Montrose, John Sturgeon, P. Desmond, J. R. Crane, Andrew Barnes and Francis F. Hatfield. R. S. Miner, who has just returned from the East, appeared for the prosecution in place of Paul W. Bennett, whose sickness compelled him to retire from the case. Alverson was acquitted.

DIED.—Daniel Melehan, who was injured in the Lookout mine several weeks ago and came here for medical treatment, died of his injuries on the 26th inst. He formerly lived in Bodie, where he was a member of the Miner's Union. According to papers found, he was at one time worth over $200,000, but died penniless. Kind friends ministered to his wants and did not spare any pains to make his last hours comfortable. H. Levy, D. Stevenson, Steve. Terrel and others watched over him like brothers. The Episcopal burial service was read at the grave by Crittenden Hampton.

IN BODIE.—The Bodie Free Press of the 26th says: Captain J. M. Keeler paid a short visit to this office yesterday. He will visit Bridgeport before he ruturns to Keeler, his home at the terminus of the C. & C. road. The Captain is looking much improved since his last visit to Bodie. This Representative of Mono and Inyo counties is a veteran of the late war, and is spoken of by the San Fransisco papers as a candidate for Congressional honors. The Captain arrived in Independence yesterday morning, shook hands with his constituency, and entered upon the duties of his Revenue office.

SCHOOL MONEY.—On the 24th instant County Superintendent Groves made the following apportionment of county school moneys:

Bishop Creek	$85 97
Big Pine	40 82
Darwin	12 94
Independence	44 76
Irving	47 44
Lone Pine	61 30
Milton	25 29
Round Valley	22 53
Union	8 97
Warm Springs	11 13
Total	$361 15

ENTERTAINMENT.—The ladies of Independence are getting up an entertainment to replenish the treasury of the Band of Hope. A programme is being made out, and will no doubt prove to be interesting. The entertainment will consist of charades, tableaux, instrumental and vocal music, and will be principally carried on by the children of the society. It will take place Tuesday evening, May 10th. A cordial invitation is extended to the public generally to be present.

LUNDY.—Among the old-timers who have returned to Lundy during the week, says the Index, we notice John Livingstone from Calico, J. J. Murphy from Inyo at large, Goff from Carson, H. H. Mason from Big Pine, Paul Wolenbergh, John McDonald and J. C. McKinnon from Mount Cory, Ernest A. Brown, Charles Gale, Gus Duval, Johnny Olsen, Alex. ("Red") Ross and others from Bodie, and many others whose winter quarters were on the wing.

FOR SHERIFF.—It will be seen by reference to our new ads. that J. H. Stoutenborough announces himself for Sheriff. Mr. Stoutenborough is a merchant, carrying on business at Bishop Creek, and is well and favorably known all over the county. He is thoroughly competent, and if nominated by the Republicans, will make a warm fight for the honors.

THE FOURTH AT BISHOP CREEK.—The citizens at Bishop Creek are making great preparations to appropriately celebrate our National Birthday. A big barbecue will be one of the features of the day, and a general good time is sure to be had. An invitation will be extended to all in the ad. that will appear next week, and the full programme given.

OF INTEREST TO SHERIFFS.—A Sacramento dispatch says it will doubtless be of interest to the Sheriffs of the different counties throughout the State to know that the annual appropriation for the transportation of insane persons and prisoners has become exhausted and that all expenditures made in such cases will have to be provided for at the next session of the Legislature.

INFORMATION WANTED.—P. H. Kelly, of Virginia City, Nev., desires to know the whereabouts of Michael McIntae, a native of Ireland (Down county), who worked in Inyo county in 1877.

PERSONALS.—Bill Gill and T. F. A. Connelly came down from Bishop Creek Wednesday....G. W. Watson, an old-time resident of Aurora, has one of the prettiest farms between Independence and Bishop Creek....Jim Richardson has gone to Bishop Creek on a two week's visit....J. S. Gorman the Superintendent of the Defiance mine, Darwin, was in town this week. ....Sheriff Gregg was a passenger on Tuesday's train, on official business to Darwin....Mrs. Geo. M. Gill, of Bishop Creek, has been very ill the past week....Attorneys Gill and George came down from Bishop Creek this week—the former to defend, the latter to assist in the prosecution of Fong Chong....J. H. Stoutenborough Sr. and Supervisor Spencer came down from Bishop by private conveyance last Tuesday....A. W. Harris, of Dayton, short-hand reporter in the Chinese murder case, Chung Leon, interpreter from Hawthorne, and Dick McNaughton the Pioneer stage man, arrived by Mair's stage Wednesday evening.... Tom Hutchison and M. Levy arrived from Bishop Creek Wednesday....Miss Laura McMurry, of Big Pine, is visiting friends in Independence. She expects to remain a week or ten days....Tom Boland, Supervisor, Codfish Commissioner and Mayor of Keeler, left town Thursday, in company with Messrs. Supervisor A. Spencer, John Stoutenborough and S. D. Woods, to enjoy a sail in Tom's new boat....A. W. Eibeshutz was in Lone Pine this week on business....Assessor Irwin departed for the lower country Thursday.... Charlie Fitzgerald is conquering his late illness and is at the "Fort."....Miss A. L. Thomson of this place is paying Lone Pine an extended visit. ....Miss Luella Shepherd, of Georges Creek, has been visiting friends in town during the week... Wm. Hedge, of Chrysopolis was in town yesterday. ....Mrs. A. Petanande and Miss Anttonette Cartier, sister and niece of Henry and Phil. Cartier, arrived in Independnce yesterday morning from Helena, Montana. They will remain for an indefinite period....Mrs. Walter James of this place is still very ill....R. J. Laws, Assistant Superintendent of the C. & C. R. R. and G. W. Jones, Agent at the Depot, were in town on business yesterday....S. S. Barrie and James A. Parker went to Chrysopolis at the beginning of this week....Mrs. N. T. Piper, Mrs. P. A. Chalfant, and the Misses L. McMurry, J. Cook, and M. Schalten called on us yesterday .... G. C. McFadden and James Mills, old friends of this scribbler, passed through Independence yesterday on their way from Mason Valley, Esmeralda county, Nevada, to Ventura county. They had some fine colts with them.

COLLECTED AND DISBURSED. — H. Levy requests us to publish the amount of money he collected to defray the expenses of the late Daniel Melehan, and the amount left unpaid:

Amount collected	$69 00
Amount paid out—
Harris & Rhine, burial clothes	$ 3 75
Nurses	24 00
Coffin	32 73
Digging grave	5 00
Funeral notices	5 00
	$70 48
Balance due	$ 1 48
Left unpaid—
Hearse	$10 00
Bill at H. Levy's, board and sundries	48 00
Total unpaid	$59 48

No bill has been presented by Dr. Stevenson for services rendered.

SUPERVISORS.—The Board of Supervisors met last Monday in special meeting and passed an ordinance to fund the county indebtedness, which is $85,000, and place the interest on the bonds at seven per cent. Bids will be received by the County Treasurer up to the 15th of July. The Board having completed its labors adjourned until that time.

PARDONED.—Governor Stoneman has pardoned T. S. Harris, of Los Angeles, from his imprisonment at San Quentin, where he had been sent for one year for an assault with a deadly weapon upon Charles Whitehead, last December. A large number of petitions were sent from different parts of Inyo County,

FOR TREASURER.—Geo. H. Hardy (present incumbent) announces himself in this issue as a candidate for County Treasurer, subject to the decision of the Republican Convention. Mr. Hardy has been tried and found not wanting, keeping the county funds safely and his books in a neat manner.

THE MAXIM MILL.—Wm. Hedge informed us yesterday that the mill was crushing away and working smoothly, doing better work than was expected. Mr. Hedge is of the opinion that the ore will pay handsomely. The rock-breaker met with a little accident, but will be ready for work again by to-night.

A GOOD BRIDGE.—While in Round Valley a few days since, we enquired about the new Sherwin bridge, located about three-quarters of a mile above R. Fred. Brooks' store, and were informed that the county in paying $250 for the bridge had made a good bargain.

GRADUATED.—Miss Elma Yaney, of Bishop Creek, graduated at the State Normal School, San Jose, last week, and is expected home every day. Her relatives and friends feel very proud of of her.

DECORATION DAY.—Yesterday being Decoration Day, the Court took a holiday. Otherwise we saw no sign of the fact that the day was remembered., or flowers spread for the Blue and the Grey.

THANKS.—We return thanks to Mr. D. B. Curtis, for a measure of fine strawberries left at this office.

STRAWBERRIES. — Strawberries are coming in in quantities, price three quarts for $1.

RESISTING AN OFFICER.—About 1 o'clock Wednesday morning, Under-Sheriff Dan Crough was awakened by Pat Flinn, a Chinaman, and told that a drunken Indian called "Frank Broder" was down in Chinatown disturbing the peace threatening to set fire to houses, etc. The Under-Sheriff immediately went to arrest him, but he showed fight and struck the officer who not caring to take chances with fists, struck the Indian over the head with a pistol, inflicting a serious wound. He was taken to jail, but on promise of good behavior was released. Dr. Blair dressed the wound and the Indian is out on the street. A diligent watch should be kept by the officers, and should any person or persons be detected in selling liquor to Indians, an example should be made that would put a stop to the nefarious business.

TOO MANY.—Every Legislature that meets makes more or less legal holidays. This practice is foolish and reprehensible in the highest degree. If not stopped, every day in the year will be made useless in that way as far as the law can do it. The celebration of anniversaries should be left to the spontaneous action of the people, and the long list of holidays, thus far established by law, should be relegated back to the ordinary purposes of life as soon as the requisite legislation can be had.

MURDER TRIAL.—The trial of Fong Chong, charged with the killing of Wong Chong Yek at Bishop Creek, has occupied the attention of the Superior Court the entire week and the end is not yet. The jurors are: T. J. Reynolds, John A. Lank, Joseph Wagner, Thomas Ferguson, C. L. Myers, Julius Schroeder, Frank Lawrence, Henry Fehrman, C. A. Walter, W. H. Huff, John Mullane and S. P. Roberts. We will probably be able to give our readers the result in the next issue.

SELL LIKE HOT-CAKES.—A. C. Harvey, of Lone Pine, disposed of over one hundred pounds of strawberries in Independence Thursday, besides what came from Robinson's place. The berries this year are fine.

NEW MINES.—Several new mining locations have been made near Round Valley recently. We are given to understand that assays made from the ore went up in the hundreds.

RELIGIOUS.—Rev. M. W. Pratt will preach in this place on Sunday night at 7 o'clock at the I. O. G. T. Hall. At Georges Creek, 11 A. M. in the school house.

THE K. of P. Lodge at Hawthorne, Nevada, favored us with an invitation to be present at their anniversary ball, which takes place Friday evening, June 13th.

SHEEP COMING.—Yesterday a large band of sheep passed up the valley. We expect a large number of sheep to be pastured in the Owens River Valley this Summer.

WE acknowledge the receipt of an invitation to be present at the opening of the new hall of the San Francisco Produce Exchange, June 2d.

THE GREENLY MILL.—The owners of the Greenly mill, Deep Springs, intend to start up next Mondoy for the initial run.

CROWDED OUT.—"A Trip Up the Valley" is unavoidably crowded out this week for want of space.

Speech has been photographed. The picture was obtained by moving a photographic plate quickly past a diaphragm vibrated by the voice. A bounding line between light and shadow was thus produced on the plate forming curves closely corresponding to the sound vibrations—simple vowels producing curves, consonants producing more complicated lines.

At Point Barrow, Alaska, the recently returned United States expedition found evidence that the ground is frozen to a depth of nearly 300 feet. Below a point a few yards from the surface the temperature never changes. From November to May no living thing may be seen on this land except the Innuit and his dog, an occasional stray reindeer or a white fox.

Dr. H. F. Walker has found good reasons for assuming that earth-worms are the invariable companions of man, and exist only in regions where he has settled. After settlement they first appear in the vicinity of the stable yard, then in portions of the soil enriched by stable manure, and at length in all soil whether cultivated or pastured by domesticated animals.

The young ladies were looking at a fine bouquet, and they began to choose which they would rather be.

"A rose is my choice," said a queenly girl, "for I'd rather be eloquently beautiful like a rose."

"I'd rather be a lily," said a gentle girl; "for of all the flowers the lily is the fairest and purest of all flowers."

"Oh, pshaw," said the flirt; "I'd rather be a tube-rose, for the gentlemen all love to wear them near their hearts."

"I'd be a pink," remarked a meek girl: "because pinks are so sweet and modest."

"Shoot it!" finally sang out the one of the gayest in the crowd, knocking her hat saucily down over her eye; "you can be anything you please, but I'm a daisy, I am, and don't you forget it.

How often do we say with St. Augustine: "Make me holy, but not yet."

The Pacific Coast.

The immense importance of the lumber trade of the Pacific coast is understood by but very few people. The lumber yards of San Francisco, with their piles of lumber, represent thousands upon thousands of acres of land, millions upon millions of capital, giving employment to thousand upon thousands of hands, all the way from Santa Cruz on the south to Alaska on the north. There are represented, with few interruptions, a chain of forests of valuable timber, mostly owned by San Franciscans, furnishing the people of the whole world with valuable wood. This chain or range of forests extends from Santa Cruz widens into forests of hard pine in Oregon and Washington Territory and finally terminates in a wilderness of timber at Alaska. The magnitude of this great interest becomes apparent on investigation. There is no speculation in this trade, no digging and delving in dark holes for hidden treasures; the forests are there, the lumber is needed, and the product is sure. The lumber business of the Pacific coast takes rank where it justly belongs—alongside of her wheat-raising industry. California produces immense quantities of redwood, the only place on the globe where this useful and even ornamental wood is produced. Her laurels equal the far-famed mahogany, while her sycamore is known as a most useful and ornamental wood. All these woods are found in almost inexhaustable quantities.

All Sorts.

COUNTY LICENSES.

Some of our business men object to paying the county license, on the ground that the Supervisors had no right to pass a license ordinance. A test case has just been decided in the Supreme Court. The decision was as follows:

Ex-Parte A. O. Wolters on Habeas Corpus: The defendant was convicted of a misdemeanor in violating Order 8 of the Board of Supervisors of Butte county, and fined in the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars. He was charged with carrying on the business of retailing spirituous liquors without first having procured a license for that purpose, as required by Order 8 of the Board of Supervisors of the proper county.

It was claimed on the hearing of the petitioner's application for a discharge on habeas corpus, that the order of the Board of Supervisors imposing the license in question is in violation of certain provisions of the Constitution.

We do not think so.

By Section 11, Article XI of the Constitution, it is expressly provided that "Any county, city, town or township, may make and enforce within its limits all such local, police, sanitary and other regulations as are not in conflict with general laws."

It is very clear to us that the foregoing provision gives to the Board of Supervisors the power to regulate the sale of spirituous liquors within the county, and that, therefore, the regulation in question does not violate the Constitution.

Writ dismissed and prisoner remanded. MORRISON, C. J.
We concur: MYRICK, J.,
THORNTON, J.

This proves conclusively that the Supervisors' action will be supported.

SOME of the extra scientific and dogmatic gentlemen, who know so much more than the average common sense man does, about what food a human being may safely consume, and how long it will sake to surely kill him if he smokes a cigar occasionally, are apparently so busy in giving other people advice as to the care of their health and prescribing preventives against all mortal maladies that they forget to take care of their own health. Dr. Dio Lewis, who has written so voluminously and promiscuously on sanitary subjects, and who has given enough advice as to eating, drinking, sleeping, bathing, walking, jumping, working, and all other possible exercises of the human body, has now become an invalid, and is forced to retire to a farm in this State to recuperate his health.

A CATTLE round-up camp on Frenchman creek, near the Nebraska and Colorado line, was destroyed by a flood May 31st, and eleven cowboys belonging to Colorado and Nebraska outfits were drowned. It was caused by a cloudburst, the water coming down with such force that it swept everything in its path. Men, horses, wagons, and camping outfits were all carried down the stream with such force that only a few escaped. The names of the missing are: Lon Wetherbee, J. Lindsey, Robert Roddy, Robert Fowler, Patrick Lynch, John Smith, L. Netherton, William Ferguson, William J. Pelton, C. Hall. The bodies of the last four have been recovered.

THE last number of the Shipping Gazette states that a codfish bank has been discovered six miles from San Pedro, and that the delicious fish can now be caught in abundance. The codfish are similar to the Arctic fish, only lacking the three small tufts—one under the jaw and one on each cheek. The color and fins are mottled, and are identical in appearance with those of the northern cod. A great fish-curing industry may yet be inaugurated in Southern California.

THE crop of canards about Tilden promises to be even larger this season than ever before. They are new trying to prove that the old man has suffered a bad relapse and is in no condition to accept the nomination at Chicago. There are about a dozen ambitious Democratic politicians who would be glad to learn that this was the exact truth. They love the sage of Gramercy Park, but they love the Presidency more.

THE Tucson Star says: The Santa Rita (Arizona) placers, out of which millions of money have been taken, were discovered in 1874. They have been worked continuously ever since, and the camp has at all times been self-sustaining. Within the past ten years it has grub-staked more men than all the camps in the Territory combined.

CROPS of every kind in the vicinity of Snelling are in a prosperous condition, says the Merced Express. The diversity of production is remarkable—peanuts, sweet potatoes, cotton and corn have been planted extensively this season, and promise to yield abundantly.

A SPOTTED seal, five feet six inches long, which had been shot in the jaw, came ashore at Santa Cruz the other day. The species is a stranger to Monterey Bay, and this one must have drifted out of its usual course on the Pacific Ocean, and was shot by some one on board of a vessel.

[OVER OUR LOCAL WIRES.]

The Chicago Convention—Blaine Nominated!

INDEPENDENCE DEPOT, June 5th.

The Convention did not do much today. The Times says: Belief stronger than ever that neither Blaine nor Arthur will be nominated. Blaine men offered Logan men Vice-Presidency to combine forces, but the Logan men refused. In case Arthur drops out or is left out, Logan men claim his Southern vote after first ballot, while Edmunds men expect his vote in full. Sherman also claims strong help from Arthur's forces, while the Inter-Ocean says Arthur's ranks stand firm and grow steadily.

The Tribune says that seven of the Mahone Virginia delegation, which the Committee on Credentials has decided to admit in the convention will vote for Blaine, says that there was a conference of Arthur and Edmunds men last night to secure enough Independent votes, to put Arthur ahead of Blaine on the first ballot.

The contest in Alabama, Georga and Virginia decided by Committee on Credentials in favor of the Arthur delegates. The contest in the 5th Kentucky, favor Blaine, 2; in Maryland, Blaine, 2; 6th New York, Arthur, 2; 19th New York, regular and contesting delegates to be seated.

It is claimed that the delay in proceedings is unfavorable to both Blaine and Arthur's chances. It is thought that the first ballot could not be taken until to-morrow.

LATER.—Report of minority on rights of changing representation withdrawn. It denounces importation of foreign labor. Reference to Arthur in report of platform received with cheers. Platform unanimously adopted.

Convention adjourned till 7 P. M.

DEPOT, June 6.

Hilarious times in Chicago last night. Blaine growing stronger. Will send you the votes to-night. California solid for Blaine. Arthur close behind.

THE VERY LATEST.—The telegraph brings us the joyful tidings that the hero of American principles, the brightest statesman in the United States, and the next President, James G. Blaine, has received the nominaiion at the National Convention at Chicago on the fourth ballot.

The official ballot stood: Blaine, 544; Arthur, 207; Edmunds, 41; Logan, 7; Hawley, 15; Lincoln, 2. Nothing heard of the Vice-President.

THURMAN.

Nothwithstanding the fact that the sentiment of the Democrats throughout the country seems to be overwhelmingly in favor of Tilden, we still think that Thurman would be the strongest man that the Democratic party could possibly nominate. It may be true that he would not have the following in New York that Tilden would have; but in the Western and Pacific States, his name would be a tower of strength. If Thurman should be nominated by the Democracy at Chicago, the great contest would be resolved into a pitched battle between the people and the corporate powers, and in such a conflict it would be just as natural for the people to follow Thurman as it is for water to flow down hill. If Tilden is nominated it will be with the expectation that he will carry New York, and the thickest of the fight would be in that State. But if Thurman should be selected as the standard-bearer of the party, the battle will not be confined to any particular locality, it would rage with equal fury in every city, town and polling place in the Union. The Democratic leaders are fully aware of the Ohio statesman's personal strength; but they say that he and his friends could not contribute the amount of money which is actually necessary to conduct the campaign with.

THE San Francisco Examiner of May 30th says: The sporting element was in high spirits yesterday afternoon over the result of the celebrated stud-horse poker test case, which came up before Judge Webb the second time, the jury the first time disagreeing and standing six to six. An acquittal followed yesterday, from which it is to be deduced that stud-horse poker is not a banking game, and therefore not subject to police interference.

THE CHICAGO CONVENTION.

Elsewhere, through the courtesy of our local telegraph operators, we are enabled to publish the latest telegraphic news from Chicago. The only occurrence of note up to yesterday, was the election of John R. Lynch, of Mississippi, a colored man, to preside as temporary Chairman. No ballot had been taken up to yesterday morning. But in the afternoon the glorious and welcome news reached us that on the fourth ballot the intelligent Republicans recognized their standard-bearer JAMES G. BLAINE and nominated him on the fourth ballot. Great praise is due to the Pacific coast delegation for the firm stand they took for the man who stood by our interest in the hour of need and fought so nobly for the bill excluding the obnoxious Chinese from our Garden of Eden—the Pacific Coast. Now let the Democrats be wise and nominate Allen G. Thurman, and then we're bound to have a good President which ever way the election goes.

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California, incurred previous to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present: E. Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding Indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS, incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved May 8th, 1884, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each, and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883 and said Bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo County, is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, take his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884 shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour last mentioned, or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids, and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders, if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the Clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer, and upon such payment being made the Bonds purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall sell or transfer it or them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of the bond or bonds transferred, and his Postoffice address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from said levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and Interest Coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of the said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund after setting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all notices herein required shall be directed to the Postoffice address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Floating Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said County. If any money shall remain in said Floating Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund.

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884, for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for a less sum than the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange.

SEC. 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer, giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said Ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and Ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

E. ROBINSON,
Chairman.

Attest: THOMAS CROUGH,
[SEAL.] Clerk.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JUNE 7,.....1884

The Glorious Fourth.

BISHOP CREEK, June 4th, 1884.

ED. INDEPENDENT: There was a meeting of the people of Bishop Creek held Monday evening, June 2d, Judge Brierly presiding. The Music and Literary committee reported that they had made the following appointments: L. Case, President of the Day; P. W. Forbes, Orator: S. H. Shannon, Reader; Mrs. L. Hutchinson, Poetess; Mrs. H. H. Welch, for a Recitation; Andrew Clark, Chaplain. The various other committees reported progess, but asked for further time to present their final reports. Messrs. Kit Johnson, L. P. Springsted and Bud Stoutenborough were appointed a Committee of Arrangements for the Fireworks, with which it was decided to wind up the celebration. Messrs. George L. Drake, Jasper Williams and William P. Yaney were appointed a committee to see that visitors and guests be received and conducted from the depot free of charge. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday evening, June 10th, when all the committees will make a final report, and the programme be completed ready for advertisement. T. T. COOK, Secretary.

ODD FELLOWS' CEMETERY.—E. Robinson has given to the Odd Fellows' Lodge, of this place, an acre of ground, for a cemetery. It is in a beautiful location, being situated on the line of ditch running through the Schalten place to his farm. J. R. Eldred and John Alexander surveyed the ground the first of the week. What is needed now is a good fence, and trees and shrubs set out, to make the handsome gift of E. Robinson one of the prettiest cemeteries in the State.

MCMURRY'S FURNACE.—J. McMurry was in town this week, and informed us that he had all of his furnace on the site at Antelope Springs; also all the lumber for necessary buildings, and would soon commence to put up furnace and buildings. He is confident when once under way he will make a showing for that section that will entice capital to take hold of and develop the mines of the district.

HEAVY EXPRESS TRANSFER.—The Reno Gazette says: Not in three years has there been such a large arrival of express matter at this point for shipment over the Virginia and Truckee railroad as has been handled the past two days. May 31st four tons of boxes and packages were reshipped and the following morning nearly as much more, destined for Carson, Bodie, Virginia City, Gold Hill and other points south.

THE LATEST CRAZE.—The portraits of the family are now painted on the "company china." The little "sweet sixteen" may ornament the sugar bowl; "the flower of the family" the bread plate, and the artist may, in a mild way, pose the features of the maiden aunt upon the teapot, while the dignified head of the house gazes mildly up from the edge of a quarter of a pound of butter. What next?

RUNAWAY.—One of Dr. Stevenson's horses being hitched up single, took a notion to try his speed. Away he went, taking the Doctor so fast that he could hardly keep up, sitting in the buckboard. There was more dust, more barking of dogs, more men on the street, than we have seen for a long time. Doc. thinks he made a half mile in two seconds.

SUPERIOR COURT.—The Fong Chong case has finally closed, with a Chinaman found guilty of murder in the second degree. To find this out cost the county about $850. This amount includes the fees and mileage of jurors, fees of officials, interpreter, and shorthand reporter. Thus a deed which occupied about five minutes cost the county $850.

SOCIAL PARTY.—Quite a number of young people met at the Blaney House, for an evening's amusement, in honor of Misses Laura McMurry and Sarah Joseph, on Tuesday evening. Dancing and singing were in order until about 12 o'clock, when the very pleasant and agreeable company separated, to meet again, we hope, on similar occasions.

THE FRUIT CROP.—The fruit crop throughout Inyo county will be abundant this year. The trees are so heavily laden, that even now, although the fruit is only half-grown, the limbs are bending under their heavy and precious burden. Unless a market is found, hundreds of tons will be fed to the hogs or let go to waste.

NOTICE TO TEAMSTERS.—Under "New To-day" will be found something of interest to teamsters. There is to be a contract let to haul 200 tons—more or less— of ore from the Slate Range mine to the Reilly mill. Read the notice and get posted.

JUST WHAT YOU WANT.—In another column will be found the advertisement of the Washoe Mill and Lumber Company, of Reno, Nevada. They are prepared to supply you with bee hives, honey boxes, lumber, etc.

RACES.—Some time ago there was talk of races to come off over the Independence track on the Fourth of July, but we have not heard anything about them lately. Has the scheme fallen through?

THOUSANDS ON THE ROAD.—A gentleman just in from Mohave-way informs us that there are thousands of sheep on the road from the lower counties bound hitherward.

FINE VINEGAR.—Joseph Fernbach has on hand a fine lot of Vinegar, for sale at a very reasonable price.

THE CONCERT.—Next Tuesday evening is the time set for the children's festival and concert, and the little folks would like to see the smiling countenances of their friends on that occasion. The admission is only 25 cents, and considering the purpose for which the money is to be used—Band of Hope Library Fund—everybody should contribute. Following is the programme:

1. Greeting Song.....By the Sunday School.
2. Song.....By the Band of Hope
3. May Queen.....Ethel Hardy. Maids of Honor—Elma Parker, Carrie Gregg.
4. Music.
5. Crowning of the Flower Queen. Maids of Honor—Katie Hardy, Lena Harris, May Glenn, Maud Cook.
6. Song of the Heather Bells.
7. Recitations of the Flowers.
8. Zephyrs Light.
9. Little Toad-stools.
10. The Comic Woman.....Maggie Crough.
11. Tableau.....The First Love Letter.
12. Little Gipsey Jane.....Song by Lena Harris.
13. The Shop Girl's Sunday Rest. Luella Shepherd.
14. Recitation.....Thomas Parker.
15. Boy Me Flowers.....Song.
16. Billy Grimes, Allie Rose and Maud Cook.
17. Bobtown School.....By the Boys.
18. My Grandma's Advice.....May Glenn.
19. The Sewing Society.....by Aggie Glenn.
20. Tableau—Rising Generation.
21. Young Grey-Head.....Minnie Thomson
22. Instrumental Music.
23. Song.....Emma Kemp.
24. Mary, Queen of Scots.... Caroline Thomson.
25. Song.
26. Precious Pickle.....By the Girls.
27. Tableau.

LOOKOUT.—Under date of May 29, 1884, Superintendent Frank Fitzgerald says of the Modock: Started furnace at 5:30 A. M., on the 24th instant, and with the exception of seven hours' delay on the 26th, caused by disorder in machinery, have run steadily up to date. Shipment No. 1 of 16,000 pounds, and shipment No. 2 of 16,015 pounds, are ready, and No. 3 will be out ere this reaches you. I may be compelled to shut down for want of coal inside of ten days, unless the contractors furnish it faster. In case I have to shut down it will not be for more than seven days at furthest. The usual amount of ore is still being taken out of the mine. Working thirty-seven men altogether.

KEARSARGE.—Jame Ward, who wintered at Tood's ranch, being snowed in at that place from the first of February to the middle of March, was in town last Tuesday. He informs us that he visited the old Kearsarge mill, about a month ago, where unmistakable evidences of a snow-slide were discovered. The slide had occurred some time during the winter, carrying away the Schalter saloon building, the stable, assay office and sleeping house, and lodging them about four hundred yards down the cañon. Mr. Ward is making preparations to start up the old Pioneer four-stamp mill, on the old Kearsarge tailings. It is his intention to get up steam about July 1st.

STARTED UP.—The Greenly mill, Cottonwood Creek, Deep Spring District, started up on the 8d instant, and we learn runs splendidly in every particular. A lot of ore from the Gold Coin mine, belonging to Berry, Broder & Greenly, is being put through, and will doubtless pay well; but how well can not, of course, be determined until a clean-up is made at the end of the week. Our informant states, however, that the first few sacks put through while he was there, and the last we have heard in relation to it, showed conclusively that the mine was not misnamed, for the plates showed even then a fair sprinkling of the stuff of which gold coin is made.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT:—Next Friday afternoon (the 13th inst.) at 2 o'clock the pupils of the Lone Pine school will give an entertainment. The exercises will consist of essays, declamations, dialogues, vocal and instrumental music. In the evening a ball and supper will be given, The services of the finest musicians in the land have been engaged for the occasion. A cordial invitation is extended to the public in general to be present at the entertainment, ball and supper. Lone Pine against the world for hospitality. Those who are fortunate enough to attend will learn the fact.

MAMMOTH ITEMS.—B. M. Townsend, the permanent resident of Mammoth, says the Free Press, has been in Bodie a couple of days, and returns home to-day. He says that during the winter Pedro Simas, August Hirzberg and D. W. Albright have been working the Mammoth mine on a lease. They have taken out about sixty tons of rich ore and intend to work it by arastra. The Mammoth mill building is badly broken in by the snow, but the machinery is uninjured. Of the few houses remaining in Mammoth, some have been blown down and others crushed by the snow, so that the old town looks like a wreck.

LITERARY CLUB.—There has been same talk of a public literary club being established in this place. A society where all respectable persons, young and old, can meet on an equal footing; where debates, readings, etc., will be rendered, forming a source of amusement to the older persons, and at the same time instruction and encouragement to the young—imparting that confidence which can be acquired only by actual practice in public. Many a prominent man to-day owes his power of oratory and confidence to early training, not in private, but in public.

INDUSTRY.—Thomas Goodale has delivered at Big Pine some of his famed bacon and hams this week. Tom is an expert in the manufacture of this important staple, cured in the good old-fashioned way. He can discount the late "new process."

EXCURSION.—An excursion will leave Virginia City July 2d, for twelve days, to visit San Francisco, San Jose Santa Cruz, and Monterey. The fare is low, and tickets must be secured before the 20th, by applying to L. Guggenham, Reno, Nev.

SIDEWALKS.—Some of our sidewalks are sadly in need of repairing. It would require but a few minutes work for reparation, yet would be greatly appreciated by the public.

Big Pine Items.

Here we are again. This must be the month of roses, judging from the looks of this place.....The shade trees, gardens and crops could not be better. ....Business is quiet now, but we look for better times when the McMurray furnace starts up and the Greenly mill commences operations. We will also be benefited by the Maxim mill and the Etna furnace....Mr. McMurry, with his daughter Dora, came in from Deep Springs, reporting the furnace as progressing finely. He says that the carp obtained from his carp ponds at that place are not so good as our river catfish....Fishing here is excellent now, and every time the boys go out they return with strings of shining trout....Mr. Sparks, agent for Wells, Fargo and Co's Express, was in town last Saturday, seeing about moving the express office of this place to the R. R. station, Alvard. While here, he and Mr. H. C. Hartshorn tried the trout fishing, and without being fishy at all, we know that they caught over a hundred....Coroner Brady arrived in town to-day, on his way to Deep Springs, to look after the property of the late John Chastaine....Mrs. S. G. Gregg and her children are stopping here. Little Steve is having a fine time with his playmates....Mr. Eugley left for Bishop Creek yesterday....James Stewart is making arrangements to start up his saw mill....John Clark's team passed through here to-day with the Chinese witnesses, bound for Bishop Creek.... J. J. Moore has charge of Mr. Eugley's store for a day or so. We hear Jack talked of as a candidate for County Treasurer. He would find lots of old-time friends ready to stand in with him. ....Mrs. Hackett's laugh is as hearty as ever....Pope Adel has taken charge of Mr. J. W. McMurry's ranch and moved his family there....Sam McMurry, Harry Hartshorn and A. K. Eugley took an excursion up the creek last week. Sam was declared the boss, as among his share was a fine two-pound trout. Mr. Eugley did not stop to count all his, as he had so many. We heard they had a runaway, but as Sam was driving, think it must have been false. Think it was false that Hartshorn couldn't catch fish and had to go hunting, but he killed a goose, and some say that was a blind one. I'm sleepy, so more later. GIRLS.

BIG PINE, June 3d.

PERSONALS.—Isaac Harris left for San Francisco last week, to be gone about a month. He intends to move his family to that place for future residence some time this summer....Jim Richardson has returned to Bishop Creek.....Billy Lynch came from Benton as a witness in the Fong Chong case, but arrived after the case had gone to the jury....W. A. Harris, short-hand reporter, Chung Leon, interpreter and George W. Gill, attorney for defendant in the late murder trial, departed from Independence Tuesday.... J. W. McMurry was in town this week on business....J. E. Straus was up from Lone Pine Wednesday....H. M. Yerington, R. J. Laws and Capt. Haynie were at Keeler Wednesday....A. W. Ebeshutz "did" Bishop Creek and vicinity this week, and felt of the pulse political....Wm. Barrows is at Skaggs' Springs, near the Great Geysers, Napa county, Cal... Sam Grover came in from Chrysopolis the first of the week with a sprained wrist....Mrs. Sarah E. Drake, of Bishop Creek, and Mrs. S. A. Densmore paid us a pleasant visit last Saturday ...Charles H. Groves and Hi Hamilton were up from Lone Pine Sunday, shaking hands with friends.... J. S. McGee, who aspires to the Democratic nomination for Sheriff, came down from Bishop Creek Thursday, and shook hands with citizens of Independence....C. B. Rawson, who has lately bought much land in this county, arrived from Los Angeles by private conveyance yesterday morning....Mat. McDonald arrived from Darwin Thursday. He has not been well lately, and has put himself under Dr. Stevenson's care.....Joe Schalten, of Big Pine, paid our town a visit yesterday... P. W. Forbes came down from Bishop Creek Thuasday, and returned home yesterday....Miss Julia Cook went to Big Pine with Mrs. Gregg and family, to visit friends....John Lubkin, Chas. Levy and Geo. Palmer were up from Lone Pine yesterday.... It is gratifying to be able to state that Mrs. James is recovering from her late severe illness, under the care of Dr. Kernodle....F. F. A. Connelly, manager for C. B. Bawson, was in town Thursday and yesterday.

COUNTY BONDS.—County Treasurer Hardy advertises in to-day's paper that he will receive sealed bids up to 12 o'clock, noon, July 15th, 1884, for the purchase of Inyo County Bonds. He has $85,000 worth to dispose of, in lots of $500 and upwards, to be paid in U. S. gold coin on the 15th day of July, 1904, and to draw interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum. Here is a rare opportunity for capitalists to invest. The first man who speaks the loudest gets the bonds, so don't hang back.

DELEGATES TO THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION.—J. W. P. Laird and Frank Fitzgerald left here last Thursday evening for Stockton, to attend the Democratic State Convention, which meets at that place on the 10th inst. The Inyo delegates are for Thurman first and Tilden second choice.

FOR TREASURER.—J. J. Moore, than whom no man in Inyo county is better known, announces himself as a candidate for Treasurer. There is probably no man in the county that could or would fill the office with more satisfaction to the people than J. J. Moore.

RIVER WATER.—Very little river water will be used this year in irrigating, as the immense banks of snow in the Sierras will supply about all the water needed during the summer.

OFF FOR TEXAS.—Frank Hutchinson and Bill Gill have left Bishop Creek for Texas. The good wishes of many old-time Inyoites go with them.

Here and There.

Diptheria is raging in Virginia City, Nevada.

Three cucumbers for two bits on the Comstock.

Button-hole boquets are the rage in Independence.

Los Angeles is to have a Spanish campaign paper.

Note the advertised list of uncalled for letters elsewhere.

Dick Eldred has been full all week—we mean his hotel has.

Inyo weather don't know what it is trying to do with itself.

The patients in the County Hospital are getting along nicely.

New potatoes will soon make their appearance on our tables.

Fong Chong will get his sentence at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The trains of the Denver and Rio Grande are running again.

Candelaria will celebrate the Fourth of July in a modest manner.

The drummer crop was very light in this section the past month.

Home-grown peaches will be ready to pick the first of next month.

"There's a fall in lead," as our devil said when he dropped a handful.

The Indian children about Walker Lake are suffering from measles.

The Lone Pine school will close next Friday, with appropriate exercises.

The pesliferous fly is here with all his family, his cousins and his aunts.

Many strangers were on our streets this week—mostly on Court business.

Billy Matlack is the busiest man in town. He forges away early and late.

Don't forget the Band of Hope entertainment, which takes place next Tuesday evening.

An Independence young lady is entitled to be named "Ice Cream"—she is so sweet and so cold.

Joe Fernbach has made another brewing of his most excellent thirst-quencher—lager beer.

G. L. M. Comstock, formerly of Hawthorne, Nev., has opened the Tallac House at Lake Tahoe.

The Nevada newspapers claim that mushrooms grow in that State as large as an ordinary umbrella.

Several of the unemployed of Candelaria are discussing an emigration to the Wood River country.

Here we come! The Fourth of July at Bishop Creek, with a barbecue attachment. Everybody catch on.

A force of carpenters and laborers are busily engaged putting up the new mill near Garfield district, Esmeralda county, Nevada.

A cloud-burst near Visalia, May 31st, killed Peter Stewart, his wife, mother, two children and R. Weisner, a sheep-herder.

We have had more solid weather in Owens River Valley this season than has been experienced in the last thirteen years.

The grazing lands of the county are said to be in better condition this Spring than they have been for a number of years past.

Jerry Mairs' attempt to raise one corner of his saloon the other day resulted in a failure. Too much weight for one man to lift.

THE INDEPENDENT boasts of a Longfellow, Byron and Shakespeare. Ye wasters of ink and paper, trot out your distinguished "jours."

The new rooms of the San Francisco Produce Exchange were opened June 2d. A large crowd was present. A banquet followed the formal opening.

Five States have declared against President Gonzales on account of the revenue stamp tax. Troops are being moved from Guaymas to the interior.

At Altinas, Modoc county, last week, Miss Louisa Nicholas administered a cowhiding to Mr. S. H. Venator, after which he was severely chastised by her father and brother.

From a dispatch just received from Guaymas, Mexico, it is learned that yellow fever has again broken out there. Steps are being taken to stop all communication between Hermosillo and Guaymas.

There are but two prisoners in the county jail at this date. Next Wednesday there will be one less, as Fong Chong will undoubtedly leave for San Quentin Tuesday night, in charge of Sheriff Gregg.

Tom Boland has another scheme on hand. He is soon to start an aligator ranch at Keeler. He says when the reptiles are large enough to kill, their hides will be already tanned by the Owens Lake water.

A girl will go to a dance and waltz several straight hours without complaining, but ask the young lady to wrestle five minutes with a broom and she'll faint before she gets both hands fairly clasped around the handle.

The thirty Mohammedans traveling with Forepaugh's show each day piously kneel five times, turn their faces toward the east and repeat a prayer. We should think it would be necessary for a man traveling with a circus to pray at least five times a day if he wished to retain his grip on religion.

INDEPENDENCE.—The man who stands upon his own soil, who feels by the laws of the land in which he lives—by the laws of civilized nations—he is the rightful and exclusive owner of the land he tills, is by the constitution of nature under a wholesome influence not easily imbibed from any other source. He feels, other things being equal, more strongly than another the character of a man as a lord of the inanimate world. Of this great and wonderful sphere, which fashioned by the hand of God and upheld by his power, is rolling through the heavens, a part is his—his from the center sky. It is the space upon which the generation belonged, moved in its round duties, and he feels himself connected by a visible link with those who follow him, and to whom he is to transmit a home. Perhaps his farm has come down from his fathers. They have gone to their last home; but he can trace their footsteps over the scenes of their daily labors. The roof that sheltered him was reared by those to whom he owed his being. Some interesting family traditions are connected with every enclosure. The favorite tree was planted by his father's hand. He sported in boyhood by the brook, which still winds through the meadow. Through the fields lies the path to the village school of early days. Near at hand is the spot where his parents laid down to rest, and where, when the time comes, he shall be laid by his children. These are the feelings of the soul. Words cannot paint them—gold cannot buy them. They flow out with the deepest fountains of the heart.

SAD AND PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—Tuesday afternoon, during the absence of the family, Jose Marie Valenzuella, a much respected Mexican of Lone Pine and an invalid, set his bed-clothes on fire, by smoking a cigareta. He became perfectly helpless, and the unfortunate sufferer was fearfully burned. There are no hopes of recovery.

SPECIAL RATES.—The C. & C. Railroad will issue tickets from Independence to Bishop Creek and return, dating from the 3d to the 5th of July, both days inclusive, for $2.50. This will give all a chance to attend the grand barbecue at Bishop on the Fourth.

The Brigham Young family had a reunion at Salt Lake on the 2d. Over 200 families were present. An organization was effected to unite and perpetuate members of the Youngblood. Lorenzo Young, a brother of Brigham, was elected President.

ACTING DISTRICT ATTORNEY.—During the absense of J. W. P. Laird, S. D. Wood will attend to any business requiring the attention of the District Attorney.

PROHIBITION LECTURES.—Lawyer W. P. George will soon commenc lecturing in favor of prohibition. His hand-bills will notify the people as to place and date.

A man who recently crossed the Sierra Nevada mountains by the Sonora pass, thinks that road will not be open to teams before August.

C. B. Rawson has 4,000 sheep on the way from Los Angeles to his ranches in this county. They will arrive here in about ten days.

Dan Crough is hard at work on the Assessment Roll.

To show that the wine trade of its city is extending, the Los Angeles Herald mentions that within a year one firm has shipped Los Angeles wines to seventy-five different cities and villages on the other side of the Rocky Mountains, to which it had never sent before. They were scattered from Maine to Texas, and from Minnesota to Georgia.

The Nevada Odd Fellows are in session at Austin. The Grand Secretary reports 1,648 members—a loss of 100 during the year.

The same being a Placer Claim, Officially surveyed and designated as Survey No. 2196, Lots Nos. 37, 39 and 41 in (unsurveyed) Township 27 North, Range 1 East and Township 27 North, Range 2 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo and State of California.

Notice No. 247.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
BODIE, CALIFORNIA,
May 12th, 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Meridian Mining Company, a corporation of the State of California, having its principal office, Postoffice address and place of business at San Francisco, California, has by Herrman Stablin, its duly authorized special agent and attorney in fact who resides at Coleman, in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo and State of California, and whose nearest postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino and State of California, this day filed in this office its application for a patent from the United States to it the said company for its certain Placer Mining Claim containing 1166 58-100th acres of land, yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda, the same being commonly known and called as the "MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," situate in the Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo county, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the United States Surveyor General for California as survey number 2196, and as lots number 37, 39 and 41, in (unsurveyed) Township number 27, north of range one east, and township number 27 north of range two east, San Bernardino base and meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof now on file in this office, as follows, viz: (with magnetic variation at 15 degrees and 31 minutes east):

Commencing at a post marked M B D, No. 1; being the southwest corner of said MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE, from which the corner between townships 26 and 27 north, range 1 east, on the San Bernardino meridian bears west, distant three hundred and forty-two and 27-100 (342 27-100) chains, and a white chalk stone monument at the southeast corner of the Desert Borate Deposit Mine, marked C D number forty-eight (48), southeast corner bears north seventy-one (71) degrees seventeen (17) minutes west, distant two hundred and ten and 54-100 (210 54-100) chains, and mineral monument number thirty-four (34) bears north twenty-three (23) degrees fifteen (15) minutes west, distant three hundred and seventy-six and 50-100 (376 50-100) chains. Thence,

FIRST COURSE:

North twenty-two (22) minutes east, thirty-nine (39) chains and fourteen (14) links to a stake marked M B D No. 83, being the northwest corner of said MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE. Thence,

SECOND COURSE:

East thirty-nine (39) chains and nineteen (19) links to a stake marked M B D No. 82, on side of a hill sloping southwest from which a stake marked M B D No. 2 bears south eighteen (18) minutes east, distant thirty-nine (39) chains and forty one (41) links. Thence,

THIRD COURSE.

South eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-six (56) minutes east thirty-nine (39) chains and ninety-three (93) links to a stake marked M B D No. 81 on the northeast slope of small white ridge, from which Monte Blanca bears north fifty three (53) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant fifteen (15) chains. Thence,

FOURTH COURSE.

South twenty-two (22) minutes west nine (9) chains and forty-four (44) links to a stake marked M B D No. 80. Thence,

FIFTH COURSE.

South eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-six (56) minutes east thirty-nine (39) chains and fifty eight (58) links to a post marked M B D No. 78, from which mineral monument number thirty-seven (37) bears south eighty-six (86) degrees fifty-five (55) minutes east, distant ten (10) chains and five (5) links. Thence,

SIXTH COURSE.

South eight (8) minutes east nine (9) chains and ninety-eight (98) links to a stake marked M B D No. 77 on bank of small wash on white hills. Thence,

SEVENTH COURSE:

South eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-three (53) minutes east twenty (20) chains and six (6) links to a stake marked M B D No. 76. Thence,

EIGHTH COURSE:

South eight (8) minutes west nineteen (19) chains and ninety-four (94) links to a stake marked M B D No. 75A from which Monte Blanca bears north fifty-six (56) degrees west. Thence,

NINTH COURSE:

South thirty-five (35) minutes west nine (9) chains and ninety eight (98) links to a stake marked M B D No. 65. Thence,

TENTH COURSE:

South eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-two (42) minutes east ten (10) chains and eight (8) links to a stake marked M B D No. 74 on north end of white ridge from which Monte Blanca bears north fifty-five (55) degrees west. Thence,

ELEVENTH COURSE:

South twenty (20) minutes west nine (9) chains and eighty-nine (89) links to a stake marked M B D No. 73, from which Monte Blanca bears north forty nine (48) degrees fifty-five (55) minutes west, Black Summit bears south twenty (20) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant fifteen (15) chains and mineral monument number 37, bears north twenty-two (22) degrees twenty-one (21) minutes west. Thence,

TWELFTH COURSE:

North eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-eight (48) minutes east ten (10) chains and twenty-three (23) links to a stake marked M B D No. 72. Thence,

THIRTEENTH COURSE:

South fifteen (15) minutes east ten (10) chains and three (3) links to a stake marked No. 71, on side of main ridge. Thence,

FOURTEENTH COURSE:

South eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east forty-two (42) chains and ninety-six (96) links to a center of wagon road coming southeast from Camp Wash, forty-nine (49) chains and seventy-three (73) links to a stake marked M B D No. 69, from which Furnace Butte bears south seventy-five (75) degrees ten (10) minutes east, Rock Crag bears south fifty-nine (59) degrees east, Monte Blanca bears north sixty-one (61) degrees fifteen (15) minutes west. Thence,

FIFTEENTH COURSE:

South fifteen (15) minutes east six (6) chains and fifteen (15) links to wagon road, nine (9) chains and ninety-three (93) links to stake marked M B D No. 68 on left bank of Camp Wash. Thence,

SIXTEENTH COURSE:

North eighty nine (89) degrees forty-nine (49) minutes east one (1) chain and twenty four (24) links to center of wagon road, nine (9) chains and ninety-eight (98) links to stake marked M B D No. 67. Thence,

SEVENTEENTH COURSE:

South five (5) minutes east nine (9) chains and eighty-nine (89) links to a stake marked M B D No. 66. Thence,

EIGHTEENTH COURSE:

South eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes east nineteen (19) chains and ninety (90) links to a post marked M B D No. 65. Thence,

NINETEENTH COURSE:

South seven (7) minutes east nine (9) chains and sixty-nine (69) links to a stake marked M B D No. 64. Thence,

TWENTIETH COURSE:

North eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east nineteen (19) chains and thirteen (13) links to a stake marked M B D No 63, from which Monte Blanca bears north sixty (60) degrees fifteen (15) minutes west, Furnace Butte bears south eighty-three (83) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east, distant about one hundred (100) chains. Thence,

TWENTY-FIRST COURSE:

South fifteen (15) minutes east nine (9) chains and seventy two (72) links to a stake marked M B D No. 62. Thence,

TWENTY-SECOND COURSE:

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty (50) minutes east ten (10) chains and three (3) links to a stake marked M B D No. 61, in mound of rocks from which Furnace Butte bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant about eighty-nine (89) chains; Rock Crag bears south sixty two (62) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant about forty-one (41) chains. Thence,

TWENTY-THIRD COURSE:

South one (1) minute east ten (10) chains to a stake marked M B D No 60. Thence,

TWENTY-FOURTH COURSE:

South eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-eight (48) minutes east ten (10) chains and six (6) links to a stake marked M B D No. 59, on white hills from which Rock Crag bears south seventy-one (71) degrees ten (10) minutes east about twenty-eight (28) chains mineral monument number 40 bears south seven (7) degrees ten (10) minutes east, distant about one hundred and fifteen (115) chains. Thence,

TWENTY FIFTH COURSE.

South seven (7) minutes west ten (10) chains and fourteen (14) links to a stake marked M B D No. 58 from which Rock Crag bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees east, distant about twenty-six (26) chains and fifty (50) links. Thence,

TWENTY-SIXTH COURSE:

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty (50) minutes east nine (9) chains and eighty (80) links to a stake marked M B D No. 57, in mound of earth on right bank of small ravine. Thence,

TWENTY-SEVENTH COURSE:

South three (3) minutes east ten (10) chains and six (6) links to a stake marked M B D No 56, Thence,

TWENTY-EIGHTH COURSE.

South eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-five (55) minutes east nineteen (19) chains and ninety three (93) links to a stake marked M B D No. 55, on south slope of hill sixty-four (64) links west of center of wagon road. Thence,

TWENTY-NINTH COURSE.

South twenty-three (23) minutes east ten (10) chains and four (4) links to a post marked M B D No. 54A, being the southeast corner of the MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE, and the northeast corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, from which post mineral monument number 40 bears south ten (10) degrees twenty-six (26) minutes west, distant eighty-seven (87) chains mineral monument number 37 bears north fifty-two (52) degrees fifteen (15) minutes west. Thence,

THIRTIETH COURSE.

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-eight (58) minutes west along the north boundary of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine ten (10) chains eighteen (18) links to wagon road in Buckboard Wash, thirty-nine (39) and eighty-five (85) links to center of wagon road in Camp Wash, fifty-eight (58) chains ninety-nine (99) links to post marked M B D No. 21, being northwest corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, and from which mineral monument No. 40 bears south twenty-seven (27) degrees east. Thence,

THIRTY-FIRST COURSE.

North eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-one (41) minutes west twenty (20) chains and seven (7) links to a stake marked M B D No. 20. Thence,

THIRTY-SECOND COURSE.

North twenty-four (24) minutes west nineteen (19) chains and ninety-six (96) links to a stake marked M B D No. 19. Thence,

THIRTY-THIRD COURSE.

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-six (56) minutes west nineteen (19) chains and ninety-one (91) links to a stake marked M B D No. 18 Thence,

THIRTY-FOURTH COURSE.

North five (5) minutes west ten (10) chains and three (3) links to a post marked M B D No. 17, from which mineral monument No. 40 bears south thirty-five (35) degrees five (5) minutes east. Thence,

THIRTY-FIFTH COURSE

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-five (55) minutes west ten (10) chains to a stake marked M B D No. 16. Thence,

THIRTY-SIXTH COURSE.

North twelve (12) minutes east ten (10) chains and two (2) links to a stake marked M B D No. 15. Thence,

THIRTY-SEVENTH COURSE.

South eighty-nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west nineteen (19) chains and eighty (80) links to a stake marked M B D No. 14, from which Furnace Butte bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees forty (40) minutes east, Monte Blanca bears north forty-two (42) degrees twenty (20) minutes west. Thence,

THIRTY-EIGHTH COURSE.

North fifteen (15) minutes west twenty (20) chains and two (2) links to a stake marked M B D No. 13A. Thence,

THIRTY-NINTH COURSE.

North nine (9) chains and ninety-three (93) links to a stake marked M B D No. 13. Thence,

FORTIETH COURSE.

North eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty-three (53) minutes west thirty (30) chains and nine (9) links to a stake marked M B D No. 12. Thence,

FORTY-FIRST COURSE.

North ten (10) minutes east nine [9] chains and ninety-nine [99] links to a stake marked M B D No. 11, a stake marked M B D No 75 bears north forty-five [45] minutes east. Thence,

FORTY-SECOND COURSE.

North eighty-nine [89] degrees forty-five [45] minutes west nineteen [19] chains and seventy-five [75] links to a stake marked M B D No. 10, from which Monte Blanca bears north thirty-eight [38] degrees twenty-two [22] minutes west Thence,

FORTY-THIRD COURSE.

North two [2] minutes west nine [9] chains and ninety-four [94] links to a stake marked M B D No 9. Thence,

FORTY-FOURTH COURSE.

North eighty-nine [89] degrees forty-five [45] minutes west nineteen [19] chains and eighty-three [83] links to reference stake marked M B D No. 8, thirty-nine [39] chains fifty-nine [59] links to reference stake marked M B D No 7, fifty-eight [58] chains and forty-nine [49] links to a stake marked M B D No. 6. Thence,

FORTY-FIFTH COURSE.

North fifteen [15] minutes east nine [9] chains and ninety-seven [97] links to a stake marked M B D No. 5. Thence,

FORTY-SIXTH COURSE.

West eleven [11] chains and twenty-five [25] links to a stake marked M B D No 4. Thence,

FORTY-SEVENTH COURSE.

North nine [9] chains and ninety-six [96] links to a stake marked M B D No. 3, from which mineral monument No. 37 bears north sixty-three [63] degrees ten [10] minutes east. Thence,

FORTY-EIGHTH COURSE.

South eighty-nine [89] degrees thirty-six [36] minutes west nineteen [19] chains and fifty-five [55] links to a stake marked M B D No 2. Thence,

FORTY-NINTH COURSE

North eighty-nine [89] degrees fifty-seven [57] minutes west eight [8] chains and thirty-nine [39] links to a side line stake in stone monument across Monte Blanca canyon thirty-nine [39] chains and sixty [60] links to a stake marked M B D No. 1, and place of beginning, containing eleven hundred and sixty-six and fifty-eight hundredths [1166 58-100] acres.

Said Mineral Monument No. 37 is of durable sandstone, four [4] feet long and one [1] foot square for a distance of three [3] feet from the base, from which it is beveled to six [6] inches square at the top, in which is securly fastened a brass plate marked M M No. 37. N S E W S B M.

It is placed two feet in the ground. It is four hundred and seventy-one [471] chains and eighty five [85] links east and twenty-nine [29] chains and five [5] links north of the township stake on the San Bernardino meridian between townships numbers 26 and 27 north. From said mineral monument No. 37 mineral monument No. 40 bears south thirty-six [36] degrees ten [10] minutes east, distant about two hundred and seventy [277] chains and fifty [50] links; Monte Blanca bears north seventy-two [72] degrees forty [40] minutes west, distant about sixty-four [64] chains and thirty [30] links.

The above described MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE, hereby sought to be patented as survey No. 2196, lots Nos. 37, 39, 41, consists of those certain borate locations known and recorded as the C. C. Clay location, Jno. Garber location, J. J. McGillivray location, J. T. Cochran location, B. H. Coleman location, W. B. Robertson location, C. C. Coleman location, T. M. Smith location, records whereof may be found at pages from seventeen [17] to twenty-nine [29], both inclusive of Liber A of records of Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, and also in Book D, pages 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, of Land, Water and Mining claims kept at the office of the County Recorder of Inyo county, California.

Adjoining claims consist, so far as known surely, of the South Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2193, which joins this claim on the south

Attention is called to the plat and notice now posted upon said Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2196, Lots Nos. 37, 39 and 41, and to the plat and field notes and other papers on file in this office in said application for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said Meridian Mining Company.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within six y [60] days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

—BY THE—

Harmony Mining Company,

....FOR THE...

"DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE."

The same being a Placer Claim, Officially surveyed and designated as SURVEY NO. 2154, LOT NO. 38, in (unsurveyed) T. 27, N., R. 1 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, in Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California.

Notice No. 246.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
BODIE, CALIFORNIA,
April 14, 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE HARMONY MINING COMPANY, a Corporation of the State of California, having its principal office, Postoffice address and place of business at San Francisco, California, has, by CHARLES L. WILSON, its duly authorized special agent, and Attorney in fact, who resides at Coleman, in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California, and whose nearest Postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and State of California, this day filed in this office its Application for a Patent from the United States, to it, the said Company, for its certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 1927. 22 100 acres of land, yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda; the same being commonly known and called the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" situate in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the U S Surveyor General for California as Survey No 2154, and Lot No thirty-eight (38), in (unsurveyed) Township number twenty-seven (27), north of range number one (1) east, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof, now on file in this office, as follows, viz: [with magnetic variation at fifteen degrees thirty-one minutes east], Commencing at a Chalk Stone Monument marked "C D No 1—N E Cor," on the margin of dry bed of lake, being the northeast corner of location No 12, and the northeast corner of this, the said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE;" from which "Mineral Monument No 34" bears south, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north sixteen (16) degrees fifty (50) minutes west, distant ten (10) chains and eight (8) links; the east end of furnace bears south fifty-three (53) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant five (5) chains and fifty-five (55) links; "Winters Peak" bears north sixty-eight (68) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; thence running from said chalk-stone monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor,"

First course—South at eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links reach "Mineral monument No 34," and stake marked "C D No 64;" at twenty (20) chains and twenty-seven (27) links reach a stake marked "C D A A," situate on north side of a butte, from which a stake marked "C D No 34" bears west, distant thirty nine (39) chains and fifty seven (57) links; at twenty-five (25) chains and ninety-seven (97) links reach base of butte; at thirty-nine (39) chains and twenty-seven (27) links cross a "wash" running northwest; at thirty nine (39) chains and eighty nine (89) links reach a stake marked "C D No 63," from which a stake marked "C D, No 36" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant seventy (70) chains and twenty-seven (27) links; at sixty (60) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D Z," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears west distant twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (29) links; at sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety-three (93) links reach a stake marked "C D, No 62," from which a dead mesquite limb, one (1) foot in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears north six (6) degrees thirty (30) minutes west distant two (2) chains and seventy-eight (78) links; and the right bank of Furnace Wash bears south forty-four (44) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; the above mentioned stake, marked "C D No 62," being at the end of said first course of this survey, at a point bearing south and distant sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety-three (93) links from said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor;" thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 62."

Second Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty-nine (29) links to a stake marked "C D No 61," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears north, distant nine (9) chains and eighty-three (83) links; thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 61."

Third Course—South, at ten (10) chains and forty-one (41) links reach stake marked "C D B B" from which a stake marked "C D No 35" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant seventy (70) chains and thirty-nine (39) links; and at twenty (20) chains and forty-seven (47) links south from the said stake marked "C D No 61" reach a stake marked "C D No 60" at the end of said third course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 60."

Fourth Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty two (22) links to a stake marked "C D No 59;" thence

Fifth Course—South, at nine (9) chains and ninety-nine (99) links reach a stake marked "C D W" from which a stake marked "C D O" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant sixty-nine (69) chains and forty-one (41) links, and a dead limb of mesquite bush, ten (10) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south forty two (42) degrees and forty five (45) minutes east, distant three (3) chains and eighty two (82) links; at nineteen (19) chains cross a "wash" running west and at the distance of thirty (30) chains and twenty-three (23) links south from said stake marked "C D No 59" reach a stake marked "C D No 58" at the end of said fifth course; thence running from the said stake marked "C D No 58"

Sixth Course—West, at thirty (30) links reach a stake marked "C D No 58 A" from which a stake marked "C D No 57" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy three (73) links; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 58 A,"

Seventh Course—South, at four (4) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at thirteen (13) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running southwest; at twenty-four (24) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at sixty six (66) chains cross a wash running southwest; at one hundred and one (101) chains and forty eight (48) links reach a stake marked "C D No 80," from which a stake marked "C D No 53" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy-three (73) links; a limb of a mesquite bush six (6) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant two (2) chains and three (3) links, and at the distance of one hundred and twenty-one (121) chains and seventy-one (71) links south from said stake marked "C D No 58 A" reach stake marked "C D No 51 A," being at the end of said seventh course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 51 A."

Eighth Course—East thirty (30) links to a stake marked "C D No 51;" thence

Ninth Course—South, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-two (22) links reach stake marked "C D 5," from which a stake marked "C D No 46" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees, thirty (30) minutes west, distant forty-nine (49) chains; and at forty (40) chains and forty-nine (49) links south from said stake marked "C D No 51" reach a stake marked "C D No 50," at the end of said ninth course, from which the right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 50."

Tenth Course—West ten (10) chains to a stake marked "C D No 49;" thence

Eleventh Course—south ten (10) chains and eighteen (18) links to a Chalk-stone Monument four (4) feet long and one (1) foot square, marked "C D No 48, S E Cor," from which Chloride Peak bears north one (1) degree five (5) minutes east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-six (36) degrees eight (8) minutes west; and right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east. Thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 48, S E Cor," from which Telescope Peak bears south thirty-six (36) degrees eight (8) minutes west; and right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east. Thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 48, S E Cor."

Twelfth Course—West thirty-nine (39) chains and seven (7) links to a stake marked "C D No 47," at the southwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections thirty (30) and thirty-one (31) of Township twenty seven (27), north of range one (1) east bears north eighty-three (83) degrees five (5) minutes west, distant one hundred and seven (107) chains and thirty (30) links; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-on (31) degrees fifty (50) minutes west; Winter's Peak bears north fifty-one (51) degrees ten (10) minutes east, and the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north fifty five (55) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 47."

Thirteenth Course—North thirty (30) chains and twenty-eight (28) links to a stake marked "C D No 46;" thence

Fourteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and eleven (11) links to a stake marked "C D No 45;" thence

Fifteenth Course—North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-six (26) links reach a stake marked "C D No 44," and at forty (40) chains and fifty four (54) links reach a stake marked "C D No 43," the same being at a point bearing north and distant forty (40) chains and fifty-four (54) links from said stake marked "C D No 45." Thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 43."

Sixteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and five (5) links to a stake marked "C D No 42," from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north seventy-five (75) degrees east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-four (34) degrees forty (40) minutes west, and north end of Black Ridge bears north seventy-eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 42."

Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 33½."

Twenty-fourth Course—North eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes east thirty nine (39) chains and fifty-two (52) links to said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D N 1, N E Cor" the place of commencement, containing nineteen hundred and twenty-seven (1927) acres and twenty-two hundredths (22 100) of an acre. Said Mineral Monument No 34" consists of a durable sandstone four (4) feet long set two (2) feet deep in the ground. It is six (6) inches square at the top, whereon is fastened a brass plate marked "N E S W S B M M M No 34," and is situated on the back-bone of a Butte bearing northwest and southeast at a point distant a few chains southeast from the highest point of said butte, which has an altitude of about two hundred (200) feet and a length of about fifty (50) chains; said Butte being situated on the east side of Death Valley and on the margin of the dry bed of the lake.

From said "MINERAL MONUMENT No 34," "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; Winters Peak bears north sixty-seven (67) degrees forty (40) minutes east; "Telescope Peak" bears south twenty-nine (29) degrees forty (40) minutes west; stake marked "C D No. 3" of the "Winters Borate Deposit Mine," bears north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant thirty-two (32) chains and ninety-one (91) links; a stone monument marked "C D No 1 at the northeast corner of the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" bears north, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north seven (7) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes west, distant twenty-one (21) chains; the north bank of "FURNACE WASH" at entrance of wash to valley bears south thirty-one (31) degrees thirty (30) minutes east distant one hundred and eighty-two (182) chains and fifty (50) links; "Cement House" at Greenland bears south fifteen (15) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant one hundred and seventeen (117) chains and "MINERAL MONUMENT No. 33" bears from said "Mineral Monument Number 34," north nine (9) degrees twenty-four (24) minutes west at the distance of four hundred and forty two (442) chains and sixty-seven (67) links by traverse calculation.

The above described "DESERT BORATE DEPOSITE MINE" hereby sought to be patented as Survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, consists of those certain borax mining locations locally known and recorded as "Location No 12," "Location No. 13," "Location No. 14," "Location No. 15," "Location No. 16," "Location No. 17," "Location No. 18," "Location No. 19," "Location No. 20," "Location No. 21," "Location No. 22," "Location No. 23," "Location No. 24," "Location No. 25," "Location No. 26," "Location No. 30," and "Location No. 31," record whereof may be found at pages from 79 to 174 of Liber A of the Mining Records of said Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, kept at the office of the Mining Recorder in said District, record thereof being also found in "Book C" and "Book D" of "Land, Water and Mining Claims," kept at the office of the County Recorder, at Independence, Inyo County, California

Adjoining claims unknown, if any such exist. The nearest officially surveyed claim to this on the north being the "WINTERS BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" or "Survey No. 2153," "Lot No. 37 and 38," the southeast corner whereof is situated at a point bearing north twenty-five (25) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant twenty-two (22) chains and fifty five (55) links from the said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor," at the place of commencement of the foregoing survey and description of this claim.

Attention is called to the Plat and Notice now posted upon said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," or Survey No. 2154, Lot No 38, and to the Plat, Field Notes and other papers on file in this office in said application, for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said "HARMONY MINING COMPANY."

This application is made pursuant to the terms of Chapter VI of Title XXXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and the laws of Congress regulating the disposal of mineral lands in the public domain.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty (60) days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

The End of a Baked Bean Banquet.

Probably as laughing a thing as has been seen for a long time took place at Janesville at the Grand Army reunion a few weeks ago. There was to be a baked bean banquet for the visiting veterans, and half the families in town furnished a pan of baked beans for the occasion, sending them to the armory late in the afternoon piping hot. A couple of boys, sons of a soldier, were entrusted with a pan of red-hot beans to take down town, and they put the pan on a hand-sled and started. Arriving at the top of the hill where the road runs straight down into the business street, the temptation was too great, and the boys got on the sled with the pan of beans in front of them, steaming hot. They started. Every crossing they struck, a job of beans would fly out, and before they were half way down the hill the boys were covered from head to foot with beans. They shut their eyes and let the sled go. A girl stood by the crossing as they passed, and as the sled struck a hummock a handful of beans hit the girl in the hair, and as the hot mass began to heat up she felt as though the hairs of her head were numbered, and put her hand to her head, and when the beans burned her hand she yelled fire, and went away on the gallop. A dog ran alongside the sled and barked at the boys, but a quart of beans struck the dog, and the weather was too warm for him, and he ran away with a hot box. The sled finally turned over, and boys, beans and sled rolled and slid for half a block, and the street was paved with good intentions and baked beans. The circumstance was related to the soldiers, and the empty pan, the hand-sled and the boys decorated with beans, created as much amusement for the old veterans as any one thing could.—[Peck's Sun.

The Next Shakespeare to be a Woman.

At certain times in the world's progress great minds arise to readjust conditions of thought that are already existing, and to give impetus to great ideas that are lying dormant, or are beginning to resolve themselves into tangible form. Of the three great and wonderful minds—Homer, Dante and Shakespeare—whose thought had created and molded the thought of ages, two at least, Dante and Shakespeare, have done much to place a nobler and higher estimate on woman and her wonderful relations to the world. It would seem that since the appearance of Dante at the horizon, dispelling the clouds and revealing the dawn of modern thought, man has grown more tender and reverent to woman, while she, on her part, has enlarged the sphere of her activities by the cultivation of those heaven-born faculties that were originally bestowed alike on man and woman, though varying in kind. To woman's thought the world of to-day is greatly indebted, and having achieved what she has already achieved, no human power can arrest her progress up and onward to higher, better things. It is not impossible nor improbable, in the sequence of events, that in order to accomplish the intellectual redemption of the sex, there may arise in this land a woman that shall be the fourth great mind of the world, a mind that shall, like Shakespeare's, be an instrument to unfold a new philosophy and higher and nobler truths than man has yet uttered to man. But it will be a mind that is glorified and illumed by those beautiful and delicate feminine qualities that are so divinely human. And as nature's laws are revealed through this new agency, they will be transmuted and shine in dazzling beauty, and the world will be ashamed of its ugliness, and will shake off its grosser tendencies and renew its youth, and man and nature will be more akin in purity and beauty. Women thus will be divinely appointed to promote and bring about the moral redemption of the world.—[F. Heard, in the Manhattan.

The high license law of Illinois, called the Harper law, which fixes the liquor license for selling spirituous liquors at $500, and for beer selling at $150, in the city of Chicago, works practically in this way: It has already reduced the number of licensed liquor saloons in Chicago more than five hundred; it is bringing into the city treasury cash at the rate of $1,250,000 a year. It has not, of course, closed up all the drinking shops in Chicago; it is not likely to do that, nor is any other law which could be devised or enacted; but that it will greatly diminish the amount of rum sold and drank cannot be doubted; that it will compel the traffic to pay back to the community a large portion of what it is compelled to pay in taxes for the expense of pauperism and crime, is obvious. Is there no good in high license as a help to sobriety, and as a compensating agency for the inevitable evils and burdens of the liquor traffic? If the number of liquor saloons licensed in Jersey City, now 1,046, were reduced to 500, and each one of these had to pay a license fee of $150, the city treasury would receive $125,000, more than enough to pay all the expenses of our police force. Why should not the rum traffic be made to pay the police work? If no rum were sold or drank, we should scarcely need any police force at all. Make that which creates the necessity for a police pay the cost of supporting it.

He Knew It was Shad.

A Philadelphian, who was lying very sick in the West, kept calling for shad. His friends, unable to procure the fish, were in despair until a man who had been raised in the East struck a bright idea.

"Give him a fine comb fried in batter," he said, "and perhaps he won't be able to tell the difference.."

They gave it to him, and as the sick man's teeth struck into the small teeth of the comb, a happy smile broke over his face, and he murmured:

"Yes, that's shad. No other fish has sach a sweet taste and so many bones."

Why is a gun like a jury? It goes off when dicharged.

Does Mining Pay.

The Chicago Mining Review says: "From the best compiled statistics it is shown that capital, labor and property invested in metal mines of this country during the past thirty-five years may be safely estimated at $1,120,200,000, and the product (including the value of mines and machinery), may be safely placed at $2,760,000,000, thus conclusively proving that under all the adverse circumstances heretofore existing—without adequate transportation, high cost of labor and supplies, and crude methods of reducing the ores, it has produced the results above stated. This shows most clearly that for every dollar put into the gold and silver mines of this country during the last thirty-five years, more than two dollars have been taken out. This is a better showing than any other productive industry situated under the most favorable circumstances can make, with the advantage in favor of mining that its production remains as a permanent part of the nation's wealth and capital, and is one of the chief factors of human advancement and civilization.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JUNE 14,.....1884

CONKLIN FOR CONGRESS.

Under the above caption the Los Angeles Republican takes the subjoined item from the Bodie Free Press, suggested by THE INDEPENDENT, and adds an idea of its own:

THE INYO INDEPENDENT mentions Hon. A. R. Conklin as a candidate for the Republican nomination as Congressman from this (the Sixth) Congressional district. As a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor in the last Campaign Mr. Conklin ran nearly 6,000 votes ahead of Mr. Estee, a circumstance that is sure to command the attention of the nominating convention, which will be held in Los Angeles in September next.—Bodie Free Press.

There is no man that could be suggested by the northern portion of this district who would meet with a heartier support from Los Angeles than the Hon. A. R. Conklin, should he be honored with the nomination. He has already identified himself with Los Angeles, having purchased a homestead and built him a home in this city, with with a view to making this his future home. At present he is the second choice of Los Angeles county, and should our local candidates split up and divide, Mr. Conklin might become our first choice on the last ballot.—Los Angeles Republican.

While Los Angeles may be ambitious to be represented in Congress, it must be remembered that the Sixth Congressional District is a large one, made up of mountain and valley counties with diverse interests and industries which must be conciliated and adjusted. The Congressman from this District should be by experience adopted to weigh and adjust these matters.

The orange groves of Los Angeles, the wheat fields of Tulare, the lead veins of Inyo and the gold and silver mines of Mono may each require legislation.

If so, it should be just and harmonious, and our Congressman should be able by experience to deal justly by these several interests which have so little in common.

Judge Conklin would in Congress more fully represent these interests than any other man in the field. He is familiar with the wants of each county. If Los Angeles should be deemed entitled to the honor, then Judge Conklin can be truly said to be a resident of Los Angeles, for he owns at the present time, and has for more than a year past, a beautiful home in the city of Los Angeles, purchased for a family residence, and from the occupation of which he is kept only by the demands of his extensive practice in Inyo, he for years having been one of the leading lawyers of Inyo and surrounding counties, and is therefore unable at once to close up and adjust a business running back over a series of years. He is the only aspirant yet mentioned who really represents the entire district. He is fitted by learning, culture, experience and bearing to command attention and respect in the halls of Congress. It behooves us to nominate a man whom we can elect, and Judge Conklin is that man.

AMERICANS NOT WANTED.

It will be remembered that some two or three years ago Judge Hilton gave notice that Jewish guests would not be received at the Saratoga Hotel. A notice similar to this, it is said, has been served by the boniface of the Grand Hotel in London against all Americans. The reason assigned for this prohibition is that the hotel proprietors dislike the American "ice-water custom"—meaning, we presume, that they drink too much water and not enough beer. The proprietor of the house thinks he can get along without "Yankee patronage," and perhaps can, and good care should be taken by Americans to let him try the experiment.

The originator of the observance of Decoration Day is said to have been Mrs. Sarah J. Evans, who followed her husband into the Federal army a year after their marriage, and remained in it until the end of the war, a ministering angel to the wounded soldiers on the field and in the hospitals. Mrs. Evans must have been a good woman, but the institution which owes its origin to her genius is going to play the mischief with her sex for a generation to come. The women who make annual pilgrimages to the graveyards of the country upon a strictly emotional mission will never give birth to a race of fighting men.

MANY upright, honest bank officers in the East piously humiliated their friends and depositors recently out of confidence and money. A skedaddling and defsulting epidemic has raged, taking in small-potato curbstone brokers up to the national bankers and world-wide individual bankers, who turn out much like bucket-shop sharps. The trouble is that honest poor men are swindled out of their hard earnings while those who rob them still live on the fat of the land and wear fine clothes.

THE Democratic Conventions of San Joaquin and Stanislaus counties passed resolutions endorsing Congressman James H. Budd and recommend him for renomination. They also endorsed Governor Stoneman for convening the extra session of the Legislature.

TILDEN DECLINES.

A communication from Samuel J. Tilden, dated June 11, has been given to the Associated Press. He states that he considers he has faithfully borne his share of labor and care in the public service, and that, wearing the marks of its burdens, all he desires is an honorable discharge. He wishes to enjoy the repose of private life.

In the four years which have elapsed, nothing his occurred to weaken, but everything to strengthen, the reasons which influence his withdrawal from public life. The appeal made to him by the Democratic masses, with apparent unanimity, would at once inspire in him a disposition to do anything desired of him consistent with his judgment of duty. All this he expresses in his letter to the Chairman of the Democratic Committee of New York, and closes his communication as follows:

"I am, therefore, constrained to say definitely that I cannot now assume the labors of an administration or a canvass. Undervaluing in no wise that best gift of heaven, the occasion and the power sometimes bestowed upon a mere individual to communicate an impulse for good, grateful beyond all words to my fellow-countrymen who would assign such a beneficent function to me, I am consoled by the reflection that neither the Democratic party nor the Republican, for whose future that party is the guarantee, is now, or ever can be, dependent upon any man for their successful progress in the path of a noble destiny. Having given to their welfare whatever of health and strength I possessed of could borrow from the future, and having reached the term of my capacity for such labors as their welfare now demands, I but submit to the will of God in deeming my public career forever closed."

[Signed:] SAMUEL J. TILDEN.

THE CALIFORNIA COMMISSIONER TO NEW ORLEANS.—The California Commissioner to the New Orleans World's Fair, Col. A. Andrews, will call together the Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations to devise means to raise funds for a proper display of the State's productions at New Orleans. He has receiced a letter from E. N. Burke, Director-General of the Exposition, in which that gentleman says he will recommend that the management of the Fair subscribe $5,000 to that end. Colonel Andrews says $15,000 more will be necessary to make a proper display. C. C. Thomas, the Nevada Commissioner, will probably presently call together the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce. The latter will probably find it convenient to assemble at Empire City.

WHILE rewards and honors have been heaped upon the officers of the recent Soudan campaign, formal complaint has been made in the English House of Commons that Parliament has not recognized, so much as by a vote of thanks, the services of the common soldier who did the work in the desert. What has a common British soldier a right to expect beyond his shilling a day and his rations; he may be thankful if he don't get a few bullet holes in his corpus into the bargain.

AN old lady recently drove up to the White House at Washington, and announcing herself as "Queen Lucinda, of Louisville," asked to be put in possession of the mansion. She brought several trunks with her, and seemed much disappointed when refused admission.

JOHN B. GOUGH is one of the intellectual wonders of the world. We believe he is 76 years of age, has been more than forty years before the public as an orator, and is as fresh and interesting as at the beginning of his wonderful career.

THE ancient belief of Chinese writers was that there had been before the time of Confucious a period of 2,267,000 and some odd years, when the powers of heaven and earth first united to produce man as the possessor of the soil of China.

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of real estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by V G Thompson, the Administrator of the estate of G. C. Gracey, deceased, praying for an Order of Sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the debts, expenses and charges of administration.

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before the said Superior Court, on MONDAY, the FOURTEENTH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court-room of said Superior Court, at the Court-room, in said County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this Order be published at least four successive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California, incurred previous to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present, E Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding Indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS, incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved May 8th 1884, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each, and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883 and said bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo County, is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, take his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said Treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884 shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour last mentioned, or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders, if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer, and upon such payment being made the Bonds purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall sell or transfer it or them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of the bond or bonds transferred, and his Postoffice address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from said levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and Interest Coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of the said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund after setting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all notices herein required shall be directed to the Postoffice address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Floating Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said county. If any money shall remain in said Floating Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884, for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for a less sum than the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange

SEC. 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer, giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and Ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

SATURDAY, JUNE 14, ...1884

A Mournful Event.

The death of Elizabeth James, late wife of our worthy townsman, Walter James, Sr., on the 8th instant, produced a sadness in the hearts of all those who know and miss a mother's unequaled love. She was beloved by her family, and a host of friends will miss her presence. She had been slowly sinking for some time previous to her death. Gradually came a countenance that is not earthly, and "they knew that her spirit was pluming for flight." With the loss of the mother the keystone is removed from the family arch. The tender vine, with all its clinging tendrils, that bound an affectionate family in its loving folds, is shivered by the blighting shaft of Death's lightning. But memory again and again will bring back a dear image that softens the heart and dims the eyes with tears.

A GRACIOUS ACT.—It has been often said that the study and practice of the law makes men liberal. This was most generously illustrated on Tuesday last, upon the arraignment of Fong Chong, recently convicted of murder in the second degree, when Judge A. R. Conklin arose and said: "May it please the Court, I find this man unprotected, without counsel to save and defend his rights, and I therefore ask that I be entered upon the record as his counsel." A continuance was then asked for and granted until Wednesday, that counsel might prepare a motion for a new trial. On Wednesday Judge Conklin appeared and made a motion for a new trial, covering all points of alleged error and irregularity. His argument upon that motion was masterly and exhaustive, rising at times to pure and lofty eloquence, as he demanded of the court a patient investigation of his motion. His passionate plea for justice, setting forth the peril of doing a wrong to the meanest citizen of the commonwealth was a splendid effort, full of power and pathos. The trial of the motion exhausted the entire day. It was the free gift of a generous impulse to a poor and personally defenceless man.

CALICO.—Mr. Murphy and an engineer named Thompson are in town from Calico District, says the Bodie Free Press. They do not give as flattering accounts of the prospects of that section as some we have heard, but say that most of the deposits which were supposed to be ledges have proved to be mere "blankets" and have no depths, but can be easily quarried and the ore is profitable to mill. The most noted claims in the district are the King, Garfield, Burning Moscow. The Garfield, owned by Billy Raymond of the once famous Raymond and Ely, has been sunk on to a depth of 450 feet and shows strong indications of proving a valuable property. Raymond is making his prospecting pay by shipping his first-class ore to the smelters at the Bay and working the second grade at Daggett's mill at Hawley's station, on the Mojave river, eight miles from Calico. In East and West Calico about 300 men are working on leases and chloriding on tribute.

PERSONALS.—A. R. Conklin and family arrived from the city on Monday last....S. S. Barrie was in from the the Chrysopolis this week ...Frank Silva is in town....Tom Hutchinson paid us a visit this week....Dick Hession was down from Big Pine a few days ago....Sam Grover has been in town several days....Henry Levy and Walter Ober went to Lone Pine yesterday, to attend the school entertainment at that place....C. B. Rawson and T. F. A. Connelly were in town on business Wednesday....W. D. Roberts, A. J. Shipley and Perry Love were down from Round Valley yesterday.

FROM DEEP SPRING.—Coroner Brady has returned from his official trip to Deep Spring, in reference to the Chastaine estate. With the aid of Messrs. Billy Lake, Charles McMurry, Frank Witmore, Lew Payson and Billy Gill, the cattle were driven out to his place, numbering about 256 head. He intends to return for a few more, which are scattered, numbering twenty or thirty head.

AN OLD INYOITE.—Joe Fernbach has the oldest cat in the county. Fifteen years in feline felicity have left the old "Tom" somewhat aged. He successfully withstood the earthquakes and has lived through many of the events that beset our country's early history. Owing to a mishap in early youth no little Thomases will survive the aged feline.

GRADUATED.—Miss Maggie Conklin, a young lady reared in the pleasant valley of Owens River, graduated last week at San Jose, with the highest honors, and returned home with her proud father and mother last Saturday. Hosts of friends congratulate the young lady on her success, as she is a general favorite in Independence.

PROHIBITION LECTURE.—W. P. George lectured on the subject of Prohibition last Sunday evening, in the Court House. Quite an audience greeted him, and often applauded the well-worded ideas. As he intends lecturing in other places, we would recommend all those who can, to go and hear Uncle George.

SUPERIOR COURT.—When Fong Chong appeared before the Superior Court to be sentenced Tuesday, a motion for a new trial was made by A. R. Colklin. The motion was refused and Fong Chong was sentenced to ten years in San Quentin.

CANDIDATES.—Condidates should come to the front and keep their names before the public.

It is again becoming fashionable for girls to comb their hair back from their forehead. Great heavens! what is this world coming to? Must the innocent bang be banged out of existence? An exchange says the reason of the change is due to the fact that the girls are going to prove that they still have brains.

A superstitious subscriber who found a spider in a copy of a paper, writes to know if it is considered a bad omen. Nothing of the kind. The spider was simply looking over the columns of the paper to see what merchants were not advertising, so that he could spin his web across their store doors and let them be free from disturbances.

Since the war over 450,000 applicants for pensions have been granted, 150,000 rejected, and there are yet unsettled 250,000 applicants. A recent Act of Congress makes it much easier for applicants to make good their claims, and it will no doubt be followed with a large number of new applicants.

All kinds of bugs and worms will be found to be very plentiful in the gardens this season. Perhaps the best way to drive them off the plants and vines is to sprinkle the latter with water into which a little coal oil has been poured. All insects detest the taste and smell of coal oil and they are glad to hunt other quarters.

While planting potatoes the other day on ground which had been used for the same purpose last year, a gentleman made a discovery which shows how the troublesome potato bug takes care of himself during the winter months. He noticed little balls of dirt here and there on the ground which seemed to possess some life, and upon picking one of them up found a bug enclosed in the litle bunch of mud. Large numbers of them were found housed in this manner.

There is an invention spoken of which it is thought may abolish the bridle-bit. It is called the carrago, or anti-horse torture. It is composed of a steel band placed over the front bone of the horse's nose, and to this the reins are attached. The inventor claims for this substitute for the bit that it gives complete control to the driver over the horse without inflicting the least discomfort or torture on the animal itself. It has been tried with satisfactory results.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage told his congregation recently that "the printing press is the right agency on earth for good and evil. The minister of the gospel standing in a pulpit has a responsible position, but I do not think it as responsible as the position of an editor or a publisher. I believe the Lord intends the printing press to be the chief means for the world's rescue and evangelization, and I think that the greatest battle of the world will not be fought with swords or guns but with types and presses—a purified gospel literature trampling over, trampling down and crushing forevsr that which is depraved."

FLORAL OFFERINGS.—THE INDEPENDENT acknowledges the receipt of one of the handsomest boquets of the season at the hands of Mrs. J. R. Eldred and Miss Mina Tibbets—D. Crough lugger thereof. Many thanks are returned, and wishes that the donors are destined to preserve the bloom of youth and prosper long after the roses of many summers have faded away.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—On Sunday last a little boy of Mr. Tibbitts, while visiting at the residence of Mr. D. W. Clark, was attacked and severely bitten by a dog. Dr. Stevenson was called to attend the little sufferer, and reports his condition as promising.

FINE WOOL.—Mr. W. R. Tibbets, of Black Rock, has just shipped to Boston 5,000 pounds of wool, which was produced from 475 sheep. This is an encouragement to energy exerted in the wool-growing industry in Inyo county.

LOOKING FOR GOLD.—Robert Locket and Thomas Thomas left here Thursday for the Inyos on a prospecting tour. The boys had a pony loaded down with grub.

THE OLD CHASE MINE.

Modern Development of an Historical Property.

After some four years of patient effort on the part of Mr. S. S. Barrie, old Chryopolis district is taking the front as a gold-producer. The Maxim Mining and Milling Company, a New York corporation, have had their new five-stam mill in operation for the past week or so, but with what success is not yet ascertained. The partial clean-ups made, however, show well; in fact, there is no longer a doubt that when the new machinery gets into regular working order, weekly shipments of gold bullion will be sent forward to handsomely reimburse the New Yorkers for their outlay. About fifty tons of second grade ore has been crushed, and yesterday the mill began receiving the rich, fine ore from the Arastra mine. However, a full reference to the mill and other matters in connection will be given in a future article. The district is situated on the west side of the Inyos, about thirteen miles due north from this point, and across the river. In the galore days of the "Owen's River Excitement," many of the ledges now being worked were held and transferred at regular wild-cat rates; a ten-stamp mill was erected by San Francisco parties at great cost, the wreck of which stands there yet. But in the very incipiency of quartz mining it is little wonder that the operators failed to make the rich but somewhat rebellious ores yield up, so to speak. Complete success over them seems to have been reserved for the present day and for those at present and others who will in the near future engage in the work. The other day an INDEPENDENT representative accompanied Superintendent Barrie and others on a tour of inspection to what is well known as the CHASE MINE.

All old residents of Inyo and readers of this paper will remember Captain ——— Chase, the old man who alone and unaided toiled for seven long years in an unending hope of finally opening out his ledge, which for him would forever settle the question of bread, bacon and daily beans. As to how the retiring but proud old man did obtain the actual necessities of life during his long and lonely work, is only surmised; but at least he died, in this place, in 187–, in the kind care of his staunch friend, Uncle Abe Parker. As will appear further on, but for a miscalculation, his last work, if rightly done, would have reached his objective point, and he might have been a live and rich man to-day. The outcrop of the ledge is from two to three feet in width and only appears on the surface for twenty or thirty feet about the center of the location. The trend of the ledge is magnetic north and south, its course being distinctly marked for over half a mile, the enclosing formations being gneiss and syenite-granite. The ore zone is from fifty to one hundred feet in width, of a soft, "motherly" nature—all that could be asked for in which a ledge could "live" and "go down." It is comparatively in the foothills, somewhat detached from the main range. Its altitude is near to 6,000 feet above tide-water, but the peaks towering above it leaves open the mooted point as to whether or not it is high enough up to go deep enough down. The work done by chase consists of an open cut and shaft, on the upper hillside, south from the main shaft. Here in early days some remarkably handsome specimens of gold were taken out. About fifty feet below is a shaft 4x4, of a deph (estimated) of 90 feet. How one man alone could sink this is almost incredible, but he did, and besides ran a twenty-foot dritt southward twenty-odd feet, to where the ledge opened out to six feet wide. It stands vertical, with a smooth, clay-lined wall on the west, on the east a gangue of yellow, decomposed granite. Small seams of black clay streak laterally along between the ore seams. There is no massive or solid quartz in it, but some places show the presence of silver sulphurets, which may be taken as a good indication of a ledge more permanent than if composed of gold rock only. To reach this, and keep the fact of its existence a sealed book (which it has remained unopened until last November) was evidently the old miner's object. Down the cañon he began a narrow, crooked tunnel, which he dug for 284 feet. It is difficult now to see why he should have passed two small ore-veins without exploring them, or why he should finally have run through the same vein he sought for. It contained the same ore, but being but about twelve inches in width he perhaps thought it had no connection with the rich chimney in the shaft. In picking ground he ran thirty-odd feet beyond this, where his labor ceased. The Maxim company, however, drifted on this streak southward to the shaft, and disclosed to themselves the wealth contained in the hidden mystery of the Chase shaft. We remember having heard some wiseacres hereabous declaring that Chase's occasional assurances that he had a good show in there were due to spiritualistic hallucinations, but the revelations of time and the more important factors of the pick and shovel prove to the contrary as regards the spirit business. In very many respects the mine closely resembles some of the extensive blind ledges of the famous Standard mine of Bodie, and to an eye more or less experienced, looks altogether like it will finally prove to be just such a property

OFF FOR LONE PINE.—A merry party passed our office this morning, consisting of "our senior" and family, together with the Misses Lena and Minnie Thomson. They intend to be present at the Lone Pine School Entertainment, under the management of Mr. Charles Groves.

OFF AGAIN.—Sheriff Gregg left last evening for Bishop Creek, in company with Ah Fong Chung. From there the prisoner will have the pleasure of enjoying, after a trip to "the Bay" in company with Dr. S. G. George, the salubrious climate of San Quentin for the term of ten years.

A party of prospectors are now being made up in Los Angeles to visit Dsath Valley.

The Band of Hope Entertainment

The entertainment given for the benefit of the Independence Band of Hope on the evening of last Thursday, was well attended, the weather being considered. All during the afternoon the rain was falling, and did not cease until nearly dark. The hall was thrown open at about 8 o'clock, and in a short time was comfortably filled. It was tastefully decorated with flowers. The curtain rising at 8:30, a greeting song was sung by the following members of the Band of Hope: Lena Harris, Mary Zink, Katie Hardy, Ethel Hardy, Anna Kernodle, Maud Cook, May Glenn, May Parker, Elma Parker, Alice Rose, Mabel Chalfant, Emma Chalfant, Allie Zink, Huldah Harris, Emily Conklin, Bertie Levy, Dora Shepherd, Anna Thomson, Lena Thomson, Emma Kemp, May Shepherd, Frank Scherrer, Ernest Laird, Normie Mairs, Malcolm Glenn, George Rose, George Woods, Charles Rose, George Hardy, Horace Hardy, Arthur Shepherd, Clifford Baxter, Thomas Parker.

Miss Emma Kemp then sang "List to the Convent Bells," Miss F. C. Northrup furnishing an accompaniment. Following this came the "May Song," the May Queen, Ethel Hardy, having the following Maids of Honor: May Parker, Elma Parker, Mabel Chalfant, Huldah Harris.

The Flower Queen, Anna Kernodle, was crowned by her Maids of Honor in a pleasing ceremony. The following acted as Maids: Lena Harris, Katie Hardy, Maud Cook, May Glenn. The Flowers, represented by little girls, having paid their respects to the Queen, the Little Toadstools appeared. These were: Roland Laird, Bertie Levy and Emily Conklin. Each held above her head a parasol, the top of which had been covered with cotton to represent toadstools, and they really did present a striking resemblance to that vegetable. The toadstools gave some appropriate recitations, which were highly appreciatee by the audience.

Miss Maggie Conklin gave a recitation, and proved herself in it, as well as in an "Extract from Lady Teazle," which she read in the latter part of the programme, to be a first-class elocutionist.

The Tableau, "The First Love Letter," was well received.

Little Roland Laird gave some excellent "Advice to Little Boys."

Lena Harris elicited well deserved applause by her song, "Little Gypsy Jane."

The pathetic poem, "The Shop Girl's Sunday Rest," was well rendered by Miss Luella Shepherd.

Anna Kernodle and Aggie Glenn appeared in a character song, "Buy My Flowers," and were heartily applauded.

Miss Anna Malone, in a reading, advised the young men as to general morals and conduct.

"Billy Grimes" was acted out by Allie Rose, as the old lady, and Maud Cook as the daughter, and was, though short, the best dialogue of the evening.

"Billy Grimes" was followed by the comic dialogue, "The Bobtown School," with the following parts: G. Washington Wash, Teacher—Willie A. Chalfant. Pupils, Andy Allen, Lester Laird, Bill Brown, Harry Cook; Charly Cobb, George Woods; Dave Dean, George Rose; Elwood Elder, Ernest Laird; Frank Fogg, Frank Scherrer; George Gray, George Hardy; Henry Hope, Malcolm Glenn. The boys acquitted themselves very creditably.

May Glenn then related in a song what her "Grandma's Advice" was, very successfully.

Aggie Glenn entertained the meeting of the "Sewin' Society," by giving them the "latest news." The following took part in this: Aggie Glenn, Lena Harris, Katie Hardy, Anna Kernodle, Maud Cook, May Glenn, Allie Rose and Deacon Laird.

The next tableau was the most successful one of the evening. Two babes (fortunately on their good behavior) seated in a large basket, and propped up by pillows, represented the "Rising Generation."

Bert. Rhine delivered a story of the the workingmen's troubles in San Francisco.

Anna Kernodle played the "Mocking Bird March" on the organ. The performance was one that would have reflected credit on any one; but when the young lady's immature age is considered, it reveals considerable musical talent.

Joe. C. Harris recited "Guilty or Not Guilty," in a feeling manner.

Miss Lena Thomson delivered the poem, "Mary, Queen of Scots," in a style which suggested the deep and tragic experience of that unhappy queen. It was really a very creditable effort.

"The Precious Pickle" was the last dialogue of the evening. It was very successfully executed by the following young ladies: Miss Pease, Mary Zink; Mrs. Gabble, Emma Kemp; Sissy Gabble, Allie Zink; Sadie Bean, Lena Thomson; Jennie Frost, Annie Thomson; Bessy Snow, May Shepherd; and Juno, Miss Pease's colored help. "Juno" carried out her part faithfully,—as, indeed, did all—and the place could not have been filled better.

The next on the programme was a tableau, "He Loves Me, He Loves Me Not," by Lena Thomson and "Juno."

This tableau was followed by the comic piece of the evening, a duet called "Matrimonial Sweets," by Miss Emma Kemp and M. M. Glenn.

The regular programme was ended by a Grand March by the Band of Hope, which presented a fine appearance.

Miss Maggie Conklin gave a dramatic reading, before referred to, which was well received.

After the entertainment was over, refreshments, in the shape of ice-cream, strawberries, cherries, etc., were served in the hall. Every stand sold all it possessed, a few cakes alone remaining unsold. Bert. Rhine then mounted a chair and soon disposed of them to the highest bidders, for cash.

Taken altogether, the entertainment was about as successful as any ever given in Independence, though the receipts were not great. The net receipts were about $50. The programme was more than the usual length; and several songs and declamations were omitted, on account of the lack of time

Following are the committees in charge of the work, as first appointed:

On Programme.—Mrs. H. G. Kernodle, Miss F. C. Northrup, Luella Shepherd, Mrs. Glenn, Minnie Thomson.

Hall.—Mrs. M. M. Glenn, Mrs. J. W. P. Laird, Emma Kemp.

Refreshments.—Mrs. Hardy, Emma Kemp, Luella Shepherd, Minnie Thomson, Lena Thomson, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Eldred.

Decoration.—H. P. Cartier, May Shepherd, Anna Malone, H. C. Hamilton, W. A. Chalfant, H. G. Kernodle, Harry Cook.

To Mrs. H. A. Stubblefield, Misses Luella Shepherd and Minnie Thomson is due the great measure of credit for the successful management of the undertaking; and to these, as well as to Mrs. H. G. Kernodle, Geo. H. Hardy, Mrs. E. P. Hardy, Miss F. C. Northrup Emma Kemp, Lena Thomson, and others, for its successful execution; and to Miss Maggie Conklin, Bert. Rhine, and J. C. Harris, for assistance, in making the affair interesting.

COURT HOUSE YARD.—The alfalfa in the Court House yard is knee deep and is carefully protected from covetous calves, cows, horses, etc.

TRUSTEE.—The election for a Trustee of our school last week resulted in the unanimous re-election of Mr. Isaac Harris.

Commencing at a Chalk Stone Monument marked "C D No 1—N E Cor," on the margin of dry bed of lake, being the northeast corner of location No 12, and the northeast corner of this the said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE;" from which "Mineral Monument No 34" bears south, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the south west corner of "Cement Office" bears north sixteen (16) degrees fifty (50) minutes west distant ten (10) chains and eight (8) links; the east end of furnace bears south fifty-three (53) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant five (5) chains and fifty five (55) links; "Winters Peak" bears north sixty-eight (68) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; thence running from said chalk-stone monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor;"

First course—South at eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links reach "Mineral monument No 34," and stake marked "C D No 64" at twenty (20) chains and twenty-seven (27) links reach a stake marked "C D A A" situate on north side of a butte, from which a stake marked "C D No 34" bears west, distant thirty nine (39) chains and fifty seven (57) links; at twenty-five (25) chains and ninety seven (97) links reach base of butte; at thirty-nine (39) chains and twenty-seven (27) links cross a "wash" running northwest; at thirty nine (39) chains and eighty nine (89) links reach a stake marked "C D N 63," from which a stake marked "C D. No 36" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant seventy (70) chains and twenty seven (27) links; at sixty (60) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D Z," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears west distant twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (29) links; at sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety-three (93) links reach a stake marked "C D. No 62," from which a dead mesquite limb, one (1) foot in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears north six (6) degrees thirty (30) minutes west distant two (2) chains and seventy eight (78) links; and the right bank of Furnace Wash bears south forty-four (44) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; the above mentioned stake marked "C D No 62," being at the end of said first course of this survey, at a point bearing south and distant sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety three (93) link from said chalk stone Monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor;" thence, running from said stake marked "C D N 62"

Second Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (29) links to stake marked "C D N 61," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears north distant nine (9) chains and eighty three (83) links; thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 61"

Third Course—South, at ten (10) chains and forty-one (41) links reach stake marked "C D A B" from which a stake marked "C D N 38" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west distant seventy (70) chains and thirty-nine (39) links; and at twenty (20) chains and forty-seven (47) links south from the said stake marked "C D N 61" reach a stake marked "C D N 60" at the end of said third course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 60"

Fourth Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty two (22) links to a stake marked "C D No 59;" thence

Fifth Course—South, at nine (9) chains and ninety nine (99) links reach a stake marked "C D W" from which a stake marked "C D O" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant sixty-nine (69) chains and forty-one (41) links, and a dead limb of mesquite bush, ten (10) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south forty two (42) degrees and forty five (45) minutes east, distant three (3) chains and eighty two (82) links; at nineteen (19) chains cross a "wash" running west and at the distance of thirty (30) chains and twenty-three (23) links south from said stake marked "C D No 59" reach a stake marked "C D No 58" at the end of said fifth course; thence running from the said stake marked "C D No 58"

Sixth Course—West, at thirty (30) links reach a stake marked "C D No 58 A" from which a stake marked "C D No 57" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy three (73) links; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 58 A,"

Seventh Course—South, at four (4) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at thirteen (13) chains and forty eight (48) links cross a wash running southwest; at twenty four (24) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at sixty six (66) chains cross a wash running southwest; at one hundred and one (101) chains and forty eight (48) links reach a stake marked "C D No 80" from which a stake marked "C D No 53" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy three (73) links; a limb of a mesquite bush six (6) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant two (2) chains and three (3) links, and at the distance of one hundred and twenty-one (121) chains and seventy-one (71) links south from said stake marked "C D No 58 A" reach stake marked "C D No 51 A" being at the end of said seventh course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 51 A."

Eighth Course—East thirty (30) links to a stake marked "C D No 51;" thence

Ninth Course—South, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-two (22) links reach stake marked "C D O," from which a stake marked "C D No 46" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees, thirty (30) minutes west, distant forty-nine (49) chains; and at forty (40) chains and forty-nine (49) links south from said stake marked "C D No 51" reach a stake marked "C D No 50," at the end of said ninth course, from which the right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 50."

Tenth Course—West ten (10) chains to a stake marked "C D No 49;" thence

Eleventh Course—South ten (10) chains and eighteen (18) links to a Chalk-stone Monument (4) feet long and one (1) foot square, marked "C D No 48, S E Cor;" from which Chloride Peak bears north one (1) degree five (5) minutes east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-six (36) degrees eight (8) minutes west; and right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east. Thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 48 S E Cor."

Twelfth Course—West thirty-nine (39) chains and seven (7) links to a stake marked "C D No 47," at the southwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections thirty (30) and thirty-one (31) of Township twenty seven (27), north of range one (1) east bears north eighty three (83) degrees five (5) minutes west, distant one hundred and seven (107) chains and thirty (30) links; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-one (31) degrees fifty (50) minutes west; Winter's Peak bears north fifty one (51) degrees ten (10) minutes east and the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north fifty five (55) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 47"

Thirteenth Course—North thirty (30) chains and twenty-eight (28) links to a stake marked "C D No 46;" thence

Fourteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and eleven (11) links to a stake marked "C D No 45;" thence

Fifteenth Course—North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty six (26) links reach a stake marked "C D No 44" and at forty (40) chains and fifty one (54) links reach a stake marked "C D N 43," this stake being at a point bearing north and distant forty (40) chains and fifty-four (54) links from said stake marked "C D No 45," Thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 43"

Sixteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and five (5) links to a stake marked "C D No 42," from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north seventy-five (75) degrees east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-four (34) degrees forty (40) minutes west and north and of Black Ridge bears north seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 42,"

Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 39,"

Eighteenth Course—East eighteen (18) chains and eighty six (86) links to a stake marked "C D No 38" Thence Nineteenth Course—North thirty four (34) chains and forty (40) links to a stake marked "C D No 37." Thence

Twentieth Course—East, at ten (10) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D A," from which a stake marked "C D N" bears south distant fourteen (14) chains and ninety one (91) links, and at twenty (20) chains and sixty-seven (67) links from said stake marked "C D N 37" reach a stake marked "C D N 36 A" at the end of said twentieth course. Thence

Twenty first Course—North, at six (6) chains reach stake marked "C D No 36" from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections seven (7) and eighteen (18) of Township twenty seven (27) north, range one (1) east bears west distant one hundred and thirty-two (132) chains and thirty five (35) links, and at twenty six (26) chains and twenty six (26) links from said stake marked "C D L No 36A" reach a stake marked "C D No 35" at the end of said twenty first course, from which Winter's Peak bears north sixty-nine (69) degrees east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 35,"

Twenty second Course—East thirty (30) chains and sixty six (66) links to a stake marked "C D No 34." Thence

Twenty third Course—North twenty (20) chains and fifteen (15) links to a stake marked "C D No 33½" at the northwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which White Peak bears north seventy (70) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east and Chloride Peak bears north fifty (50) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 33½"

Twenty-fourth Course—North eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes east thirty nine (39) chains and fifty-two (52) links to said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D N 1 N E Cor" the place of commencement, containing nineteen hundred and twenty-seven (192 27-100) acres and twenty-two hundredths (22 100) of an acre. Said Mineral Monument N 34" consists of a durable sandstone four (4) feet long set two (2) feet deep in the ground. It is six (6) inches square at the top, whereon is fastened a brass plate marked "N E S W S B M M M No 34," and is situated on the back bone of a Butte bearing northwest and southeast at a point distant a few chains southeast from the highest point of said butte, which has an altitude of about two hundred (200) feet and a length of about fifty (50) chains; said Butte being situated on the east side of Death Valley and on the margin of the dry bed of the lake.

From said "MINERAL MONUMENT N 34," "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; Telescope Peak bears north sixty-seven (67) degrees forty (40) minutes east; "Telescope Peak" bears south twenty nine (29) degrees forty (40) minutes west, stake marked "C D N. 3" of the "Winters Borate Deposit Mine," bears south seventeen (17) degrees forty-six (45) minutes west, distant thirty-two (32) chains and ninety-one (91) links; a stone monument marked "C D 1" at the northeast corner of the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" bears north distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north seven (7) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes west, distant twenty-one (21) chains; the north bank of "FURNACE WASH" at entrance of wash to valley bears south thirty-one (31) degrees thirty (30) minutes east distant one hundred and eighty-two (182) chains and fifty (50) links; "Cement Office" at Gerland bears south fifteen (15) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant one hundred and seventeen (117) chains and "MINERAL MONUMENT No. 33" bears from said "Mineral Monument Number 34" north nine (9) degrees twenty-four (24) minutes west at the distance of four hundred and forty two (442) chains and sixty-seven (67) links by traverse calculation.

The above described "DESERT BORATE DEPOSITE MINE" hereby sought to be patented as Survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, consists of those certain borax mining locations locally known and recorded as "Location No. 12," "Location No. 13," "Location No. 14," "Location No. 15," "Location No. 16," "Location No. 17," "Location No. 18," "Location No. 19," "Location No. 20," "Location No. 21," "Location No. 22," "Location No 23," "Location No 24," "Location No. 25," "Location No. 26," "Location No. 30," and "Location No. 31," record whereof may be found at pages from 79 to 174 of Liber A of the Mining Records of said Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, kept at the office of the Mining Recorder in said District record thereof being also found in "Book C" and "Book D" of "Land, Water and Mining Claims," kept at the office of the County Recorder, at Independence, Inyo County, California

Adjoining claims unknown, if any such exist. The nearest officially surveyed claim to this on the north being the "WINTERS BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" or "Survey No. 2153," "Lot No. 37 and 38," the southeast corner whereof is situated at a point bearing north twenty five (25) degrees forty five (45) minutes west distant twenty-two (22) chains and fifty-five (55) links from the said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N Cor," at the place of commencement of the foregoing survey and description of this claim.

Attention is called to the Plat and Notice now posted up on said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," or Survey No. 2154 Lot No 38, and to the Plat Field Notes and other papers on file in this office in said application, for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said "HARMONY MINING COMPANY."

This application is made pursuant to the terms of Chapter VI of Title XXXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and the laws of Congress regulating the disposal of mineral lands in the public domain.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty (60) days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JUNE 21,.....1884

NEW VOLUME.

With this issue THE INYO INDEPENDENT enters upon its XV volume and year.

For Congressman on the Republican ticket in the Sixth District, editorially remarks the Galt Gazette, the INYO INDEPENDENT mentions the name of Hon. A. R. Conklin, who made such a splendid race for Lieutenant-Governor two years ago. The Bodie Free Press thinks Mr. Conklin would be a popular candidate from the fact that for Lieutenant-Governor in the last campaign he ran nearly 6,000 votes ahead of Mr. Estee. Judge Conklin is an able man, a good speaker, and we hoped that he would be spared to make the race for Governor next time. However, there is time enough for him to go to Congress and then come back and be nominated for Governor. One thing is certain, the Sixth Congressional District cannot make a better nomination for Congress than Judge Conklin. He is a good lawyer, a true Republican, and if nominated will make a strong race for Congress.

Mr. Blaine submitted to two defeats that ought to have been Blaine victories, giving both Grant and Hayes a cordial support. He didn't bolt. He never thought of bolting. But the Arthur men and Independents are made of very different stuff. The majority having ruled at Chicago, their hearts are broken, and they threaten a bolter's ticket. Upon this the Democrats speculate upon their chances, and, should they succeed in selecting a man outside of the copperhead element, it would no doubt aid them in the dissatisfied Atlantic States. But the eggs should not be counted, etc., for there is many a Democrat who has signified his trust in Blaine.

IN THIS, the Sixth District, R. F. Del Vallé, of Los Angeles, a member of the State Senate, and a man of limited intellectual resources, was nominated, with a special view to securing the native Californian vote. In these days, however, the native Californian is too bright and well informed to be caught by such palpable chaff, and will vote for the man who is likely to make the best representative of their interests in Congress. Altogether, the Democratic State Convention was a gloomy, quarrelsome affair, as it could scarcely avoid being, sitting as it did in the grim shadow of approaching and inevitable defeat.

It is somewhat singular that, although all persons are willing to admit that there are many things they cannot do and many things they cannot comprehend, very few are willing to admit that there is anything they cannot criticise. If criticism merely means picking flaws and finding fault, it is certainly an easy task, considering that nothing is perfect; but, if we are to accept the definition given it by the best authorities, as "the art of judging," a certain reticence in its indulgingence would be highly becoming.

THERE is a movement on foot in all the principal cities of the middle States to boycott Harper's Weekly. Nast's first cartoon has appeared, but Curtis writes in a very mild, non-committal manner. It is to be regretted that some of the Harpers are not alive to look after that once powerful journal. The foundation of an influential journal can be shaken just as easily and quickly as the bank account of a great stock operator.

H. L. OSBORNE has leased the Bodie Free Press to H. C. Childs, who was at one time associated with P. A. Chalfant in the publication of this paper, and was manager of the Bodie Standard in its palmy days. THE INDEPENDENT wishes Mr. Childs unbounded success. Mr. Osborne has bought the Los Angeles Republican, which paper he will personally engineer.

There were 3,177,860,000 cigars made in this country last year and 35,000,000 imported, making 60 for every man, woman and child, or 250 for every man over 21. New York City is the center of the manufacturing business. It has nearly 4000 factories, employing 20,000 men, women and children, and makes 1,000,000,000 cigars a year.

THE voter is threatened with no less tan six national tickets this year, to be nominated by conventions called thus: Anti-monopoly, at Chicago, May 14th; Greenback-Labor, at Indianapolis, May 28th; Republican, in Chicago, June 3d, Anti-Masonic, in Chicago, June 19th; Democratic, in Chicago, July 8th, and Prohibition, in Pittsburg, July 23d.

SINCE the refusal of Mr. Tilden to accept the nomination for President, the Democracy have been casting about wildly for a man. So far, Allen G. Thurman seems to be the next choice.

The San Franciscan is dead. It was a good paper, though rather short lived.

THE BOLTERS.

The Record-Union does not believe there is any occasion to pile up fear on account of the Independent movement at the East. "It will not harm more than it will benefit the Republican candidates," says our esteemed cotemporary. There will be but this question in the campaign: "Are you for the Republican ticket or against it?" The Independents, with their solemn-visaged professors, must take one side or the other. If they attempt a third ticket, it will be but another form of giving adhesion to the Democracy. For every one who goes over to such a ticket Blaine and Logan will draw to them six men who have not been strong partisans, and who have voted independently these many years. The sophomoric men who revolt at the nomination of Blaine claim that they are protesting in the interest of what they deem good government. But do they hope to secure it as the result of a Democratic triumph? It would be an insult to their intelligence to assume it for an instant. They appreciate the history, aims and purposes of the Democratic party at too true a value not to know that no Democratic administration has or can give the Nation increased momentum in the direction of real progress. They know, as students of history, that from the time of the Court of Areopagus and the Assembly of Five Thousand to the present day no Democratic party has been an upbuilder, a constructor, but all uniformally have been pullers down. The Democratic party, as one historian puts it, in all forms, and in all countries where it has existed, has been a hotbed of political vagaries, the home of treasonable schemes against National liberty and equal rights, and no Democratic party in power has ever wrought out or conferred any substantial benefit on any people or country.

THE Los Angeles Republican concedes the right or honor to Inyo county in furnishing a Republican nominee for Congress. We feel safe to guarantee almost an unanimous vote in Mono county for Hon. A. R. Conklin should he be the candidate.—Bodie Free Press.

CARSON AND COLORADO ELECTION.—At the annual election of the stockholders of the Carson and Colorado Railroad Company, held at Hawthorne, Esmeralda county, Nevada, June 9th, 1884, the following Directors were elected, to serve for the ensuing year: H. M. Yerington, D. L. Bliss, W. D. Tobey, Alfred Helm, S. H. Wright and D. A. Bender, of Carson, and S. P. Smith, of San Francisco. At a subsequent meeting of the Board of Directors, H. M. Yerington was elected President and General Superintendent; D. L. Bliss, Vice-President; D. A. Bender, Secretary, and S. P. Smith, Treasurer. The following appointments were made by the General Superintendent: R. J. Laws, Assistant Superintendent; D. A. Bender, General Freight and Passenger Agent; R. H. Wright, Auditor; George T. ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California, incurred previous to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present, E. Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS, incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved May 8th, 1884, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each, and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have Interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883 and said Bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo County, is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, take his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884 shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour last mentioned, or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids, and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders, if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the Clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer, and upon such payment being made the Bonds purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall sell or transfer it or them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of the bond or bonds transferred, and his Postoffice address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from said levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and Interest Coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of the said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund after setting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all notices herein required shall be directed to the Postoffice address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Floating Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said County. If any money shall remain in said Floating Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884, for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for a less sum than the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange

SEC 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer, giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said Ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and Ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

E. ROBINSON,
Chairman.

Attest: THOMAS CROUGH,
[SEAL.] Clerk.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education met Wednesday, 18th inst., at room 14 Blaney House. Present—Superintendent C. H. Groves, J. H. Shannon, J. J. Gunn and Daniel Crough. President Chalfant being absent, J. H. Shannon was chosen President, pro tem. On account of hard times, only such changes in text books were made as was deemed necessary: Bancroft's New Readers were adopted, in place of Pacific Coast series; Eclectic Geography adopted, displacing Harper's; the text-books on Music and Drawing were changed. The Graphic System in writing was adopted in place of the Model Copy Book. Appropriate books were adopted to follow out the grammar course which does not necessitate any change. The Board then adjourned to meet at the next regular, stated meeting. Further will be said next week of the new text-books adopted.

SERIOUS CUTTING AFFAIR AT BENTON.—From Supervisor Wetherill the Bodie Free Press of the 16th, learns that Thomas Kelty, a prominent citizen of Benton, was assaulted by one McCabe (a son of Mrs. Russell) and so badly cut across the abdomen that serious results are entertained. It seems that one of Kelty's customers had deposited money at Kelty's house, and becoming intoxicated Kelty refused to let him have it for the time being. This appeared to exasperate McCabe, who was "working" the man for the money, hence the fracas. McCabe disappeared at once before the officers could act. Men at once started in pursuit, and so great was the indignation that it was believed the people would string up McCabe if captured.

ARMY WORMS.—The whole country between Independence and Mojave is alive with these destructive worms. Already the farmers and gardeners in this section are begining to feel the harm they are doing. What will be the damage to crops cannot now be estimated. Betwen this place and Lone Pine the road is lined with them.

Dr. Stevenson has on exhibition at his office a carp's head and tail. Two horns about four inches long project from the head, just between the eyes; while attached to the tail is a set of rattles precisely like those worn by the rattlesnake.

Three little misses, Huldah Harris, Emma Pat Conklin and Julia Crough, favored this office during the week with a call. Their dresses had outgrown them some twenty years, on this occasion, and they experienced considerable difficulty in engineering their trains.

APPRECIATED.—The Trustees so appreciated the services of C. H. Groves, as teacher of the Lone Pine school, that they unanimously agreed to retain him as Principal for the ensuing ten months' term, with the privilege of naming his Assistant. The whole people were earnest in their praise of the success he had made, and are pleased that he is to take charge of the school again. To the entire satisfaction and delight of the parents and children, Mr. Groves has already named Miss Eva Lee Shepherd, who is now visiting in Pleasantville, Iowa, as his Assistant. The regular ten months' term will begin on the first Monday in July, at which time Miss Shepherd ("teacher," as she is called by the school children of Lone Pine) is expected to be present to assume her scholastic duties. The school has been in a very prosperous condition, 65 pupils being enrolled.

THE MAXIM.—After a run of eight or ten days the new 5-stamp mill of the Maxim Company, at Chrysopolis, has hung up its stamps for a short time. We are not at liberty to state the exact result of workings of ores of the arastra and the Hope mines, upon which the company has been operating, but may generalize it by giving the fact that two chunks of fine gold, weighing respectively two and six pounds have been shipped. Superintendent Barrie started for New York Thursday, bent on matters pertaining to the erection of larger reduction works. A force of fifteen miners is at work day and night exploiting the mines and getting out ore for the next run, which will commence immediately after the mill boys get through their well-earned rest and Fourth of July racket.

THE FOURTH.—Great preparations are being made at Bishop Creek for the Fourth of July celebration, and without doubt it will be the best celebration ever witnessed in the county. If what we can now learn proves true, there will be a large turnout from all over the county, and office-seekers by the score will be on hand.

A HANDSOME BUTTON OF BULLION.—Superintendent Barrie brought in a handsome button of gold bullion from the Maxim mill Thursday morning, and took it to New York with him. He left on Thursday night's stage to catch the Carson bound train and goes direct to New York, and will probably be gone about three weeks.

A GOOD JOB.—Road Overseer Palmer has completed a splendid job on the Beveridge bridge by driving extra piles and bulkheading the east end. There is perfect safety in crossing it now, and the Road Overseer ought to know.

BASKET PICNIC.—On Thursday of last week there was a basket picnic at the Lone Pine school-house, given by the teacher and pupils. Everybody in Lone Pine and vicinity attended, and a very enjoyable time was had.

CLOSING EXERCISES.

Over Two Hnndred People Present at the Closing Exereises of the Lone Pine School—Decorations—A Ball in the Evening. Etc, Etc, Etc.

Friday of last week we attended the closing exercises of the Lone Pine school, Charles H. Groves, teacher. In the forenoon the weather was a little threatening, but by noon the clouds had cleared away and the sun came out warm and pleasant. At 1 o'clock the school children began to assemble at Begole's Hall, from whence they were to march to the school-house, where the exercises were to take place. Meantime, men, women and children on horseback and in vehicles of all descriptions poured into town from all directions, until the streets were fairly crowded. The scholars took up the line of march from the hall promptly and at 2 o'clock entered the school-room, closely followed by over two hundred visitors, many of whom, owing to smallness of the room, were compelled to stand in the ante-room and at the windows. The following programme was successfully carried out:

Instrumental Music—Professor Celaya, flute; Professor Castro, guitar; C. H. Groves, organ.

Chorus—"Hail, Smiling Morn;" by Zelia Meysan, soprano; Mrs. Veil, Eugenia Meysan, alto; Tom Treglown, Ed. Reynolds, tenor; Reuben Spears. C. H. Groves, bass.

"Fireman's Polka"—Mary Meysan, organ; Professor Celaya, flute; Professor Castro, guitar.

Full Chorus—"Gently Falls the Dews of Eve."

Valedictory—Eugenia Meysan.

At the conclusion of the exercises, Hon. J. M. Keeler was called upon and made some very appropriate remarks. THE INDEPENDENT representative said a few words in response to a call from those present. Mr. Lozano then addressed the audience in Spanish, and though we did not understand the drift of his remarks, those who did applauded heartily. Mr. Groves made a feeling talk to his pupils, thanked the friends of the school for their presence and invited everybody to remain in town and attend the ball in the evening.

"Home, Sweet Home," was then announced and all present invited to join in the old song. As the last notes died away, the band struck up "We Won't go Home 'Till Morning," and all took up the strain and marched out, more than pleased with the entertainment.

To particularize, where all did so well would be unfair and take up more space than we can spare. Suffice to say that the closing exercises of Lone Pine school reflected great credit on all who took part, and must have been gratifying to parents and the teacher. Too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Groves for the able manner in which he conducted the whole affair, and the hearty congratulations he received at the close evidenced the fact that his efforts were appreciated as they deserved.

Mottoes—On the blackboard were inscribed in a beautiful manner by Felix Meysan: "Toiling Hands Alone, the Builders of a Nation's Fame and Glory;" "Those Who Seek for Pearls Must Dive Below;" "Round by Round;" "Haste Not, Rest Not;" "Welcome."

Decorations—The school-room was handsomely decorated with evergreens, flowers and flags of the United States, Mexico, Chili, Germany and China. This was the artistic work of Ruperto Carrasco and Abe Diaz.

THE DANCE.

In the evening a very pleasant dance was enjoyed by a large number of people at Peterson's Hall. Messrs. Celaya and Castro furnished splendid music, and John Anton, James Moffett, Mike Lasky and C. H. Groves in charge of the floor did good service, while Paul Houard kept a strict eye on the door.

THE SUPPER.

The supper at the Whitney House, under the able management of Mrs. A. Stewart, Mrs. Pate and Web Walker was excellent.

Taking all in all, we are compelled to adopt the remark of a sage of that village in expressing the good time had there on Friday of last week: "Lone Pine against the world."

EXCURSION PARTY.—On Friday of last week a merry party of excursionists, made up of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Laws, Mrs. B. Pixley and two daughters, Miss Bardenwerper, and John Forbes of Hawthorne; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. T. Mills of Carson; the Misses Clement and Miss Jennie Sherman of Oakland, passed down the valley on a specia train, spending the night at Keeler City. After an hour or so spent on the next morning viewing the scenery around Owen's Lake, and in obtaining views of Mount Whitney, the parts proceeded to Bishop Creek where the afternoon was spent in drives among the green meadows and fields of that region, including an attack by the entire party on the celebrated "strawberry patch" of Al. Briggs, which was full of berries rare and ripe. Sunday was spent in fishing on Bishop Creek, the party being augmented by Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Briggs, S. D. Woods, Mike Tovey, Bud Stoutenborough, Al. Bowman, Ben. Williams and John Farrel. Several hours were devoted to fishing, when a splendid lunch was spread by Mrs. A. K. Briggs, whose skill in such matters is proverbial, and the merry, hungry crowd sat down to a feast fit for a king. After several hours whiled away in the delicious afternoon the party returned to town tired, but delighted with the days experience. In the cool of the evening they were driven to their car at the depot, and on Monday morning at an early hour departed for home. The party were much pleased with their trip, and were gratified by the splendid mountain scenery rising on every hand.

AN OUTLET FOR OUR FRUIT AND PRODUCE.—S. A. Knapp, Jr., of the firm of Knapp & Laws, Hawthorne, called on us Wednesday, and during the course of a conversation, informed us that his visit here for the most part was to talk with the farmers and fruit-growers of this valley in regard to a market, and if satisfactory arrangements could be made he would be able to handle considerable of the produce of the Owen's River Valley. There is quite a market at Hawthorne and the surrounding camps, and along the line of the C. & C. railroad. Mr. Knapp also remarked that his firm would prefer to purchase of the farmers of this valley than go elsewhere, if terms satisfactory to all parties could be made. Any communication on the subject addressed to Knapp & Laws, Hawthorne, Nev., will be promptly attended to.

LASKY MILL.—The following is a statement of ores crushed at the Lasky Mill, M. C. Lasky, Superintendent, Beveridge Mining District, from May 15th, 1884, to June 12th, 1884:

SCHOOL CLOSED. — Miss Northrup closed her private school yesterday, and the little folks now have a chance to run about, kick up their heels and feel indeed that vacation has come. Miss Northrup has managed the school very succcessfully, and with satisfaction to parents, as well as to pupils.

PINE MOUNTAIN.—S. P. Roberts was in from Pine Mountain last Monday. He thinks it will yet prove to be the best mining section in Inyo county. Mr. Roberts has several tons of ore ready for shipment to some furnace. He showed us some assays from ores at that point that went very high.

COURT MATTERS.—The week has been a dull one so far as Court and official business goes at the Court-house. We note, however, that the lawyers are congregating and the chances are that divers suits and litigation are on the tapis.

FOR SALE.—By reference to our new ads. it will be seen that Mrs. A. Stewart offers the Whitney House, Lone Pine, for sale. Here is a chance for any one who "knows how to keep hotel" to get one and make a fortune.

CITIZENSHIP. — Wm. McDonald, a native of Nova Scotia, was admmitted to citizenship in the Superior Court yesterday, witnessed as to residence, etc., by Messrs. J. R. Eldred and L. L. McAfee.

NEW STOCK.—H. Levy has just received a fine lot of liquors and cigars, which he deals out after his own pleasant style.

NOTRE DAME.

Miss Conklin's Poem at the Commencement Exercises.

The following poem, written by Miss M. S. Conklin, was delivered at the Notre Dame Commencement:

YOUTH, HEROISM, HUMANITY.

Let Clio praise her heroes,
And laud her kings of old,
For deeds of daring valor,
And gain of others gold.
Let poets sing the glory
Of troops in bold array,
The march of conquering heroes
In lands far, far away.

I choose my theme from records
Of noble deeds untold,
And 'mong the names that glitter,
In characters of gold.
I trace that of a maiden,
A simple, childish name,
But angeles twine around it,
Earth's purest wreath of fame.

Self-sacrifice heroic,
A widowed mother's child,
Upon her dawning girlhood,
No favoring Fortune smiled.
Life's uneventful, quiet,
Unbroken day by day,
Save by the homely duties
That ever marked her way.

Her home, a humble cottage,
Stood by a dark ravine,
Where the Des Moines' broad river
Breaks on the quiet scene.
The night that made the maiden
My theme of praise to-day,
Had draped the world with darkness
And veiled Heaven's stars away.

Soon broke the angry tempests,
In fury loud and fierce,
Breaking against the cottage,
Its wildness could not pierce.
The wind without raved hoarsely,
The rain in torrents poured,
And swells the surging river
Which madly scathed and roared!

Dashing against the barriers
That held it to its course,
Striving in vain for freedom,
In its overwhelming force.
Within her home, Kate Shelley,
A slender, childish form,
Safe sheltered from its fury,
Looks out on rain and storm.

Amidst the inky blackness
She sees a gleaming light
Shine forth for one brief moment,
Then vanish from her sight.
Swift as a fiery meteor
That cleaves the ebon skies
And leaves but deeper blackness
To meet the gazer's eyes.

What chills her blood with terror?
Why does she shrink and start?
What deadly fear is creeping
Around her warm young heart?
That gleam must be a headlight;
A train is swept away
By yonder bridgeless torrent,
Whose fury none could stay.

What precious lives, unconscious,
Have rushed to dreadful death!
And yonder chasm, wide gasping,
Has claimed their latest breath.
Her heart is filled with terror,
And pity for their fate;
And for oncoming hundreds,
That night what woes await!

The trains are onward sweeping.
How save them? None are there
To brave the raging tempest,
And what can childhood dare?
They must be warned of danger,
And death defeated be,
And youth, with love heroic,
Must teach humanity.

No time for tender partings,
No time for tears or sighs;
Out, out, into the wildness——
Of lightning cloven skies.
Alone she dares the tempest
Of raging wind and rain,
And life and limb she perils
To save the coming train.

Soon on her view arises
The structure bridging o'er
The Des Moines' swollen currents,
She hears the sullen roar;
She falters one brief moment,
And fear her speed arrests,
Then clinging to the trestle,
The wild winds bravely breasts.

Amidst the cold and darkness
She struggles on her way,
No light to guide her footsteps
Or lessen her dismay;
No loving voice to cheer her—
With bleeding hands and feet,
A shildish, shivering figure,
'Mid the wild rain and sleet.

Onward, still onward she presses,
She gropes her unknown way;
She hears the maddening river,
She feels the blinding spray;
She loses hold and footing;
Oh! unseen Angels save
The life that lives for others
From that wild, watery grave.

At last! the task is ended,
And land once more is gained,
Tho' hands and feet are bleeding,
And garments rent and stained,
She heeds them not, fearing only
That precious time is lost,
And lives she sought to ransom
Even at her own life's cost.

Oh joy! the light is streaming
Forth from the station near,
Her heart is filled with gladness,
And hope dispels her fear;
She sinks upon the threshold,
Her blanched lips can but say:
"Speed, speed, the warning message,
The bridge is swept away."

No sooner heard than echoed,
The news, o'er trembling wires,
Adown the line is flashing,
Winged by electric fires;
And through the storm and darkness,
And through the wind and rain,
They hear, 'mid deafening thunders,
The swift oncoming train.

That with its human burden
Halts ter or struck before
The wild and yawning torrent
That leads to Death's dark door.
Saved, spared to hearts and households,
That else in sorrow left,
Had mourned in helpless anguish
Of every joy bereft.

They gaze upon the currents
So swollen, black and wild.
They raise to God their pleadings
That He will bless His child.
My heroine's task is ended,
But ours begins to-day,
Before us, through the future,
Stretches our unknown way.

And there are bridgeless rivers,
And Honey Creeks of praise,
But like the electric pulses,
The memory of past days,
Will warn in storm and darkness
Even as an Angel's hand;
Heaven bless Columbia's daughters,
The Headlights of our land!

MISS M. S. CONKLIN.

TO PUT IN ROLLERS.—A. N. Bell, proprietor of the Oak Creek Flouring Mill, is making due preparations for putting in rollers. When the mill is ready to turn out flour, Mr. Bell will be able to furnish as fine a quality of that article as any man in California.

North eighty-nine [89] degrees fifty-seven [57] minutes west eight [8] chains and thirty-nine [39] links to a side line stake in stone monument across Monte Blanca canyon thirty-nine [39] chains and sixty [60] links to a stake marked M B D No. 1, and place of beginning, containing eleven hundred and sixty-six and fifty-eight hundredths [1166 58-100] acres.

Said Mineral Monument No. 37 is of durable sandstone, four [4] feet long and one [1] foot square for a distance of three [3] feet from the base, from which it is beveled to six [6] inches square at the top, in which is securly fastened a brass plate marked M M No. 37. N S E W S B M.

It is placed two feet in the ground. It is four hundred and seventy-one [471] chains and eighty five [85] links east and twenty-nine [29] chains and five [5] links north of the township stake on the San Bernardino meridian between townships numbers 26 and 27 north. From said mineral monument No. 37 mineral monument No. 40 bears south thirty-six [36] degrees ten [10] minutes east, distant about two hundred and seventy [277] chains and fifty [50] links; Monte Blanca bears north seventy-two [72] degrees forty [40] minutes west, distant about sixty-four [64] chains and thirty [30] links.

The above described MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE, hereby sought to be patented as survey No. 2196, lots Nos. 37, 39 41, consists of those certain borate locations known and recorded as the C. C. Clay location, Jno. Garber location, J. J. McGillivray location, J. T. Cheran location, B. H. Coleman location, W. B. Robertson location, C. C. Coleman location, T. M. Smith location, records whereof may be found at pages from seventeen [17] to twenty-nine [29], both inclusive of Liber A of records of Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, and also in Book D, pages 261, 262, 263, 264, 265, 266, 267, 268, 269, 270, of Land, Water and Mining claims kept at the office of the County Recorder of Inyo county, California.

Adjoining claims consist, so far as known surely, of the South Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2193, which joins this claim on the south

Attention is called to the plat and notice now posted upon said Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2196, Lots Nos. 37, 39 and 41, and to the plat and field notes and other papers on file in this office in said application for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said Meridian Mining Company.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty [60] days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

NOTICE

—OF THE—

Application for Patent

—BY THE—

Harmony Mining Company,

....FOR THE...

"DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE."

The same being a Placer Claim, Officially surveyed and designated as SURVEY NO. 2154, LOT NO. 38, in (unsurveyed) T. 27, N., R. 1 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, in Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California.

Notice No. 246.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, BODIE, CALIFORNIA, April 14. 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE HARMONY MINING COMPANY, a Corporation of the State of California, having its principal office, Postoffice address and place of business at San Francisco, California, has, by CHARLES L. WILSON, its duly authorized special agent, and Attorney in fact, who resides at Coleman, in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California, and whose nearest Postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and State of California, this day filed in this office its Application for a Patent from the United States, to it, the said Company, for its certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 1927. 22-100 acres of land, yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda; the same being commonly known and called the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" situate in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the U S Surveyor General for California as Survey No 2154, and Lot No thirty-eight (38), in (unsurveyed) Township number twenty-seven (27), north of range number one (1) east, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof, now on file in this office, as follows, viz: [with magnetic variation at fifteen degrees thirty-one minutes east] Commencing at a Chalk Stone Monument marked "C D No 1—N E Cor," on the margin of dry bed of lake, being the northeast corner of location No 12, and the northeast corner of this, the said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE;" from which "Mineral Monument No 34" bears south, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north sixteen (16) degrees fifty (50) minutes west distant ten (10) chains and eight (8) links; the east end of furnace bears south fifty-three (53) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant five (5) chains and fifty-five (55) links; "Winters Peak" bears north sixty-eight (68) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor,"

First course—South at eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links reach "Mineral monument No 34," and stake marked "C D No 64;" at twenty (20) chains and twenty-seven (27) links reach a stake marked "C D A A," situate on north side of a butte, from which a stake marked "C D No 34" bears west, distant thirty nine (39) chains and fifty seven (57) links; at twenty-five (25) chains and ninety seven (97) links reach base of butte; at thirty-nine (39) chains and twenty seven (27) links cross a "wash" running northwest; at thirty nine (39) chains and eighty nine (89) links reach a stake marked "C D No 63," from which a stake marked "C D, No 36" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant seventy (70) chains and twenty seven (27) links; at sixty (60) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D Z," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears west distant twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (29) links; at sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety-three (93) links reach a stake marked "C D, No 62," from which a dead mesquite limb, one (1) foot in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears north six (6) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant two (2) chains and seventy eight (78) links; and the right bank of Furnace Wash bears south forty-four (44) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; the above mentioned stake, marked "C D No 62," being at the end of said first course of this survey, at a point bearing south and distant sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety three (93) links from said chalk stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor;" thence, running from said stake marked "C D N, 62"

Second Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (29) links to a stake marked "C D N 61," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears north, distant nine (9) chains and eighty-three (83) links; thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 61"

Third Course—South, at ten (10) chains and forty-one (41) links reach stake marked "C D B B" from which a stake marked "C D No 38" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west distant seventy (70) chains and thirty-nine (39) links; and at twenty (20) chains and forty-seven (47) links south from the said stake marked "C D No 61" reach a stake marked "C D No 60" at the end of said third course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 60."

Fourth Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty two (22) links to a stake marked "C D No 59," thence

Fifth Course—South, at nine (9) chains and ninety-nine (99) links reach a stake marked "C D W" from which a stake marked "C D O" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant sixty-nine (69) chains and forty-one (41) links, and a dead limb of mesquite bush, ten (10) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south forty two (42) degrees and forty five (45) minutes east, distant three (3) chains and eighty two (82) links; at nineteen (19) chains cross a "wash" running west and at the distance of thirty (30) chains and twenty-three (23) links south from said stake marked "C D No 59" reach a stake marked "C D No 58" at the end of said fifth course; thence running from the said stake marked "C D No 58"

Sixth Course—West, at thirty (30) links reach a stake marked "C D No 58 A" from which a stake marked "C D No 57" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy three (73) links; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 58 A,"

Seventh Course—South, at four (4) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at thirteen (13) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running southwest; at twenty-four (24) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at sixty six (66) chains cross a wash running southwest; at one hundred and one (101) chains and forty eight (48) links reach a stake marked "C D No 90," from which a stake marked "C D No 53" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy-three (73) links; a limb of a mesquite bush six (6) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant two (2) chains and three (3) links, and at the distance of one hundred and twenty-one (121) chains and seventy-one (71) links south from said stake marked "C D No 58 A" reach stake marked "C D No 51 A," being at the end of said seventh course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 51 A."

Eighth Course—East thirty (30) links to a stake marked "C D No 51;" thence

Ninth Course—South, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-two (22) links reach stake marked "C D 5," from which a stake marked "C D No 46" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees, thirty (30) minutes west, distant forty-nine (49) chains; and at forty (40) chains and forty-nine (49) links south from said stake marked "C D No 51" reach a stake marked "C D No 50," at the end of said ninth course, from which the right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 50."

Tenth Course—West ten (10) chains to a stake marked "C D No 49;" thence

Eleventh Course—South ten (10) chains and eighteen (18) links to a Chalk-stone Monument four (4) feet long and one (1) foot square, marked "C D No 48, S E Cor" from which Chloride Peak bears north one (1) degree five (5) minutes east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-six (36) degrees eight (8) minutes west; and right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east. Thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 48, S E Cor."

Twelfth Course—West thirty-nine (39) chains and seven (7) links to a stake marked "C D No 47," at the southwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections thirty (30) and thirty-one (31) of Township twenty seven (27), north of range one (1) east bears north eighty three (83) degrees five (5) minutes west, distant one hundred and seven (107) chains and thirty (30) links; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-on (31) degrees fifty (50) minutes west; Winter's Peak bears north fifty-one (51) degrees ten (10) minutes east, and the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north fifty five (55) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 47."

Thirteenth Course—North thirty (30) chains and twenty-eight (28) links to a stake marked "C D No 46;" thence

Fourteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and eleven (11) links to a stake marked "C D No 45;" thence

Fifteenth Course — North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-six (26) links reach a stake marked "C D No 44," and at forty (40) chains and fifty four (54) links reach a stake marked "C D No 43," the same being at a point bearing north and distant forty (40) chains and fifty-four (54) links from said stake marked "C D No 45," Thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 43"

Sixteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and five (5) links to a stake marked "C D No 42," from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north seventy-five (75) degrees east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-four (34) degrees forty (40) minutes west, and north end of Black Ridge bears north seventy-eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 42,"

Seventeenth Course—North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty four (24) links reach a stake marked "C D R," from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections nineteen (19) and thirty (30) of Township twenty-seven (27), north of Range one (1) east bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees west, distant eighty-seven (87) chains and fifty-six (56) links; a stake marked "C D T" bears north eighty nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant forty nine (49) chains and twenty-two (22) links; at forty (40) chains and forty-two (42) links reach a stake marked "C D Q," from which a stake marked "C D U" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant forty-nine (49) chains and twenty one (21) links; at sixty (60) chains and sixty-eight (68) links reach a stake marked "C D No. 41," from which a stake marked "C D No 55" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant forty nine (49) chains and twenty seven (27) links; at eighty (80) chains and ninety two (92) links reach a stake marked "C D P" from which stake marked "C D V" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant fifty-nine (59) chains and thirty-three (33) links; at one hundred and one (101) chains fifteen (15) links reach a stake marked "C D No 40," from which the Section stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections eighteen (18) and nineteen (19) of Township twenty-seven (27) north of Range one (1) east, bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees fifty (50) minutes west, distant ninety (90) chains and eleven (11) links, and a stake marked "C D No 57" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant fifty nine (59) chains and twenty-six (26) links; at one hundred and twenty-one (121) chains and thirty four (34) links reach a stake marked "C D O," and at one hundred and forty-one (141) chains and fifty seven (57) links from said stake marked "C D No 42" reach a stake marked "C D No 39" at the end of said seventeenth course, from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears south sixty-seven (67) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, "Winter's Peak" bears north sixty-five (65) degrees thirty five (35) minutes east, and Chloride Peak bears north three (3) degrees forty (40) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 39,"

Eighteenth Course—East eighteen (18) chains and eighty six (86) links to a stake marked "C D No 38" Thence

Nineteenth Course — North thirty-four (34) chains and forty (40) links to a stake marked "C D No 37" Thence

Twentieth Course—East, at ten (10) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D M," from which a stake marked "C D N" bears south diatant fourteen (14) chains and ninety one (91) links, and at twenty (20) chains and sixty-seven (67) links from said stake marked "C D No 37" reach a stake marked "C D No 36 A" at the end of said twentieth course. Thence

Twenty first Course—North, at six (6) chains reach stake marked "C D No 36" from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections seven (7) and eighteen (18) of Township twenty seven (27) north, range one (1) east bears west, distant one hundred and thirty-two (132) chains and thirty-five (35) links, and at twenty six (26) chains and twenty (20) links from said stake marked "C D No 36A)" reach a stake marked "C D No 35" at the end of said twenty first course, from which Winter's Peak bears north sixty-nine (69) degrees east The ce running from said stake marked "C D No 35,"

Twenty-second Course—East thirty (30) chains and sixty-six (66) links to a stake marked "C D No 34." Thence

Twenty-third Course — North twenty (20) chains and fifteen (15) links to a stake marked "C D No 33½," at the northwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which Winter's Peak bears north seventy (70) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east and Chloride Peak bears north fifty (50) minutes east Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 33½,"

Twenty-fourth Course—North eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes east thirty nine (39) chains and fifty-two (52) links to said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D N 1. N E Cor" the place of commencement, containing nineteen hundred and twenty-seven (1927) acres and twenty-two hundredths (22 100) of an acre. Said Mineral Monument No 34" consists of a durable sanostone four (4) feet long set two (2) feet deep in the ground It is six (6) inches square at the top, whereon is fastened a brass plate marked "N E S W S B M M M No 34," and is situated on the back-bone of a Butte bearing northwest and southeast at a point distant a few chains southeast from the highest point of said butte, which has an altitude of about two hundred (200) feet and a length of about fifty (50) chains; said Butte being situated on the east side of Death Valley and on the margin of the dry bed of the lake.

From said "MINERAL MONUMENT No 34," "Chloride Peak" bears north one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; Winters Peak bears north sixty-seven (67) degrees forty (40) minutes east; "Telescope Peak" bears south twenty-nine (29) degrees forty (40) minutes west; stake marked "C D N. 3" of the "Winters Borate Deposit Mine," bears north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant thirty-two (32) chains and ninety-one (91) links; a stone monument marked "C D No 1 at the northeast corner of the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" bears north, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north seven (7) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes west, distant twenty-one (21) chains; the north bank of "FUNCE WASH" at entrance of wash to valley bears south thirty-one (31) degrees thirty (30) minutes east distant one hundred and eighty-two (182) chains and fifty (50) links; "Cement House" at Greenland bears south fifteen (15) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant one hundred and seventeen (117) chains and "MINERAL MONUMENT No. 33" bears from said "Mineral Monument Number 34," north nine (9) degrees twenty-four minutes west at the distance of four hundred and forty-two (442) chains and sixty seven links by traverse calculation.

The above described "DESERT BORATE DEPOSITE MINE" hereby sought to be patented as Survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, consists of those certain borax mining locations locally known and recorded as "Location No 12," "Location No. 13," "Location No. 14," "Location No. 15," "Location No 16," "Location No. 17," "Location No. 18," "Location No. 19," "Location No. 20," "Location No. 21," "Location No. 22," "Location No 23," "Location No. 24," "Location No. 25," "Location No 26," "Location No. 30," and "Location No 31," record whereof may be found at pages from 79 to 174 of Liber A of the Mining Records of said Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, kept at the office of the Mining Recorder in said District, record thereof being also found in "Book C" and "Book D" of "Land, Water and Mining Claims," kept at the office of the County Recorder, at Independence, Inyo County, California

Adjoining claims unknown, if any such exist. The nearest officialy surveyed claim to this on the north being the "WINTERS BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" or "Survey No. 2153," "Lot No. 37 and 38," the southeast corner whereof is situated at a point bearing north twenty-five (25) degrees forty five (45) minutes west distant twenty-two (2.) chains and fifty-five (55) links from the said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor," at the place of commencement of the foregoing survey and description of this claim.

Attention is called to the Plat and Notice now posted upon said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," or Survey No. 2154, Lot No 38, and to the Plat, Field Notes and other papers on file in this office in said application, for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said "HARMONY MINING COMPANY."

This application is made pursuant to the terms of Chapter VI of Title XXXII of the Revised Statutes of the United States, and the laws of Congress regulating the disposal of mineral lands in the public domain.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty (60) days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

Application for Patent

BY Wm. T. COLEMAN.

...FOR THE....

"LOWLAND BORATE DEPOSIT MINE,"

The same being a Placer Claim, officially Surveyed and designated as Survey No 2197, Lot No 38 in Unsurveyed Township 26 North, Range 2 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian "Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District," County of Inyo and State of California.

Notice No. 248.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, BODIE, CALIFORNIA, June 9th, 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT Wm. T. COLEMAN, a citizen of the United States over the age of twenty one years, having his residence and postoffice address and place of business at the City and County of San Francisco, California, has, by Hermann Stablin, his duly authorized Special Agent and Attorney in fact, who resides at Amargosa in the Eagle Mountain Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and the State of California, and whose nearest postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and the State of California, this day filed in this office his application for a Patent from the United States for his certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 741 48 100 acres of land yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda, the same being commonly known as and called the "Lowland Borate Deposit Mine" situate in the Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the United States Surveyor General for California as Survey No. 2197, lot No 38, in (unsurveyed) Township No 26 North, Range 2 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof now on file in this office, as follows viz: (With magnetic variation at 15 degrees 31 minutes east)—Commencing at a stake marked M. B. D. No. 31, in a mound of rocks on the southwest slope of hill, being the northwest corner of the Lowland Borate Deposit Mine, from which mineral monument No. 40 bears north 42 degrees, 40 minutes east, distant four [4] chains and ninety six [96] links, a stake marked M. B. D. No. 30, at the southwest corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, bears south eighty-nine degrees, forty-five minutes west, distant forty four [44] chains, seventy four [74] links; thence

First Course—North 89 degrees 58 minutes east, along the south boundary of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine thirty [30] chains, to a stake marked M. B. D. No 30 A, being also the corner of the south Meridian Borate Deposit Mine; thence

Second Course—North 00 degrees, 20 minutes west, along the boundary line of South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine twenty [20] chains and thirty [30] links, to a stake marked M. B. D. No 28 B, from which mineral monument No 40 bears south 57 degrees, 35 minutes west, distant thirty-one [31] chains, eleven [11] links; thence

Third Course—South 89 degrees, 47 minutes, east, along the boundary line of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine thirty [30] chains and twelve [12] links, to a stake marked M. B. D. No 48, being the southeast corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, thirty-nine [39] chains and eighty-seven [87] links to a stake marked M. B. D. No 47, from which mineral monument No 40 bears south 76 degrees 3 minutes west, and Furnace Butte bears north 00 degrees, 45 minutes west; thence

Fourth Course—South twenty-nine [29] chains eighty-five [85] links, to a stake marked M. B. D. No. 46; thence

Fifth Course—North 89 degrees, 45 minutes east, eighteen [18] chains, ninety-four [94] links, to a stake marked M. B. D No 45; thence

Sixth Course—South twenty [20] chains, sixteen [16] links to a stake marked M. B. D No. 44, from which mineral monument No 40 bears north 68 degrees, 47 minutes west, Furnace Butte bears north 7 degrees, 45 minutes west, Rock Point bears south 67 degrees 05 minutes west, distant about twenty-five and fifty hundredths [25 50-100] chains; thence

Seventh Course—South 89 degrees 45 minutes west, twenty-nine [29] chains and twenty-two [22] links to a stake marked M B D No 43, from which mineral monument No. 40 bears north 54 degrees 8 minute west, Rock Point bears south 0 degrees 20 minutes east, distant about eleven [11] chains; thence

Eighth Course—South 15 minutes west thirty [30] chains and twenty-seven [27] links to a stake marked M. B. D. No 42 A, from which Rock Point bears north 10 degrees east, distant about twenty-one and fifty hundredths [21 50 100] chains; thence

BONDS!

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY TREASURER,
Independence, Inyo County, Cal., June 7th 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT

SEALED BIDS,

[Stating the Post office address of the bidder.] for the purchase of

Inyo County Bonds,

To the amount of

EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS,

Will be received at the office of the Treasurer of said County, until 12 O'CLOCK, NOON, of

Tuesday, the Fifteenth Day of July, 1884,

Said Bonds are for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars each, payable in United States Gold coin, at the Office of the Treasurer of said County, on the 15th DAY OF JULY, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of the County; bearing interest at the rate of SEVEN PER CENT. per annum, payable Semi-Annually at the office of said Treasurer, on the Fifteenth day of January and July of each year.

Said Bonds are issued by the Board of Supervisors in conformity with an Ordinance of said Board, dated the 28th day of May, 1884, and under the authority conferred upon said board by the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township Government," approved March 14th, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved March 8th, 1884.

No bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value, will be accepted, and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

The bidder to whom the purchase may be awarded will be required to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin, at the Office of the County Treasurer of said County, within ten days from date of the award.

WHY IT IS STRONG.

The Republican National ticket, Blaine and Logan, is the strongest ever offered for the suffrages of Republican voters. We say this advisedly, and from our own personal observation and knowledge of all the Republican Presidential tickets of the past. The intrinsic strength of the present ticket is greater than that of any of its predecessors. The circumstances of other campaigns have given a strength and support to some of the previous candidates, which present circumstances may not afford, but in its own merit and strength the Blaine and Logan ticket is the best we have ever had. The great struggles against the extension of slavery, the battle for free soil and free men, gave to the Fremont campaign its chief impulse and strength. This was increased and intensified in the first Lincoln canvass, and it carried Abraham Lincoln into the Presidency. Since that time the Republican party has been an organized force, and has achieved a most remarkable series of political victories; but in each case there has been, in the surrounding and attending circumstances, something which powerfully aided in making the ticket victorious. General Grant's military achievments made his first success as a Presidential candidate certain from the outset; the folly of the Democratic party in making Greeley their candidate in 1872 ensured Grant's second election; in 1876 the unsound financial doctrines of the Democratic party, the fear of the renewal of a business panic, the distrust of Tilden, helped Hayes to a victory; in 1880 the stupid deliverance of Hancock on the tariff question came in just at the right moment to pull the Garfield and Arthur ticket through successfully. There have been in all these contests other incidental helps to the Republican successes, and generally it may be observed that the Democratic capacity for blundering has always been a very powerful agency in contributing to Republican triumphs. None of the Republican National tickets have been bad; they have all had more or less of intrinsic merit and personal strength; but none of them have been, per se, so strong or popular, independently of attending or extraneous circumstances, as the Blaine and Logan ticket. Why is this ticket exceptionally strong? Because it is thoroughly representative in its Republicanism; because the candidates are exceptionably capable, strong, true and tried Republicans; because they were nominated by, and are the choice, and the favorites of the Republican masses, the rank and file of the party; because their election will give the country positive assurance ot a thoroughly American, vigorous, resolute, progressive, prosperous and popular administration; and, finally, last and least—but of some slight importance—the nomination of Blaine and Logan will rid the Republican party of the company of a small, uncomfortable squad of free trade cranks and political, Miss Nancy, goody-goodies, whose room is much better than their company. These are some of the reasons why we say the Blaine and Logan ticket is the strongest which the Republican party has ever put in the field. No Republican need entertain any apprehension as to the success of this ticket. It is to be and will be triumphantly elected, and largely because it ought to be. Viewed from a Republican stand point it is a most meritorious ticket. Is it not thoroughly representative in its character? Where can be found two men who, for the last twenty years, have been more conspicuously, or more honorably, identified with the work and the glory of the Republican party of this country, than James G. Blaine and John A. Logan? They have been in the fore-front of the battle in every political contest with the Democracy, and neither ever dodged, retreated or surrendered. They have been the unflinching and powerful advocates of Republican principles, and neither ever compromised a principle, or evaded an issue, or lacked the courage of his own convictions. Their record as consistent, earnest and vigilantly active Republicans is absolutely without reproach and beyond criticism; the party has never had, has not now, and never will have, more thoroughly representative men and leaders than Blaine and Logan. They are in strict alignment with the party and it is in complete harmony with them, and the representative character of the ticket, is one of its chief elements of intrinsic strength. When they are elected there will be neither doubt nor question in the mind of any intelligent citizen, as to what sort of an administration will follow. It will be a Republican administration in fact, not in name; it will be American through and through; it will be decisive instead of shilly-shallying, vigorous instead of tame, resolute instead of vacillating, and progressive instead of dormant and stationary. Blaine and Logan are peculiarly and emphatically strong candidates, because they were nominated as the choice of the people, and not of the managing politicians. Every man who was at the recent convention in Chicago, will admit this. There was a notable absence of the customary plotting and wire pulling, there was less of the "machine work" in politics than in any previous Republican National Convention; but on the other hand there was a popular desire and demand for Mr. Blaine's nomination, which could neither be ignored nor successfully resisted, and the people's orders were obeyed; and so soon as it was generally known that General Logan would accept the second place and serve his party there, the popular demand for his nomination was almost as strong as that which forced Blaine's candidacy. If the Republican party ever had a National ticket, which was the creation of the people who give the votes, it is the one which it now presents for the people's suffrages. This is the second, principal element of the intrinsic strength of the Blaine and Logan ticket. We regard the movement of the so-called "kickers" as an element of strength for the Republican party in this campaign. The man who, calling himself a Republican, is not satisfied with the Republicanism of James G. Blaine and John A. Logan, is a man whom the Republican party can well afford to spare; the man who refuses to support the ticket because his advice was not followed, because an overwhelming and wise majority would not surrender to a petty and unwise minority, is a man whose assistance in this campaign is not needed, and whose retreating to the rear will attract no attention; the man who objects to voting for Blaine and Logan, because they are not "good enough," is either an ignorant, moral pedant, or a political Pharisee whose own political record will bear very close watching. The free-trade kickers do the Republican party a substantial service—though they do not so intend it—when they kick themselves out of the party; and no little event could be more fortunate for the Republican party than the action of such journals as the New York Times in ceasing to masquerade in Republican uniform and coming out in their true colors as free-trade, brevet Democrats. So we say of all the departing kickers, bolters and deserters; check them off and let them pass out; their places will be quickly filled by better and more sensible men. The total defection from the Blaine and Logan ticket will not amount to an appreciable sum in the final outcome, but whatever it may be, the Republican party will be the better, and its ticket the stronger, for their leave taking. We don't object to tolerating an open enemy attacklog our intrenchments, but we do object to tolerating in our camp the bummer and the idler, who eats our rations and continually growls and swears because he is not made chief commissary. It is an element of strength in the Blaine and Logan ticket, and an evidence of its excellence, that it has so promptly started these impracticable, uncomfortable, self-righteous and unreliable fellows into desertion.

THE BOLTERS.

The following is from the pen of John I. Ginn, the publisher of the Homer Mining Index, in the town of Lundy, Cal., and refers to the faction that opposes the election of Blaine:

"This opposition comes from the most respectable, thoughtful, eminent and influential element of the old-line Republicans—men who, by reason of their high character and ability, have of right been leaders of men, and who will not be led by the rabble into inflicting a wrong upon their country nor into jeopardizing the best interests of the people, even though by so doing they might keep their own party in power."

Considering the fact that Mr. Blaine "stood in" so nobly with the working men of the Pacific Coast, the above seems not in good taste or keeping with the ideas of the honest miner or those that are benefited by the sweat of his brow; and John I. Ginn is the last man on earth we expected to see advocating any such bolting doctrine.

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present, E. Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of counties in certain cases," approved May 8th, 1883, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, redeemable at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and said bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo county is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, taking his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said Treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884 shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour last mentioned or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders, if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the Clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer, and upon such payment being made the Bonds purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall select and notify it or them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of the bond or bonds so reserved, and his postoffice address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo county, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from such levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and interest coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund, starting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all interest required shall be directed to the Post office address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Funding Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July 1883 and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said county. If any money shall remain in said Funding Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund.

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said Bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884 for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for an assessment on the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange.

SEC. 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

SATURDAY, JUNE 28,.....1884

PERSONAL.—N. G. Fairman, of New York, after a visit to the Bay, is again with us....J. S. Gorman still lingers at his home, but will go to Darwin shortly....Pap. Walker was in town Monday, gathering enthusiasm for the campaign... David Jeffreys, formerly County Clerk of Mono, with his wife and two daughters, passed through Independence last Monday, on his way to San Bernardino, where he intends to locate. On Monday W. D. Clark and family, formerly of Black Rock, passed through town, bound for San Buenaventura....Wm. S. Morton, of Fish Springs, was in town Monday....Miss Lena Harris returned from a week's visit to Lone Pine Wednesday....Supt. H. M. Yerington, Assistant Superintendent R. J. Laws, of the C. & C., Senator Reddy, Mr. Chas. Forman, expert, Superintendent Coffin, of the Sterling mine, and Barney Price, the jovial ex-Superintendent of the Northern Belle, have been in town during the week on the Silva case....Frank Fitzgerald, "Johnny" Gunn, My. Harmon, and John Eddy, of Darwin, have been seeing the sights in Independence for the past few days ...John Lubken, Chas. Levy, and Geo. H. Palmer came up from Lone Pine Wednesday....Mr. John Reynolds, of Eclipse, and Messrs. Barnes and Keyes of Beveridge were in town for a short time day before yesterday....Tom Clough was at Bishop Creek this week, looking at the political situation and figuring on his chances for the Clerkship....School Superintendent C. H. Groves is in town.

HOPE FOR BISHOP CREEK.—Wm. Irwin, who has been the father of Bodie and the prophet of the Standard mine for eight years, left on the V. & T. yesterday morning for Bishop Creek, where he will engage in active mining. He has purchased the famous Polita mine, which a few years ago attracted a great deal of attention, there being a large amount of ore in sight with all desirable facilities for working. The vein is in a limestone formation of a peculiar character, which many inexperienced prospectors would condemn, but the practiced eye of Mr. Irwin sees collateral for his money, and will at once go to work in a comprehensive manner to develop the property. He is a practical expert in mining, and if he don't make a success of the Polita, no one but himself will suffer. Under Mr. Irwin's administration the Bodie mines have yielded millions, and if he does half so well for the bucolic ranchers of Bishop Creek as he has done for Bodie, a lively camp will be the result.—[Nevada State Journal. As Mr Irwin is a trustee of the Kentuck mine at Sweetwater, it is hard to tell which place will claim his attention most, Bishop Creek or Mono county.—[Bodie Free Press. Mr Irwin went to Keeler Wednesday to inspect the mill there, and to see if it could be got to work the ores from the Polita mine.

THE PEOPLE VS. FRANK SILVA.—This case, upon the preliminary examination, has been on trial before Justice Parker since Wednesday morning. Progress has so far been slow on account of the delay occasioned by the taking of testimony by long-hand. But one witness, H. M. Yerington, for the prosecution has been examined. Yesterday morning W. A. Harris, of Dayton, Nev., arrived since when the progress of the trial has been greatly increased. The case is warmly contested by P. Reddy, retained for the prosecution and R. S. Miner, counsel for the defendant. Several days will be yet consumed in the examination. We noticed present as witness for the prosecution: H. M. Yerington, Charles Forman, H. W. Coffin, W. V. Price, F. L. J. Wrinkle, and R. J. Laws. For the defense: J. Eddy, J. S. Gorman and others.

FOURTH OF JULY.—Reports from various points in the county indicate that the 4th of July at Bishop Creek will be enjoyed and celebrated by a large assemblage. This is a good sign. It is well for us dwelling in remote places to keep alive the social relations, and if the temper of the day is caught it must be productive of great good; for a review of our history must add to our national pride and love and make us more truly Americans and good citizens.

SURPLUS OF WATER.—At all points in the valley high water is reported—all creeks running brim full, and the river rising daily. The warm days of the last week have started the flow of water from the heavy snowbeds of the high Sierras. Farmers now complain of an overplus of water and are kept busy diverting it from their fields. Truly this is an unusual year for Inyo in the matter of water.

TO LEAVE US.—G. W. Jones, the C. & C. agent at the Independence depot, will give up his positon July 1st. He will go to Boston, spending a few days at San Francisco and Salt Lake on the way. Mr. Jones has made himself very popular during his stay among us, and many friends regret his departure, and wish him success. The vacancy at the station will be filled by Mr. P. J. Field, of the Benton agency.

COURT PROCEEDINGS.--Thursday, June 5th—In the matter of the estate of A. J. Johnson, deceased, the order of sale of real estate was made and entered. In the estate of John Chastaine, deceased; petition for sale of personal property filed, and order to show cause ordered published.

SLATE RANGE.—Dr. A. P. Whittell returned to the Slate Range yesterday and will soon start up the mill on ore already on the dump, of which there is considerable.

CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT.—We are informed that A. P. Minear has taken charge of the Elna furnace and will start up shortly on Pine Mountain ore.

VOLCANIC SCENERY IN INYO.

Vivid Picture of Red Rock Canyon A City of Rock Hid in the Desert.

At various points in Inyo county and the regions round about are extensive volcanic remains, evidencing that in ages past this country was the theater of great convulsions. In various directions are seen extending for miles masses of burnt and browned rocks, tossed into great billows, which have been twisted and distorted by the processes of cooling. Here and there are seen extinct craters whose fires have long since gone out, the traces of their ancient action as fresh to-day as when they were hot with the rush and fury of internal fires. The Coso Mountains, lying to the south of Owens Lake and filling the southern sky as one looks down the great Owens River Valley, a peculiar mass of burnt mountains present more eruptive and volcanic evidences than any similar extent of country on the Pacific slope. From out their heart far into the Mojave Desert have been projected vast streams of lava visible for miles and presenting from great distances the hue and tint of their fiery origin. These were once rivers of fire, belched forth by the great volcano which scientists have located in the heart of this region. Their theory, whether true or not, is pregnant with great suggestions, and gives play to vigorous imaginings.

Standing where one can take in the breadth of the country and sweep the fields where once the rain of fire and ashes filled the land with terror and made it awful beyond description with force, the mind grows still with the might of the terrible picture; the heavens filled with flame, burning horizons, mountains shaking with fear and the very earth bellowing with rage. How vigorous the contrast to-day. Serene skies bend over quiet scenery, and the sun pours a flood of light upon the wound and scer of the awful past.

What may be called the volcanic scenteries of this region are wonderful in form and feature, often bearing the exquisite tracings of things beautiful. The flow of matter seemed governed by a law of beauty and was chilled into shapes that delight the eye. Gorgeous coloring is often a part of them, vast mountains hitting in monstrous shapes, yet painted with colors that match and mingle in rare and delicate dyes.

The seats of volcanic action are at points widely separated, principal among which are the volcanic cones at Fish Springs, in the middle of Owens River Valley; the volcanic ash fields of Owens Lake; the lava flow of the Coso Mountains; the awful Funeral Mountains, lifting along the eastern rim of Death Valley, and that wonderful creation: The volcanic city of RED ROCK CAÑON.

This remarkable cañon lies in Kern county, just at the western line of Inyo, and takes its name from the peculiar form and color of the formations through which it has been cut. It is hid away in the heart of a range of low hills that divide the upper from the lower Mojave Desert, and forms the pass through which the road leads from the town of Mojave to the regions lying in the deserts north and east. This cañon is wonderful and beautiful, and its wonder and beauty consists in the form of its walls and the curious coloring that has been with a consummate skill laid upon the rude rocks that make it. The approach to the cañon from the town of Mojave eastward, is over the level sage-brush plain of the Lower Mojave Desert and is distant about twenty-five miles. The line of hills in which the cañon is situated extend from the southern end of the Sierras southward toward the Mojave River some thirty miles and is volcanic. The cañon bears the trace of water as well as fire, its soft currents wearing through the centuries have carved the desert rocks with a sculptor's skill until now they rise in the form of palace tower, temple and spire. As one climbs the broad sloping floor of the avenue that constitutes and makes up the principal cañon and catches at almost every step views from out the lateral cañons that from every direction lead into it, he is lost in wonder. Along this central street and the outlying avenues there is a world of grandeur and beauty; a vast city magnificent with the strength and glory of ancient masonry; palace linked to palace; dome rising on dome; spire saluting spire in the high blue air. The marvelous shapes of these cañon walls are so true to the forms above described that the beholder is filled with a sense of awe and the mind finds it hard to dispel the illusion, but is confused with a feeling as if it had been transferred to ancient capitals of the East and was indeed gazing upon the ruins of Thebes or Palmyra. At some points of view there is a suggestion of distance, due, no doubt, to the bend of the cañons, through which is dimly seen the breadth and compass of a city that to the imagination must at some old day have been alive with the brilliance of a high art. These marvels of form are glorified by an indescribable grouping of colors, toned and softened from the brilliancy of the sunset clouds to tints as delicate as those which bloom in the violet. These colors are as wonderful as the shapes they serve to beautify, and although where the scene demands they are rich and varied, yet are always permeated by a tone of age that harmonizes with the aspect of decay and spoliation everywhere present. The view is complete in every part; in its minutest detail faithful to the idea of a great city in ruins and desolation. The magnificence of yonder ancient palace is disclosed at its portico, where the broken column lies just where its pavement rang with the footstep of the king and we can almost from its shadows see the ghost of its ruler waving to us a welcome to the lone, dead City of the Desert, and from out you cloud of dust whirled by the eddy of a desert breeze we catch almost the vision of a ghostly chariot rushing forth in mad sport, amid the plaudit of the admiring throng. No sign of life touches it with the spirit of the present, for the broken column, the shattered dome and fallen portico are each eloquent with years.

As a scenery no bird can exceed the wonderful features of this cañon, and were it not hidden away in the heart of the desert, far from the haunts of men, it would be an object of great interest to the tourist. As it is, but few will ever see it, and its wonders be known by but the handful whom business has called to pass through it. We shall never forget the enthusiasm of the honest stage driver who drove us through the cañon on one not distant Summer afternoon; the hour and air and mood and place all in tone. Although he had for several years daily passed through it, its wonders seemed to have fascinated even his unpoetic soul, and many a halt he made to point out this and that object as fulfilling this or that idea of grace of wonder or of beauty. For several miles we passed along these marvelous walls, and many a backward glance we gave until the view was swallowed by distance.

THE name of the Hon. A. R. Conklin, of Los Angeles, is receiving favorable mention as a candidate for Congress, to represent the Sixth California Congressional District. This is a district of great territorial area, and includes Inyo county, which fact makes the selection of its representative in Congress a matter of some interest to the citizens of Nevada who, since the construction of the Carson and Colorado Railroad, have had intimate social and business relations with the people residing in that part of California. Though we have no share in the political responsibilities of our neighbors, we cannot regard with indifference their selection of a Congressman, as it will be within his sphere at Washington to attend to the vast and growing mining interest of his constituency, which are so closely allied to our own. That Judge Conklin would be an able and faithful exponent of those interests in Congress none who know the man will deny. Besides this much to commend him, he is a strong man in the Republican party, as attested by the vote he received for Lieutenant Governor in the last California campaign. While the whole Republican ticket was snowed under in that political upheaval, Mr. Conklin polled 6,000 votes more than Mr. Estee, the nominee for Governor. This speaks volumes for his strength and availability as a successful candidate, and ought to insure him the nomination by acclamation in the next Republican District Convention. Moreover he is a gentleman of culture, an accomplished lawyer, an eloquent debater and a tireless worker. The representatives of the people in the popular branch of Congress should be representative men. Judge Conklin is that kind of a man.—Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise

THE State Senate of New York has passed an act to suppress newspapers that publish scurrilous police news and pictures. It is to be hoped the House will also pass this act and that the Governor will promptly sign it. Such a law is demanded in every State in the Union. While it would result in the suppression of many so-called family newspapers, the public good should never be subordinated to personal gain; and if indecent, sensational newspapers cannot thrive with such matters purged from their columns, it would be far better that they were not published at all.

AN intelligent Irish Democrat, of Troy, N. Y., a man who is in correspondence with political and personal friends all over the State of New York, estimates that Mr. Blaine will receive the votes of more than 30,000 naturalized citizens in New York alone. This will compensate twice over for any Republican defection that may exist when the day of election arrives. It will be sufficient to give the electoral vote of New York to James G. Blaine. It will also add a new element of strength to the Republican party, and make it invincible for another quarter of a century.

THE latest news favors a Democratic Presidential ticket headed Cleveland and McDonald—Cleveland for New York and McDonald for Indiana.

LOST AND FOUND.—The following is a copy of a valuable letter found on the floor of the Post Office at Bishop Creek. There being no name on the letter it cannot be returned to the owner, who no doubt will be willing to pay the printer a bill to get his property:

A CAR-LOAD.—There will depart from here this evening by the C. & C., a carload, more or less, of Independence people, as follows: Mrs. I Harris and family, and Mrs. J. D. Blair, for San Francisco; Miss F. C. Northrup and Miss Anna Kernodle, to visit relatives in Watsonville, Monterey county. It is Miss Northrup's intention to return in about two months and take charge of the public school here.

FAREWELL PARTY.—A farewell party was given to Mrs. I. Harris and family at the Blaney House last Thursday evening. Nearly all the ball-goers in town were present, and all agree in pronouncing it one of the most enjoyable little affairs Independence has seen for some time.

KEARSARGE TAILINGS.—James Ward was in town to-day, and informed us that he would have his mill ready to work the Kearsarge tailings in about one week.

The above described MERIDIAN BORATE DEPOSIT MINE, hereby sought to be patented as survey No. 2196, lots Nos. 37, 39 41, consists of those certain borate locations known and recorded as the C. C. Clay location, Jno Garbr location, J J M Gilroy location, J. T. Cochran location, B. H. Coleman location, W. B. Robertson location, C. C. Coleman location, T M. Smith location, records whereof may be found at pages from seventeen [17] to twenty-nine [29], both inclusive of Liber A of records of Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, and also in Book pages 261, 262, 263 264, 265, 266 267, 268 269 270, of Land, Water and Mining claims kept at the office of the County Recorder of Inyo county California.

Adjoining claims consist, so far as known surveys, of the South Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2193, which joins this claim on the south

Attention is called to the plat and notice now posted upon said Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, or survey No. 2196 Lots Nos 37, 39 and 41, and to the plat and field notes and other papers on file in this office in said application for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said Meridian Mining Company.

Any and all adverse claims to said premises, or any part thereof, must be duly filed in this office within sixty [60] days from date of first newspaper publication of notice hereof, or they will be barred under the law.

Harmony Mining Company,

....FOR THE...

"DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE."

The same being a Placer Claim, Officially surveyed and designated as SURVEY NO. 2154, LOT NO 38, in (unsurveyed) T. 27, N, R. 1 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, in Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California.

Notice No. 246.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
BODIE, CALIFORNIA,
April 14 1884

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE HARMONY MINING COMPANY, a Corporation of the State of California, having its principal office, Postoffice address and place of business at San Francisco, California, has, by CHARLES L. WILSON, its duly authorized special agent, and Attorney in fact, who resides at Coleman, in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, County of Inyo, and State of California, and whose nearest Postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and State of California, this day filed in this office its application for a Patent from the United States, to it the said Company, for its certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 1927 22 100 acres of land, yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda; the same being commonly known and called the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" situate in the Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the U S Surveyor General for California as Survey No 2154, and Lot No thirty-eight (38) in (unsurveyed) township number twenty-seven (27), north of range number one (1) east, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof, now on file in this office, as follows, viz: [with magnetic variation at fifteen degrees thirty-one minutes east] Commencing at a Chalk stone Monument marked "C D No 1—N E Cor," on the margin of dry bed of lake being the northeast corner of location N 12, and the northeast corner of the said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE;" from which Mineral Monument No 34" bears south, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north sixteen (16) degrees fifty (50) minutes west distant ten (10) chains and eight (8) links; the east end of Furnace bears south thirty-three (33) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant five (5) chains and fifty five (55) links; "Winters Peak" bears north sixty eight (68) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east and "Chloride Peak" bears south one (1) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor,"

First course—South at eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links reach "direct monument No 34," and stake marked "C D No 64;" at twenty (20) chains and twenty-seven (27) links reach a stake marked "C D A A" situate on north side of a butte, from which a stake marked "C D No 34" bears west, distant thirty one (31) chains and fifty seven (57) links; at twenty-five (25) chains and ninety seven (97) links reach base of butte; at thirty-nine (39) chains and twenty seven (27) links cross a "wash" running northwest; at thirty nine (39) chains and eighty nine (89) links reach a stake marked "C D. N. 36" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes west, distant seventy (70) chains and twenty seven (27) links; at sixty (60) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D Z" from which a stake marked "C Y" bears west, distant twenty (20) chains and twenty nine (9) links; at sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety-five (95) links reach a stake marked "C D No 62," from which a dead mesquite limb, one (1) foot in diameter, marked "C D T" bears north six (6) degrees thirty (30) minutes west distant two ( ) chains and seventy eight (78) links; and the right bank of Furnace Wash bears south forty-four (44) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; the above mentioned stake marked "C D No 62," being at the end of said first course of this survey, at a point bearing south and distant sixty-nine (69) chains and ninety three (93) links from said chalk stone Monument marked "C D No 1 N E Cor;" thence, running from said stake marked "C D N 62"

Second Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty-nine (29) links to a stake marked "C D N 61," from which a stake marked "C D Y" bears north, distant nine (9) chains and eighty-three (83) links; thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 61"

Third Course—south, at ten (0) chains and forty-one (41) links reach stake marked "C D B B" from which a stake marked "C D N 38" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west distant seventy (70) chains and thirty-nine (39) links; and at twenty (20) chains and forty-seven (47) links south from the said stake marked "C D N 61" reach a stake marked "C D No 60" at the end of said third course; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 60"

Fourth Course—West twenty (20) chains and twenty two (22) links to a stake marked "C D No 59;" thence

Fifth Course—south, at nine (9) chains and ninety-nine (99) links reach a stake marked "C D W" from which a stake marked "C D Q" bears south eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes west, distant sixty-nine (69) chains and forty-one (41) links, and a dead limb of mesquite bush, ten (0) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south forty two (42) degrees and forty five (45) minutes east, distant three (3) chains and eighty two (8) links; at nineteen (19) chains cross a "wash" running west and at the distance of thirty (30) chains and twenty-three (23) links south from said stake marked "C D No 49" reach a stake marked "C D No 58" at the end of said fifth course; thence running from the said stake marked "C D No 58"

Sixth Course—West, at thirty (30) links reach a stake marked "C D No 58 A" from which a stake marked "C D No 57" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy three (73) links; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 58 A,"

Seventh Course—South, at four (4) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at thirteen (13) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running southwest; at twenty-four (24) chains and forty-eight (48) links cross a wash running west; at sixty six (66) chains cross a wash running southwest; at one hundred and one (101) chains and forty eight (48) links reach a stake marked "C D No 80" from which a stake marked "C D No 58" bears west, distant nine (9) chains and seventy-three (73) links; a limb of a mesquite bush six (6) inches in diameter, marked "C D B T" bears south seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (0) minutes west, distant two (2) chains and three (3) links, and at the distance of one hundred and twenty-one (1 1) chains and seventy-one (71) links south from said stake marked "C D No 58 A" reach stake marked "C D No 51 A," being at the end of said seventh course; thence running from said stake marked "C D N o 51 A."

Eighth Course—East thirty (30) links to a stake marked "C D No 51;" thence

Ninth Course—South, at twenty (20) chains and twenty two (22) links reach stake marked "C D ," from which a stake marked "C D No 46" bears south eighty nine (89) degrees, thirty (0) minutes west, distant forty-nine (49) chains; and at forty (40) chains and forty-nine (49) links south from said stake marked "C D No 51" reach a stake marked "C D No 50," at the end of said ninth course, from which the right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (9) degrees thirty (30) minutes east; thence running from said stake marked "C D No 50."

Tenth Course—West ten (10) chains to a stake marked "C D No 49," thence

Eleventh Course — south ten (10) chains and eighteen (18) links to a Chalk-stone Monument four (4) feet long and one (1) foot square, marked "C D No 48, S E Cor" from which Chloride Peak bears north one (1) degree five (5) minutes east; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-six (36) degrees eight (8) minutes west; and right bank of Furnace Wash bears north forty-nine (49) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east. Thence running from said chalk stone monument marked "C D No 48 S E Cor."

Twelfth Course—West thirty-nine (9) chains and seven (7) links to a stake marked "C D No 47," at the southwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections thirty (30) and thirty-one (31) of Township twenty seven (27), north of range one ( ) east bears north eighty three (83) degrees five (5) minutes west, distant one hundred and seven (107) chains and thirty (30) links; Telescope Peak bears south thirty-one (3) degrees fifty (50) minutes west; Winter's Peak bears north fifty one (51) degrees ten (10) minutes east and the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north fifty five (55) degrees forty-five (45) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 47"

Thirteenth Course—North thirty (30) chains and twenty-eight (28) links to a stake marked "C D No 46;" thence

Fourteenth Course—West ten (10) chains and eleven (11) links to a stake marked "C D No 45;" thence

Fifteenth Course—North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty-six (.6) links reach a stake marked "C D No 44," and at forty (40) chains and fifty four (54) links reach a stake marked "C D No 43," this stake being at a point bearing north and distant forty (40) chains and fifty-four (54) links from said stake marked "C D No 45," Thence, running from said stake marked "C D No 43"

Sixteenth Course—West ten (0) chains and five (5) links to a stake marked "C D No 42," from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears north seventy-five (75) degrees east; Telescope Peak bears south forty four (34) degrees forty (40) minutes west and north end of Black Ridge bears north seventy eight (78) degrees thirty (30) minutes west. Thence running from said stake marked "C D No 42,"

Seventeenth Course—North, at twenty (20) chains and twenty four (24) links reach a stake marked "C D R" from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections nineteen (19) and thirty (30) of Township twenty-seven (27), north of Range one (1) east bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees west, distant eighty-seven (87) chains and fifty-six (6) links; a stake marked "C D T" bears north eighty nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant forty nine (9) chains and twenty one (21) links; at sixty (60) chains and forty-two (42) links reach a stake marked "C D Q," from which a stake marked "C D U" bears north eighty nine (89) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, distant forty-nine (9) chains and twenty one (21) links; at sixty (60) chains and sixty eight (68) links reach a stake marked "C D N o. 41," from which a stake marked "C D N o 55" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant forty nine (49) chains and twenty seven (27) links; at eighty (80) chains and ninety two (92) links reach a stake marked "C D P" from which stake marked "C D V" bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees thirty (0) minutes east, distant forty nine (49) chains and thirty-three (33) links; at one hundred and ten (100) chains and ten (10) links reach a stake marked "C D No 40," from which the Section stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections eighteen (18) and nineteen (19) of Township twenty-seven (27) north of Range one (1) east bears north eighty-nine (89) degrees forty (50) minutes west, distant ninety (90) chains and five (5) links; at one hundred and twenty-one (121) chains and thirty four (4) links reach a stake marked "C D O," and at one hundred and forty-one (141) chains and twenty seven (37) links from said stake marked "C D No 42" reach a stake marked "C D No 39" at the end of said seventeenth course, from which the north bank of Furnace Wash bears south sixty-seven (67) degrees thirty (30) minutes east, "Winter's Peak" bears north sixty-five (65) degrees thirty five (35) minutes east, and "Chloride Peak" bears north three ( ) degrees forty (40) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N 39,"

Eighteenth Course—East eighteen (18) chains and eighty six (86) links to a stake marked "C D No 38" Thence

Nineteenth Course—North thirty four (4) chains and forty (40) links to a stake marked "C D No 37" Thence

Twentieth Course—East, at ten (0) chains and six (6) links reach a stake marked "C D M," from which a stake marked "C D N" bears south distant fourteen (14) chains and nine ty one (91) links, and at twenty (20) chains and sixty-seven (67) links from said stake marked "C D N o 37" reach a stake marked "C D N o. 36 A" at the end of said twentieth course. Thence

Twenty first Course—North, at six (6) chains reach stake marked "C D No 36" from which the Section Stake on the San Bernardino Meridian between sections seven (7) and eighteen (18) of Township twenty seven (27) north, range one (1) east bears west, distant one hundred and thirty-two (132) chains and thirty-five (5) links, and at twenty six (26) chains and twenty (2) links from said stake marked "C L N o 36A)" reach a stake marked "C D N o 35" at the end of said twenty first course, from which Winter's Peak bears north sixty-nine (69) degrees east. The course running from said stake marked "C D No 35,"

Twenty second Course—East thirty (30) chains and sixty six (66) links to a stake marked "C D No 34." Thence

Twenty third Course—North twenty (20) chains and fifteen (15) links to a stake marked "C D o 33½," at the northwest corner of this the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," from which White's Peak bears north seventy (70) degrees fifteen (15) minutes east and Chloride Peak bears north fifty (50) minutes east. Thence running from said stake marked "C D N o 33½"

Twenty-fourth Course—North eighty nine (89) degrees forty five (45) minutes east thirty nine (9) chains and fifty-two (52) links to said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D N 1. N E Cor" the place of commencement, containing nineteen hundred and twenty-seven (1927) acres and twenty-two hundredths (22 100) of an acre. Said Mineral Monument N o 34" consists of a durable sandstone four (4) feet long set two (2) feet deep in the ground It is six (6) inches square at the top, whereon is fasten d a brass plate marked "N E S W S B M M M No 34," and is situated on the back-bone of a Butte bearing northwest and southeast at a point distant a few chains southeast from the highest point of said butte, which has an altitude of about two hundred (200) feet and a length of about fifty (50) chains; said Butte being situated on the east side of Death Valley and on the margin of the dry bed of the lake.

From said "MINERAL MONUMENT N o 34," "Chloride Peak" bears north one ( ) degree fifteen (15) minutes west; Winters Peak bears north sixty-seven (67) degrees forty (40) minutes east; "Telescope Peak" bears south twenty-nine (29) degrees forty (40) minutes west; stake marked "C D N . 3" of the "Winters Borate Deposit Mine," bears north seventeen (17) degrees forty-five (45) minutes west, distant thirty-two (32) chains and ninety-one (91) links; a stone monument marked "C D No 1 at the northeast corner of the "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" bears north, distant eleven (11) chains and twelve (12) links; the southwest corner of "Cement Office" bears north seven (7) degrees thirty seven (37) minutes west, distant twenty-one (21) chains; the north bank of "FUNCE WASH" at entrance of wash to valley bears south thirty-one (31) degrees thirty (30) minutes east distant one hundred and eighty-two (182) chains and fifty (50) links; "Cement House" at Greenland bears south fifteen (15) degrees forty (40) minutes east, distant one hundred and seventeen (117) chains and "MINERAL MONUMENT No. 33" bears from said "Mineral Monument Number 34," north nine (9) degrees twenty-four (24) minutes west at the distance of four hundred and forty-two (442) chains and sixty-seven (67) links by traverse calculation.

The above described "DESERT BORATE DEPOSITE MINE" hereby sought to be patented as OFFICIAL.

Survey No. 2154, Lot No. 38, consists of those certain borax mining locations legally known and recorded as "Location No 12," "Location No. 13," "Location No. 14," "Location No. 15 " "Location No. 16," "Location No. 17," "Location No. 18," "Location No. 19 " "Location No. 20," "Location No. 21," "Location No. 22," "Location No 23," "Location No 24 " "Location No. 25," "Location No 26," "Location No. 30 " and "Location No 31," record whereof may be found at pages from 79 to 174 of Liber A of the Mining Records of said Death Valley Borax and Salt Mining District, kept at the office of the Mining Recorder in said District, record thereof being also found in "Book C" and "Book D" of "Land, Water and Mining Claims," kept at the office of the County Recorder, at Independence, Inyo County, California

Adjoining claims unknown, if any such exist. The nearest official surveyed claim to this on the north being the "WHITES BORATE DEPOSIT MINE" or Survey No. 2153," "Lot No. 37 and 38 " the southeast corner where of is situated at a point bearing north twenty five (25) degrees forty five (45) minutes west distant twenty-two (2) chains and fifty-five (55) links from the said Chalk-stone Monument marked "C D No 1, N E Cor," at the place of commencement of the foregoing survey and description of this claim.

Attention is called to the Plat and Notice now posted upon said "DESERT BORATE DEPOSIT MINE," or Survey No. 2154 Lot No 38, and to the Plat Field Notes and other papers on file in this office in said application, for any further description of the said borate placer mining claim and premises so sought to be patented by said "HARMONY MINING COMPANY."

...FOR THE....

"LOWLAND BORATE DEPOSIT MINE,"

The same being a Placer Claim, officially Surveyed and designated as Survey No 2197, lot No 38 in Unsurveyed Township 26 North, Range 2 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian "near to Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District," County of Inyo and State of California.

Notice No. 243.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
BODIE, CALIFORNIA, June 9th, 1884

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT Wm. T. COLEMAN, a citizen of the United States over the age of twenty one years, having his residence and postoffice address and place of business at the City and County of San Francisco, California, has by Herman Stubli, his duly authorized special Agent and Attorney in fact, who resides at Amargosa in the Eagle Mountain Borax and Salt Mining District County of Inyo, and the State of California and whose nearest postoffice address is at Daggett, in the County of San Bernardino, and the State of California, this day filed in this office his application for a Patent from the United States for his certain Placer Mining Claim, containing 741 48 100 acres of land yielding borax in the forms of borate of lime and borate of soda, the same being commonly known as and called the "Lowland Borate Deposit Mine" situate in the Monte Blanca Borax and Salt Mining District, Inyo County, State of California, and now officially surveyed, platted and designated by the United States Surveyor General for California as Survey No. 2197, Lot No 38, in (unsurveyed) Township No 26 North Range 2 East, San Bernardino Base and Meridian, and being more particularly bounded and described by the official plat and field notes of survey thereof now on file in this office, as follows, viz: (With magnetic variation at 15 degrees 31 minutes east)—Commencing at a stake marked M. B D No. 1, in a mound of rocks on the southwest slope of hill, being the northwest corner of the Lowland Borate Deposit Mine from which mineral monument No. 40 bears north 42 degrees, 40 minutes east distant four (4) chains and ninety six [96] links, a stake marked M. B. D. No. 30 at the southwest corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, bears south eighty-nine degrees, forty-five minutes west, distant forty four [44] chains seventy four [74] links; thence

First Course—North 89 degrees 58 minutes east, along the south boundary of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine thirty [30] chains, to a stake marked M. B. D. No 30 A being also the corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine; thence

Second Course—North 00 degrees, 20 minutes west, along the boundary line of South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine twenty [20] chains and fifty [50] links, to a stake marked M B D. No 28 B, from which mineral monument No. 40 bears south 57 degrees, 35 minutes west, distant thirty-one [31] chains, eleven [11] links; thence

Third Course—South 89 degrees, 47 minutes east, along the boundary line of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine thirty [30] chains and twelve [12] links, to a stake marked M. B D No 48, being the southeast corner of the South Meridian Borate Deposit Mine, thirty-nine [39] chains and eight seven [87] links to a stake marked M B D No. 47, from which mineral monument No 40 bears south 76 degrees 3 minutes west, and Furnace Butte bears north 00 degrees, 45 minutes west; thence

Fourth Course—South twenty-nine [29] chains eighty-five [85] links, to a stake marked M. B. D No. 48; thence

Fifth Course—North 89 degrees, 45 minutes east, eighteen [18] chains, ninety-four [94] links, to a stake marked M. B. D No 45; thence

Sixth Course—South twenty [20] chains, sixteen [16] links to a stake marked M. B D No 44 from which mineral monument No 40 bears north 68 degrees, 47 minutes west, Furnace Butte bears north 7 degrees, 45 minutes west, Rock Point bears south 67 degrees 05 minutes west, distant about twenty-five and fifty hundredths [25 50-100] chains; thence

Seventh Course—South 89 degrees 45 minutes west, twenty-nine [29] chains and twenty-two [22] links to a stake marked M B D. No 43 from which mineral monument No. 40 bears north 54 degrees 8 minutes west, Rock Point bears south 0 degrees 20 minutes east, distant about eleven [11] chains; thence

Eighth Course—South 15 minutes west thirty [30] chains and twenty-seven [27] links to a stake marked M B. D. No 42 A, from which Rock Point bears north 10 degrees east, distant about twenty-one and fifty-hundredths [21 50 100] chains; thence

Ninth Course—South 89 degrees 33 minutes east twenty [20] chains, thirty four [34] links to a stake marked M B D N o 42 B on west slope of Brown Mountain about five [5] chains south of its base, from which stake mineral monument No 40 bears north 50 degrees 30 minutes west, Rock Point bears north 35 degrees 0 minutes west, distant about twenty five and twenty-five hundredths [25 25 100] chains, continue south 89 degrees 33 minutes east thirty [30] chains thirty one [31] links to a stake marked M. B D No 89; thence

Tenth Course—North nineteen [19] chains ninety seven [97] links to a stake marked M. B D. No 90; thence

Eleventh Course—East nine [9] chains ninety-one [91] links to a stake marked M. B. D. No. 91; thence Twelfth Course—South nineteen [19] chains ninety six [96] links to a stake marked M B. D. No. 88, thence

BONDS!

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY TREASURER,
Independence, Inyo County, Cal.,
June 7th 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT

SEALED BIDS,

[Stating the Post office address of the bidder.] for the purchase of

Inyo County Bonds,

To the amount of

EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS,

Will be received at the office of the Treasurer of said County, until 12 O'CLOCK, NOON, of

Tuesday the Fifteenth Day of July, 1884,

Said Bonds are for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars each, payable in United States Gold coin, at the Office of the Treasurer of said County, on the 15th DAY OF JULY, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of the County; bear interest at the rate of SEVEN PER CENT. per annum, payable Semi-Annually at the office of said Treasurer, on the Fifteenth day of January and July of each year.

Said Bonds are issued by the Board of Supervisors in conformity with an Ordinance of said Board, dated the 28th day of May, 1884, and under the authority conferred upon said Board by the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14th, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved May 8th, 1884

No bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value, will be accepted, and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids

The bidder to whom the purchase may be awarded will be required to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin, at the Office of the County Treasurer of said County, within ten days from date of the award.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The ancient maxim, Vox populi, vox Dei, (the voice of the people is the voice of God), is true with many limitations. Opinion to be just must have, for its foundation, facts, and is true only when pure facts make up its fabric. It loses its divine quality whenever passion, favor or prejudice enters into its warp and woof.

Drops of water make up the sea, and public opinion, that universal sense and expression, is but the aggregation of individual expression, thought, hope or passion.

No public opinion, though it may be powerful through the expression of mere numbers, is to be trusted, unless it has been subjected to a critical analysis, and from it eliminated whatever is not consonant to reason or justice. This opinion must not be reached by sudden leaps to conclusions desired, but must yield to the law of truth, no matter where the results may end. It has been wisely written: "The just man is he who can, without judge or jury, try in his own mind the contest between himself and his neighbor, and decide against himself."

A public can only be just in the verdict that is nursed by a law of action as lofty as that which enters into the moral temper of the just man, as measured by the foregoing rule. History is full of notable events, where public servants of large experience, and honest beyond suspicion, have been left for the time alone in hostile attitude to the public thought and expression of the times, but whose just exposition of the truth has been sanctioned by the result of years.

The great act of Lincoln, in signing the Emancipation Proclamation, was beyond and over the common thought and opinion of America at the time. He was borne down with the necessity of the act, and had, in the integrity of his own mind, determined upon its execution. He knew that public opinion was not ripe for so conclusive a stroke, and desiring to avert a contest of opinion between himself and the people at that most critical moment, called to his council Andrews of Massachusetts, Morton of Ohio, and the great Chandler. He needed the strength of their views before he moved in so solemn a declaration against the sense of the nation. Time has set in clear lights the wisdom and justice of his act, and his name will live in history, written in living characters at the end of that immortal proclamation.

The execution of Christ was in obedience to a popular demand, although Pilate declared, "I find no fault in this man." Alexander Hamilton "yielded to the force of an impious custom;" a public opinion which required a man to murder or be murdered for a real or fancied affront. And so, in favor of truth and against it, could be multiplied examples of individual acts against public opinion, which acts were right; and of acts in obedience to public opinion, which opinion was wrong.

To question the power of public opinion would be folly; to yield always to it because it is public opinion would be weak and vicious. It is the office of the true citizen to mould and direct the public or universal opinion, and to resist it when not founded upon the exact truth. The force of a single citizen of pure character to so mold public opinion is often tremendous, and the safety and prosperity of communities are often established upon the integrity of a single mind.

Let the truth be established though the heavens fall, should be carved over the doorway of every household, and be the watchword of every citizen.

A NOBLE PIUTE.

Joe Bowers, Chief—A Noble and Generous Indian.

The Pacific Slope among its tribes has, at widely separated, points furnished notable examples of splendid character, in what may be called the purely natural state. Irataba, of the Mojaves,—a massive man, standing seven feet in his moccasins—was as grandly moral as he was great in frame. Kamiaken, of the Klickitats, held a place among the northern tribes, as great as Agamemnon among the Greeks. Joe Bowers, chief of the Inyo Piutes, ranks them all in temper, intellect and heart.

He is a wild man, yet he bears upon his face the stamp of a great and magnanimous spirit—a lofty dignity marks his intercourse with either white or Piute. He has always, and does now, command veneration and respect by a force of character which at times in the past full of vicissitude rose to moral grandeur.

His lofty spirit is indicated by his demeanor—always courtly and dignified by that sutble force which enters so largely in what Shakespeare denominates "A divinity which doth hedge a king."

He suffers no easy approach from any man, but holds himself as royally as an old king. The vulgar familiarity of rude men he resents with a deep contempt; but to gracious courtesy he opens his heart with honest delight. His strong, noble face—not unlike Webster's—is crowned with a broad forehead, whose compass indicates great intellectual strength, as well as moral power.

Had he been cast in more favored times and places, the world would have been profited by the change. Had he been a civilized, enlightened man, trained by the culture of pure teachers, he would have left his influence upon his times, and been an honor to mankind. His mind and spirit have been always moved by motives as grand as those which controlled the heart of Lincoln—in fact he forcibly suggests him; and in comparing the men—for Joe Bowers is in every sense a man—one cannot resist the thought that had they been transposed in time and place and opportunity, they would have acted upon identical planes.

The character and services of Joe Bowers are held in the highest regard by those who were most actively engaged in the Indian war. They know how full of danger were the hours of the hours of that struggle; how delicately were often balanced the issues of the fight; how near the whites came to complete and utter massacre, and of what infinite service to them were the offices and warning of Bowers; how often a threatened blow was averted and lives saved. This feeling of gratitude is intensified by the regard brave men have for the the brave, white or black, and which comes from the exhibition of courage in the perils of a common venture.

He was no traitor to his people. They knew how he felt; he had explained to them his views, pleaded, warned and expostulated; and when he refused to fight, his rude followers felt the moral excellence of the man, and respected his command in many cases where they were of infinite value to the whites.

He saw and understood the manifest destiny of his race; and yielding to the force of powers that were beyond and above him, in the face of his infuriated and desperate tribe, declared for peace with the whites. He felt the common brotherhood of mankind, and though he had not heard of prophecy, he knew that the descendant of Japhet were and were to be the predominant race. Once satisfied by a logic all his own, having alone, counselling only with his own mind in the great exigency of his race, calmly thought out the problem as to the supremacy of this region, he took his stand, and from that day to this has never swerved from conclusions then reached and acted on. He counselled peace, conference, conciliation and concession; and when overcome by the hot blood and war spirit of his people, he devoted his energies to warning, saving protecting and assisting the whites. Their lives and property he held as a divine trust.

A warm and enduring friendship has for these 20 years existed between W. A. Greenly, who led the citizens' band in their fight against the Indians at Owens Lake, and Bowers. Each understands the merit and character of the other, and while there exists no show of familiarity between them, each has a profound respect, one towards the other. We have seen them meet and it was a pleasant sight. In the shadow of past years they remember the services of each to a race so entirely different planes. The difference in station, color, race and condition seemed entirely forgotten as those two brave and true men shook hands in salutation Nothing could indicate Bowers' merit to a higher degree than this regard of Greenly's, and the same might be truly said of Greenly.

Many citizens now here can testify to Joe's fidelity in warning them of danger. Coming to their then outlying and distant camps under the cover of night and silently counselling them to flight, tendering his services to care for and protect their property until their return. Many lives that have been of value to this county were thus saved.

In one instance in the Waucoba mountains, a party had at the time of the outbreak a large band of cattle. Bowers warned the owners of danger, and offered to take care of the cattle until the war should be over. The offer was gladly accepted, and the owners left, after telling Bowers that he might kill for his necessities and those of his followers, such cattle as he should desire. After the conflict had ceased the owners returned and found their herds as they had left them, with the exception of small and inferior steers that Bowers, according to their instruction, had killed for his use, and these were very few in number and the poorest in quality. When asked why he had not killed the best and fattest, he replied: "Oh, maybe so poor meat plenty good for Injun"—a reply rude in speech but indicating a rare excellence of character. It is said that when he undertook to care for and thus protect property he would mark it with a certain symbol; a mystic sign to the Indians that the property was under his protection; and such was the regard and veneration in which he was held by his people, that in no case was this symbol disregarded. In every case on the return of the owners the property was found as left.

The weight of years has now bent the once upright and powerful frame of the good old chief. He retains some authority still over the Indians here, but the effect of intercourse with the whites has had much force to break the power of tribal affiliation, which has but little force over the younger Indians who have been born within the period of the white occupation. Over the older members of the tribe he holds an influence as powerful as ever. The veneration they felt in their younger life when Bowers moved among them a towering and beneficent spirit, directing and caring for them with a fatherly consideration, remains still; and he has still a handful of devoted followers, to whom his word is law.

He seems to have that scorn for material things which have been the attribute of some of the greatest minds of the world. His sustenance he derives from services he renders, and by gifts now and then received from those who know him and are his friends; he need pass no door a-hungered. His old wife, the companion of his long life, still lives and bears with him the burden of his years and cares.

During the war and afterward, when Fort Independence was a Post he received, at the hands of the officers stationed there his daily rations. Remembering his services to the country, and that his value at that time was greater than a regiment of soldiers, he was considered a creditor of the nation. That consideration was fact; and upon the abandonment of the Post, something should have been done to continue to Bowers for the term of his life a certainty of sustenance, and that in abundance. He is only another of those who can testify to the ingratitude of Republics.

If ever any man deserved a pension at the hands of the Government for distinguished military services, Joe Bowers is one without doubt. Twenty dollars per month, placed in the hands of a trustee to be expended for his benefit in the purchase of clothes and food would place the old man in easy and certain condition for the balance of his years, and smooth his way with the knowledge that he has been remembered by the race to whom in his best years he rendered his best service. His character and career is familiar to many of the officers of the army. If any of these should take the trouble to call the attention of the War Office to Bowers' condition, and by some means, either by a law of Congress or the appointment to some petty office guarantee to him the pittance he needs, it would be a most deserved and gracious act. Some little compensation should be given for the voluntary yielding up of power, tribe authority and lands.

FROM BIG PINE TO BOSTON.

Harry Hartshorn, of Big Pine, on His Way to the Great "Hub."

We left Big Pine—that is, the train and I—Saturday night, June 21st, after taking a smile with the boys and bidding them good-bye. There was quite a party on board that made it very pleasant traveling—the more the merrier, especially when one is traveling. I tried to sleep, but it was no use. After nodding and bumping my head a dozen or so times, I gave it up as a bad job. Arrived at Soda Springs and ate breakfast, and a very good breakfast it was. Once again on the train I settled down for a quiet smoke. At noon I felt as if I had eaten nothing for a week, so made a raid on my lunch box. After eating half a dozen eggs, about two pounds of boiled ham, and washing it down with some of Hartshorn's best, I felt as though I could stand it for a few hours longer. Arrived at Mound House and changed cars for Reno. The scenery from Mound House to Reno is very pretty. A picnic party boarded the train at a small station on the road. Some of them were pretty well filled with benzine. They were about to put the darbies on one of the party who thought himself Sullivan, but he begged off. Arrived in Reno at 6:30, and learned that the overland emigrant did not leave until next morning. After supper took a stroll around the town; the place has improved wonderfully since the fire. Went to bed early, and had a good night's rest. At 5:30 left Reno, and found the emigrant cars comfortably arranged and a very nice party on board. The cars are fitted up with upper and lower berths, the passengers furnishing their own beds. Thanks to Mr. Engley, of Big Pine, I had made all arrangements for enjoying a good night's rest. At noon and night men, boys and girls boarded the train with fresh bread, cakes, fish, eggs, milk, butter, coffee and tea. Our train was slow, making about 12 miles per hour. If one has plenty of time it is a very pleasant way to travel, as it gives us plenty of time to stretch our legs and see the country.

After passing a very pleasant night, we arrived at Elko at seven o'clock, thirty minutes for breakfast. After taking a spin around the town, (which, by the way, is quite a place), we once more board the train and off we go. At Rye Patch, a small town, Monday morning, I met Mr. Gregory, of the house of Livingston & Co., liquor dealers, S. F. We smiled, then parted. Tuesday noon I arrived in the town of Wells, and again went for the lunch basket, and dined heartily on sardines, cold ham, boiled eggs and peaches, washed down with coffee and diluted with a little old rye.

We have been on the up grade all day, two engines on, puffing and blowing like a bloated bondholder. We have some good singers on board and they are giving us a benefit to-night. Turned in about ten and had a good nights sleep.

Arrived in Corinne this (Wednesday) morning a little after sunrise.

HARRY.

THE Democracy seem to be hopelessly mixed up as regards their choice for President. Butler is looming up as the probable candidate. John Kelly is predicting that New York will go for Blaine by 40,000 to 80,000 majority if his opponent is any other man than Butler. The Irish World announces that it will advocate the election of Blaine unless the nominee is Butler, while the Southern Democrats say that they will support Blaine rather than Butler. It is extremely probable that Sammy Tilden will himself step in and dissappoint the would-be dark horses by taking the nomination.

ORDINANCE OF BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY.

Ordinance No. 7.

In the Matter of Issuing Bonds for the purpose of raising money to pay the Outstanding Indebtedness of Inyo County, California incurred previous to July 1st, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and for the Expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

IN THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO County, State of California.

At a Special Meeting of the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, duly called in accordance with law, May 28th, 1884; Present, E. Robinson, Chairman; A. Spencer and Thomas Boland, members, and Thomas Crough, Clerk.

The above entitled matter, coming on regularly for consideration, Supervisor Thomas Boland introduced the following

PREAMBLE AND ORDINANCE:

WHEREAS, it appearing to the Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California that said Inyo County has now an Outstanding indebtedness of EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS, incurred prior to July 1st, 1883, and said indebtedness being evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, now outstanding; and it being deemed by said Board of Supervisors, for the public interest to fund the same, and issue Bonds of the said County therefor, and for the expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds.

Now, therefore, in accordance with and by the authority of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases" approved May 8th 1884, The Board of Supervisors of Inyo County, State of California, do ordain as follows:

SECTION 1. Bonds of the County of Inyo, State of California, shall be issued to the amount of Eighty-Five Thousand Dollars, payable on the 15th day of July, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of said County.

Said Bonds shall be issued in denominations of Five Hundred Dollars each and shall bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually from the date of said Bonds, and shall have interest Coupons attached; and said Bonds and Coupons shall be in the form prescribed by the Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14, 1883 and said Bonds shall be dated the 15th day of July, 1884.

SECTION 2. The County Auditor of said Inyo County is hereby directed to have forms of said Bonds and Coupons printed and ready for execution without delay, and after the same shall have been duly executed, numbered and sealed, to deliver them to the County Treasurer of said County, take his receipt therefor, and charge him with the amount thereof.

SECTION 3. The said County Treasurer shall advertise in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper published in said County of Inyo, and in the San Francisco Chronicle, the San Francisco Daily Report and the San Francisco Examiner, newspapers published in the City and County of San Francisco, for the space of three weeks prior to the 15th day of July, 1884, that sealed bids, stating the Postoffice address of the bidder, for the purchase of said Bonds, will be received at the office of said Treasurer up to the hour of noon on the said 15th day of July, 1884, and said advertisement shall specify that no bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value will be accepted, and that the right is reserved to reject any and all bids for the purchase of the same. All sealed bids for the purchase of said Bonds received by said Treasurer up to the hour of noon of said 15th day of July, 1884, shall be by him presented to said Board of Supervisors on the day and hour aforesaid, or as soon thereafter as said Board shall be in session; and thereafter said Board shall proceed to open and consider said bids and award the purchase of said Bonds to such bidder or bidders if any there be, as shall appear to said Board entitled to such award. The bidder or bidders to whom the award is made shall be immediately notified thereof by the Clerk of said Board, and notified to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin within ten days from the date of notice, to the said County Treasurer and upon such payment being made the Bonds so purchased shall be delivered by said Treasurer to the purchaser or purchasers.

SECTION 4. Whenever the holder of any Bond, or Bonds, shall so request to them, the purchaser shall notify the said County Treasurer of such purchase, giving at the same time the number or numbers of such bond or bonds transferred, and his or their office address, and every transfer shall be noted on the record which must be kept by said Treasurer.

SECTION 5. The Board of Supervisors of said Inyo County, shall cause to be assessed and levied each year upon the taxable property of said county, in addition to the levy authorized for other purposes, an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds as it becomes due, and also to constitute a Sinking Fund sufficient for the payment of said Bonds within Twenty Years from the date of the same, and as nearly as possible an equal sum of money shall be levied and assessed in each year, and said taxes shall be collected in the same manner as other property taxes for State and County purposes; and the money arising from said levies shall be known as the Bond Fund, and shall be used for the payment of such Bonds and Interest Coupons, and for no other purpose whatever, and said Treasurer shall open and keep in his office books a separate account thereof, which shall at all times show the exact condition of said Bond Fund. If any money shall remain in said Bond Fund after paying such Bonds and Coupons in full, the same shall be transferred to the General Expense Fund of said County.

SECTION 6. Whenever the amount in the hands of the said Treasurer belonging to the Bond Fund after setting aside the amount required to pay the interest maturing before the next levy is sufficient to redeem one or more bonds, he shall notify, by mail, the owner of such bond or bonds that he is prepared to pay the same with all interest accrued thereon, and that if not presented for payment or redemption within forty days after the date of such notice, the interest on such Bond or Bonds shall cease, and the amount due thereon shall be set aside for the payment thereof whenever presented. The notice shall be directed to the Postoffice address as shown by the record kept in said Treasurer's office. If said Bond or Bonds be not so presented, interest shall cease, and the amount due be set aside, as specified in said advertisements. All redemptions shall be made in the exact order of their issuance, beginning at the lowest or first number, and all notices herein required shall be directed to the Postoffice address of the owner of the Bond or Bonds, as shown by the records in said Treasurer's office.

SECTION 7. The money obtained from the sale of said Bonds shall be known as the Floating Debt Fund, and said County Treasurer shall apply the same to the payment of the outstanding indebtedness of said County, incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, and to the payment of such expenses incident to the issuance of said Bonds, as shall be allowed and ordered paid therefrom by the Board of Supervisors of said County. If any money shall remain in said Floating Debt Fund after paying said outstanding indebtedness and such expenses the same shall be transferred to said Bond Fund.

SEC. 8. The County Treasurer shall proceed to exchange all of said bonds remaining unsold on the 15th day of August, 1884, for the floating debt of said Inyo County incurred prior to the 1st day of July, 1883, and evidenced by Bonds and Warrants of said County, but in no case for a less sum than the face value of said bonds, and all interest accrued on them at the date of such exchange.

SEC. 9. Any person purchasing Bond or Bonds must state his Postoffice address to the County Treasurer, and should he change his address must notify the said Treasurer, giving his new Postoffice address, and said Treasurer shall keep a record in his office showing the Postoffice address of the owner of each of said bonds.

SEC. 10. This Ordinance shall be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in Inyo County, California, at least once a week. Said publication to be within fifteen days after the adoption thereof, and said ordinance shall take effect in fifteen days after its adoption. Said Preamble and Ordinance having been twice read and duly considered by the Board, were put upon their passage and were passed by the following vote:

Ayes: E. Robinson, A. Spencer and Thomas Boland.

Noes: None.

Passed and approved this 28th day of May A. D. 1884.

E. ROBINSON, Chairman.

Attest: THOMAS CROUGH, Clerk. [SEAL.]

SATURDAY, JULY 5,.....1884

Display of Polytechnathecna at Keeler.

Following is the programme of the celebration at Keeler yesterday. It was well carried out, and not one of the immense crowd but expressed himself as well pleased with the day's entertainment. The programme was given in Mayor Boland's mansion, as follows:

Prayer.....Rev. Jas. Morris.
Prevarication.....Hon. W. Ed. Murphy
Theory of Dudeism Exploded, by "the only" Jno. Murphy
Effects of Remorse..Bro. Geo. L. Campbell
Song—"Oh, I'm no Succor," by the world-renowned MR. DANA BROWN, with red-lights and tableau.
Effects of Strong Drink and Immoral Associations, by the greatest living example and toper..... W. H. Cowan.
Solo—"Mother, I Am Tired," by a reformed tough.....P. J. McGrath
Lecture—"What I Would Do if I Were Single," by "Inyo's orator"..Geo. Clute
The touching ballad, "Come, Birdie, Come and Live With Me," written expressly for the celebrated soloist, Jas. A. Cummings, who kindly volunteered to sing on this occasion. Piano accompaniment, Miss Florence Mitchell.

The dress-circle was reserved for ladies and their escorts, and was soon crowded. After the literary exercises were over, Mr. J. Morton invited the assemblage to partake of a "hog barbecue" at his commodious hotel. After this, the artillery was brought out, and the stirring sound of the deadly mountain howitzer raised the spirits of all to the highest degree, and, by unanimous consent, the mountain howitzer reigned supreme during the rest of the day.

PERSONAL.—H. M. Yerington, R. J. Laws and Charles Forman left us Monday for Hawthorne.... Barney Price and Mr. Coffin also left us Monday—the former for Elna, where he will take charge of the company's mine, and the latter for Belleville.... J. S. Gorman has gone to Darwin to push work on the Defiance mine.... John W. P. Laird returned home Wednesday morning, after a lengthy stay in the lower valleys of the State.... C. D. Begole and Geo. H. Palmer, of Lone Pine, were in town Tuesday and Wednesday. They came up to get some law points. .... Hon. J. M. Keeler was in town Monday.... Assessor J. C. Irwin went to Bishop Creek the first of the week. ... Mrs. A. W. Eibeshutz is visiting friends in Bishop Creek.... Geo. M. Gill left for home in the early part of the week.... C. Mulholland arrived from Greenville, Plumas county, last Thursday. He will make Independence his home.... Hon. P. Reddy and "Boots" Conklin spent the Fourth at Darwin.

OLD-TIMERS.—Charley Begole and his old roan horse were at Inyo's capital this week. Though looking much younger, Chas. is the older of the two, verging on to 100 years, while his faithful old nag fairly turns two score. There is not a child in the whole country that does not know and dote on the old couple, and few that have not ridden the old horse or drained the the generous little old man's pocket of stray dimes. Truly the couple can be said to be bona fide pioneers of Inyo county in every sense of the word having been residents for the last 21 years.

MODOCK.—Superintendent Fitzgerald sends us the following: Coal is coming in regular and will have enough to start up with by the 9th instant. During my absence there was extracted 129 tons of ore and selected slag. Total at furnace, 609 tons. The average of the ore, new find, is 43 per cent. lead, which is the highest ever attained in this camp. I will be able to work in considerable quartz ore which has been laying here for years. This lead ore is being extracted from No. 2 tunnel of the Confidence mine.

SNOW'S CAÑON. "Miner" writes us that W. K. Miller started the Snow's Cañon mill on the 1st of July on ore from his mines at Wild Rose. He has had a 12 mule team hauling wood and ore for the last month. He is the first to take out ore from these mines. Smith and others will furnish ore to the mill. Snow's Cañon is coming to the front as a bullion producer. There will shortly be some glowing items from this forgotten district.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—Superintendent Frank Fitzgerald wants to give some body a contract to haul 120,000 pounds or more of base bullion from the Modock mine, Lookout to Keeler, the present terminus of the C. & C. railroad. Teamsters, take notice.... Cohn & Straus want to know the whereabouts of a mare mule, and are willing to pay for the information—and mule.

THE SILVA CASE.—The preliminary examination of Frank Silva, charged with having sold a mine under false representations, closed on Thursday last. The accused was held to answer before the Superior Court, in the sum of $10,000 bail.

NEW AGENT.—P. J. Field has taken the place of G. W. Jones as agent for the railroad company at the Independence depot. While we are sorry to lose our old and faithful friend Jones, we extend a cordial welcome to Mr. Field.

ATTENTION, REPUBLICANS.—The attention of Republicans, and Democrats who intend to vote the Republican ticket this year, is called to the meeting of the Republican County Central Committee on the 15th instant.

MAXIM MILL.—The Maxim mill will commence crushing ore from the company's mine next Monday. There is enough ore on the dump to keep the mill pounding away for a long time.

SCARCE.—The jours and devil having gone off on a Fourth of July celebrating tour, is the only reason for the scarcity of reading matter this week.

AN ERROR.—In writing up the closing exercises of the Lone Pine school, we made a slight error. Instead of saying that Johnnie Johnson recited "The Miser," we should have said that Johnnie Lubkin was the little boy that gave the recitation, and he did it well, too. Johnny, forgive us.

FROM BEVERIDGE.—Parties just in from Beveridge report everything quiet. The ore in the Elgin mine, owned by Messrs. Barnes, Keyes and Baker, still continues in paying quantities, but the boys have come in for the Fourth and nothing is now being done.

BAD CHILDREN.—I am surprised that Lone Pine people do not put a stop to children that ravage orchards in that place. The officers ought to be on the watch, and arrest and send them to the county jail. LONE PINER.

BONDS!

OFFICE OF THE COUNTY TREASURER,
Independence, Inyo County, Cal.,
June 7th. 1884.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT

SEALED BIDS,

[Stating the Post-office address of the bidder.] for the purchase of

Inyo County Bonds,

To the amount of

EIGHTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS,

Will be received at the office of the Treasurer of said County, until 12 O'CLOCK, NOON, of

Tuesday, the Fifteenth Day of July, 1884,

Said Bonds are for the sum of Five Hundred Dollars each, payable in United States Gold coin, at the Office of the Treasurer of said County, on the 15th DAY OF JULY, 1904, or at any time before that date, at the pleasure of the County, bear interest at the rate of SEVEN PER CENT. per annum, payable Semi-Annually at the office of said Treasurer, on the Fifteenth day of January and July of each year.

Said Bonds are issued by the Board of Supervisors in conformity with an Ordinance of said Board, dated the 28th day of May, 1884, and under the authority conferred upon said Board by the provisions of an Act of the Legislature of the State of California, entitled "An Act to establish a uniform system of County and Township governments," approved March 14th, 1883, and of an Act entitled "An Act to provide for funding the indebtedness of Counties in certain cases," approved May 8th, 1884

No bid for the purchase of said Bonds at less than their face value, will be accepted, and the right is reserved to reject any and all bids.

The bidder to whom the purchase may be awarded will be required to pay the purchase money in United States Gold Coin, at the Office of the County Treasurer of said County, within ten days from date of the award.

GEO. H. HARDY,
County Treasurer of Inyo County, Cal.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, JULY 12, ...1884

SALUTATORY.

On last Saturday, July 5th, the ununder signed bought, and took possession of THE INYO INDEPENDENT. I have now made my home in Inyo, and, with my family, intend to be a permanent resident here, having my interests bound up with the county, and expecting to share in that prosperity which its great natural resources may well warrant us all to expect, and evidences of which already begin to appear. Believing, as I firmly do, that the paper will be best employed in making those resources known to the world, in order to invite settlers, and capital, it is my intention to devote time, space and labor to truthful and accurate reports of the vast areas of land in the county that may be made exceedingly productive by irrigation. To tell of the delightful climate, where enervating heats, and arctic temperatures, that make life a burden, are equally unknown. To give reliable information of the exceedingly rich and extensive mineral deposits of Inyo, that, with proper management, ought to make her the richest mining county in California. The opening of the mines would, in turn, make such a home market as would make each farm in the county a bonanza to its owner. The accomplishment of these aims will, or ought to, occupy so much of the time of one man that no time will be left to devote to politics. I think, however, the patrons of the paper will agree with me that this will not be any serious loss to the county. In order to carry out the aims here briefly alluded to, it will be necessary, that persons living at various and distant points take note of matters around them, and send their observations to the office. The necessity for this will at once be apparent, when it is remembered that Inyo county is very nearly equal in area to the two States of Massachusetts and Connecticut combined, and that there is but one railroad in the county. With such an area, and so richly endowed with climate, soil and minerals, Inyo ought to attract immigrants by the thousands, and capital by the millions. There cannot be any doubt that by intelligent effort these results may be brought about in the near future. To aid, however little, in the accomplishment of such good work, is my earnest purpose, and to that end I respectfully ask the help of all good citizens. Should any of the younger people favor the office with communications on local happenings, or with their own imaginings on subjects grave or gay, lively or severe, they may rest assured that the strictest confidence will be maintained, and that their effusions will be treated with courtesy. In order that the interests of all parts of the county may be fairly presented, it is my intention to visit as much of it as possible at an early day, and also to have an opportunity for making acquaintance.

C. MULHOLLAND,
Editor and Publisher INYO INDEPENDENT.

UNDER the heading of "Expectations" the Calico Print reads THE INDEPENDENT a lecture on the impropriety of expressing "hopes" or making "predictions" of the future prosperity of mining in Inyo county. On the next column to that containing the lecture are several mining items on mines in Calico District. A few lines are here given as examples of how Calico Print abstains from the practice of what it blames in others. Speaking of the "Red Jacket" mine Print says:

The Red Jacket is very favorably located in a mineral belt that will prove to be an extensive and profitable field of operations, judging from the successful progress of its neighbor, the King, which is turning out every day bars of bullion that proclaim to the world in language more eloquent than pen or tongue in regard to the actual wealth imbedded in the rugged mountains of Calico District.

Again, in the same article, refering to the "Morning Star" mine, Print says:

All interested parties entertain the strongest hopes that it will eventually become a flourishing camp.

From this it might be inferred that so far as mines are concerned, Calico Print has nothing but "expectations" and "hopes" to sustain it and cannot endure that its own peculiar province should be trenced upon.

THE town of Berkeley has followed the example of Oakland and passed a curfew law. By its provisions boys under twenty-one years of age are prohibited from being out on the street after 9 o'clock, P. M. The moral effect of the law is highly approved and it is now rare to see youngsters about in Oakland after the bell tolls out 9 o'clock.

Dr. Moore, who on Saturday night last was arrested on a charge of murder for having, as alledged, caused, through malpractice, the death of Mrs. Van Zandt, at the Palace Hotel, San Francisco, was released on $20,000 bonds, with A. N. Towne and L. A. Newton as sureties.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION.

Territorial Delegates Given the Right to Vote.

CHICAGO, July 8, 1884.

The Convention was called to order at 12:40 P. M. by Hon. W. H. Barnum, Chairman of the National Committee.

Hon. R. B. Hubbard, of Texas, was unanimously elected Temporary Chairman.

The Committee on Credentials was appointed, and the Convention adjourned.

When the Convention was again called to order, the Committee on Credentials reported, and recommended that Territorial Delegates be permitted to vote in the Convention. The report was adopted.

Permanent organization was effected by the election of Hon. W. H. Villais, of Wisconsin, Permanent Chairman.

When the order of nomination of candidates was reached Hendricks, of Indiana, in a rousing speech placed J. E. McDonald, of Indiana, in nomination for the Presidency; John W. Breckenridge, of California, arose and amid great cheering placed Allen G. Thurman, of Ohio, in nomination for the Presidency. The announcement was greeted with tremendous applause. The Convention agreed that candidates be placed in nomination, but that no vote be taken until after the platform should be adopted. Geo. Gray, of Delaware, placed Thos. Bayard, of Delaware, in nomination.

On proceeding to ballot for candidates, on the first ballot the vote stood: Cleveland, 392; Bayard, 170; Randall, 78; Thurman, 88; McDonald, 56; Carlisle, 27; Hoadley, 3; Flower, 4; Tilden, 1. Necessary to a choice, 547.

On the second ballot the vote was: Cleveland, 683; Bayard, 81; Hendricks, 45; Thurman, 4; McDonald, 2; Randall, 4. A motion was then made and udopted by the Convention declaring Mr. Cleveland to be the unanimous choice for President.

Hendricks, of Indiana, was unanimously nominated for the Vice-Presidency.

FIRST ASCENT OF MT. WHITNEY.

First Named Fisherman's Peak, by Its First Climbers.

There has been some considerable discussion at various times as to whom the honor was due of first ascending what is now known as Mt. Whitney—the summit now by all conceded to be the highest point of land in the United States. The honor has been persistently claimed by A. H. Johnson, lately deceased, John Lucas and C. D. Begole, who without doubt, on the 18th day of August, 1873, at 2 o'clock on that day, made the climb and were the first white men to stand upon that lofty point. They named the mountain Fisherman's Peak, for that they were at the time engaged in a fishing excursion in the meadows of Monache, which lie just to the west of Whitney and are fed by the waters of what is now called Whitney Creek, and the headwaters of Kern River. The mountain bore this name until the 19th day of September, 1873, at which date Clarence King, then in the employ of Professor Whitney, State Geologist of California, made the ascent and named the mountain Mt. Whitney, after his patron. Previous to this date, however, that is on Sept. 6, 1873, another party made up of Carl Rabb and others, as will appear in the copy of notice left by them on the summit, made the ascent. King, by the record, appears to have been the third instead of the first who made the ascent; and in the light of the following interesting data, it does not appear by what right he assumed to change the name of the mountain as he did: In 1875, on October 3d, J. M. Hutchings, of Yosemite, and whose name is indissolubly connected with that magnificent gorge, made the ascent with a party under the guidance of A. H. Johnson, who was, as before stated, one of the first to climb the mountain and give it a name. He found upon the apex of the peak, preserved from the action of the elements by inclosure in a tin case, notices, of which the following are exact and true copies. This tin case, which has become historic, was, as we understand it, placed there by the first climbers, and was recognized and used for the same purpose by all the subsequent parties. Hutchings was an enthusiatic believer in the fact that Lucas, Begole and Johnson were justly entitled to the honor of naming Whitney; and the following letter, written to Mr. Johnson several years after the completion of his trip, will serve to prove his devotion to that idea:

"YOSEMITE VALLEY, Sept. 8th, 1881.

DEAR MR. JOHNSON:—Inclosed please find copy of all the notices we found in the tin case on Fisherman's Peak, Oct. 3d, 1875. I hope it will be of service to you and to the right. Would it not be well to get them published, and thus preserve them for future reference? My intention was to write a magazine article, illustrated for Harper or Scribner; but never seem to have found time. I may do it yet; should I do so, I should feel it my duty to give Clarence King a severe censure for interfering with the name given to it by the men whose pluck and perseverance enabled them to reach its exalted summit first. I say "All honor to them;" but unlike King, who, after using the same language, belittles himself by smothering the name and placing that of his patron, Whitney, thereon, I say all honor to the men and to the name given to it by the men who alone had the right to name it.

While writing out the above notices from my note book, I seem to live our very interesting trip over again. How well and pleasantly I remember it, and the unvarying kindnesses I received from the people we found in your section, especially yours.

The way we returned was this: We went up the Owens River to Long Valley; up Long Valley to the Hot Springs and Hot Mud Springs; there we took a trail leading north past a mountain of obsidian or volcanic glass, and thence to Boulder's Ranch, in Bloody Cañon about four miles above the Mono Lake; thence up the Bloody Cañon to Mono Pass, via the Soda Springs down to the Yosemite. The pass from the Hot Springs to Boulder's Ranch is very good—no bad places whatever. Should you guide a party you cannot miss it that way. I should like to see you. Please give my kind regards to your brother. Could you get me a few pounds of the Pinus Aristata? You remember the long panther-tail-like boughs of the pine we saw when on our way to Fisherman's Peak; that is it. There is also a silver fir there that I should like some seed of, and a sack of piñon or pine nuts. In the hope of seeing you in this grand old valley, I remain ever sincerely yours,

J. M. HUTCHINGS."

THE NOTICES ON THE PEAK.

"The following notices placed here at the respective dates given having been destroyed, I take great pleasure in copying them from my notebook and returning them where they belong.

J. M. HUTCHINGS, Yosemite."

"August 18th, 1873, 2 P. M.

John Lucas, A. H. Johnson, C. D. Begole, first men on this summit. We christen it Fisherman's Peak."

"On Sat., Sept. 6th, 1873, this peak was visited by Carl Rabbe, W. M. Crapo, T. McDonough, W. L. Hunter."

"Sept. 19th. This peak, Mt. Whitney" (is this fair or just to the first climbers and name givers?) "was this day climbed by Clarence King, U. S. Geologist, and Frank F. Knowles, of Tule River. On Sept. 1st in New York, I first learned that the high peak south of here which I climbed in 1871 was not Mt. Whitney," (C. King had so named it) "and I immediately came here." (a month too late to be its name giver.) "Clouds and storms prevented me from recognizing this in 1871, or I should have come here then. All honor to those who climbed here before me.

CLARENCE KING."

"J. T. Belshaw, Wm. Crapo, W. R. Johnson, of Cerro Gordo, July 7, 1875."

"Yosemite: John Muir, Geo. B. Baily, San Francisco; Chas. E. Washburn, San José; July 22d, 1875."

"T. McDonough, aged 54; Carl Rabbe aged 39; Wm. Crappo, aged 31; W. L. Hunter, aged 31. Summit of Mt. Whitney, Sat., Sept. 6th, 1873."

NOTICE OF THE WHEELER PARTY, 1875.

"Name of peak, 'Fisherman's Peak;' top Sta.—Station No. 10; approximate altitude, 14,950 feet. Party No. 1, Main Division; executive officer, Lt. Geo. M. Wheeler; asst., W. A. Cowles, Yale, '73, meteorological asst., Frank Holland, P. M. A. '75. En route from head of Kern River to Kernville. Date Sept. 24th, 1875. Corps of Engineers, U. S. A.: W. A. Cowles, Frank Holland, Capt. Hampton Hutton, and Joe Denel, all connected with the Wheeler expedition, climbed this mountain peak Sept. 24th, 1875. At the request of the first visitors we retain the old name 'Fisherman's Peak.' Cistern barometer temp. 37.3, reading 17,820; wet bulb 29°, dry bulb, 35°."

25 cent piece U. S. coin marked "C. E. Washburn."

"This is Fisherman's Peak, and not Mt. Whitney. We had a tough climb over the saw-teeth ridges southeast. It is very cold up here."

FISHERMAN'S PEAK, Oct. 3d, 1875.

J. M. Hutchings, of Yosemite, on a photographic tour of the High Sierras in company with W. E. James, photographer, climbed Fisherman's Peak with instruments and took a seriee of photographic views from this lofty summit. Height by aneroid barometer, 15,018 feet; thermo. 41, water boiled at 187° thermo. The following party made the ascent together under the guidance of Mr. A. H. Johnson of the first party of climbers and namegivers of Fisherman's Peak. A. Kellog, M. D., botanist; J. M. Hutchings, Yosemite; Prof. W. E. James, photographer; Dr. C. B. White, U. S. A., from Camp Independence; A. H. Johnson, (an excellent guide), Lone Pine; Edmund Bedford, Yosemite; and George P. Stanley, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; packers, James Fleming, U. S. A., and Jno. F. Cannell, U. S. A., from Camp Independence. The course by compass of the different mountain peaks in sight from tke top of Fisherman's Peak: Mt. Williamson, 330; Mt. Brewer, 290; Mt. Tyndall, 300; Mt. Whitney, center of highest point, 130; Cerro Gordo Peak, 80; Olancha, 138; Kehwewah Peak, 238; Lone Pine village, 58; Camp Independence 356. This photographic party pursued the following course: Left Yosemite Valley at 2:25 P. M., Sept. 3d, 1875; thence to Mts. Lyell and Ritter, Minarettes, &c., via the head waters of the north fork of San Joaquin; thence across Sierras into Long Valley; down Long Valley to the Owens River Valley, Camp Independence, Lone Pine. Thence by the "Hackett Trail" to this point, Fisherman's Peak, of course, taking views of every prominent and interesting point in the way. At Camp Independence, Dr. C. B. White, U. S. A., became one of our party; at Lone Pine, Mr. A. H. Johnson. Mr. A. H. Johnson was one of the three that first climbed 'Fisherman's Peak" and gave it its name—and who, being the ffrst to set feet upon its lofty crown, were justly entitled to christen it. Prof. James was the first photographer, we presume, to take views from this high standpoint."

J. M. H.

In King's notice, the words in parenthesis were written by Hutchins, and are to be left out in reading what King intended to convey in his notice.

The Peak referred to by King as having been previously climbed and named by him is that commanding peak which stands some ten miles southeast of the present Mt. Whitney, and is now often called—whether erronneously or not we do not undertake to decide—The Sheep's Horn.

Reading together the entire record, it stands undisputed that the party from Lone Pine before named were the first to ascend the present Mt. Whitney, and gave it, as they had a right to by priority of ascent, the name of Fisherman's Peak. It may be that King was chagrined at his failure to properly estimate the height of the mountain he had ascended and the one he afterwards ascended, "a month too late," and determined by a bold stroke to control affairs and given events. He calculated aright, for ever since the mountain has borne the name of Whitney. It is so marked upon all maps and will doubtless pass unchallenged forever—and we cannot say that at this late day it would be wise to change it; but it should be conceded and allowed without question that Lucas, Begole and Johnson were the first to ascend it. This would not only be an act of pure justice, but would be the true statement of a historical fact of considerable interest and importance—and this article is written not so much in a spirit of criticism as to crystalize a fact, that it may, to all time, remain a truth without question.

Professor James, mentioned in the Hutchings notice, made a number of photographtc views from the summit of the mountain which are as grand in character of scenery as anything ever taken in the Sierra Nevada—not excepting even Yosemite itself. The negatives of these views have unfortunately been destroyed, but a complete set of the pictures were preserved by Mr. Johnson, and which, at the present time are in the possession of his widow at Lone Pine.

Mt. Whitney will each year increase in interest, and will yet become famous as a point of venture to tourists. The establishment of an observatory, and the construction of a trail from Owens River Valley to its summit, will greatly add to its fame already world-wide, as a supreme and towering summit of the world

A COMMUNICATION was received at the INDEPENDENT office yesterday morning, from a person who has some thought of moving to Inyo county. The writer says that reports are current in distant places that rattlesnakes and tarantulas are so plenty in Inyo, that one is in constant danger of death from one or the other of these pests. Now we can assure our correspondent that after careful inquiry we have not been able to find one person who has ever seen a tarantula in the county. As for the snakes, not having sampled the whisky yet we cannot give full information. The streams that pour down from the eternal snows of the heaven-kissing Sierras furnish a beverage for which Jove himself might forsake his nectar.

THE liabilities of Grant, Ward & Co., amount to more than sixteen and three-quarter millions of dollars. It is estimated that their assets will pay one-third of one cent on each dollar of indebtedness. In a burst of candor, Jim Fisk once characterized one of his own transactions as "an almighty robbery." If Jim were now alive, Mr. Ward could give him instruction in robbery.

TERRIBLE ACCIDENT.—A terrible accident occurred at Bodie last Tuesday. The Miner says: When sixteen or seventeen men were passing through Drift No. 2, of the Syndicate mine, going to their work this morning some giant powder cartridges exploded, killing Thomas H. Smithem, (lately from Leadville) and Gus Renaud, or Reno, (an old-time Bodieite) and wounding J. F. Wight about the face and eyes. Renaud was ahead of Wight and there were several men in advance of Renaud; he carried his giant cartridges in his hip pocket, the explosion cut him nearly in two about the hips, breaking the bones of one leg and otherwise mutilating him. Smithem was behind Wight and several men were in the rear of Smithem. He carried a pick and picker on his right arm with a candle in his right hand. In the right hand pocket of his jumper he had some giant cartridges, and in his left hand jumper pocket was some fuse already capped. Nobody knows whether the candle was the cause of the explosion or the pick and picker striking together. Smithem was cut in two across the breast and stomach. His bowels were blown out exposing his back bone. One rib twelve inches long with flesh attached was blown into a crevice overhead. J. F. Wight was cut up in the face with gravel and one eye was closed, but he can see out of it.

SUPERVISOR'S MEETIEG.—The Board of Supervisors met on Monday as a Board of Equalization. All the members of the Board were present, and proceeded to an examination of the Assessment Roll. This duty occupied the Board from day to day. S. A. Densmore and C. A. Walter appeared before the Board on Wednesday, and made application for a reduction of taxation on lands lying within the limits of the Military Reservation at Camp Independence. These applications are still under consideration at the time of going to press.

SACKS OF SWEETNESS—Honey is so abundant in Round Valley this year that bee owners are embarrassed what to do with it. Mr. Jones says that he has already filled pots, crocks, buckets and barrels with it. When he was leaving home a few days ago Mrs. Jones called after him to know what she should do with what the bees are still making, and he shouted back to her to have it dumped into the grain sacks.

MAXIM MILL.—The Maxim mill was started up last Monday morning. Mr. Nevins, who is in charge, says everything is running along smoothly, and the prospect for a good run is first-rate. The mine is looking well, with plenty of ore in sight. It is the intention of the management to put in Frue concentrators at an early day.

THE SILVA CASE.—Counsel have been occupied the greater part of the week arguing the case of Silva, charged with high misdemeanor, in misrepresenting the condition of the Sterling mine to the purchasers. The case is still on up to the time of going to press.

SLATE RANGE MINES.—The suits in connection with these mines were called in the Superior Court on Monday, but by agreement of counsel were passed on the calendar for a period of sixty days. It is expected that an agreement will be had satisfactory to all concerned.

PLEASANT PARTY.—On Thursday evening there was a pleasant party at the Blaney House. Doctor Blair was master of ceremonies, and eclipsed the youngest in grace and vigor of movement. The party dispersed soon after midnight.

SOME FRUIT.—The fruit trees in Round Valley are so loaded with fruit that on every tree the limbs must be propped to keep them from breaking down. This is the heaviest crop of apples and plums ever seen in the valley.

SLATE RANGE MINE.—The mill will be started up next Monday to work a lot of ore that is now on hand. It is not expected that the present run will continue long.

Bishop Happenings.

California fruit has made its appearance in the market.

An auction sale of the goods remaining in the O K Cash Store was held on Saturday.

Jack Horton has been at Bodie taking in the races there. He took several of his best racehorses with him.

A week ago last Thursday night a Lodge of Good Templars was organized in Round Valley, by John C. Mills and others, from Bishop Creek.

Dr. W. H. George, who had his leg broken some time since by being thrown from a horse, has nearly recovered, and will soon be around, as well as ever.

An ore shipment, amounting to 15,600 pounds, was lately made from the Reed mine, owned by Messrs. Stoutenborough and Stanley. No returns have as yet been received.

Something outsiders can not fail to notice is the large flower garden in front of the residence of Mrs. S. G. Sneden. Nearly everything is in bloom, and the effect is very pleasing.

Water is very high all around town. The road to the depot is covered with it at many points. At his own expense, Mr. Clarke bridged it at some places, and filled in others, employing for a few days, a force of seven men.

Vegetation is suffering much from the ravages of army worms. They are said to be so thick as to completely hide the growing crops in some places. Corngrowers will be the heaviest losers, though much damage will undoubtedly be done to other crops.

A French sheepherder, name unknown, came to Bishop on the train from the south a week or so since, suffering from a badly mangled hand. It seems that he found a giant powder cap laying on a rock near Big Pine, and proceeded to examine it, presumably to ascertain what it contained, when it exploded, blowing off the thumb and index finger of his right hand. He expressed himself as having lost all desire to investigate such things. He is rapidly improving, under the care of Dr. Middleton.

PERSONAL.—Mr. John E. Jones and his daughter, Miss Jones of Round Valley, passed through last Thursday on their way to Los Angeles, where Miss Jones will attend the high school. ....Mr. McMurry, of Big Pine, came down last Thursday. That big pine can't look very big when Mr. McMurry stands beside it and looks down at it. ....Mr. Welch of the State Range mine came up last Wednesday....Joe Harris, John W. P. Laird, S. D. Woods, Judge Burnett, and A. Spencer came down from Bishop Creek Monday; also J. C. White, same day....J. J. Gunn, for Darwin, same day... Mrs. Gregg and family, accompanied by Miss Mary Dolphin, who have been visiting the upper country for some time past, returned home Monday....Senator Pat Reddy and his nephew Alvah L. Conklin, returned from Darwin last Tuesday....Mrs. Galvin was up from the depot Wednesday.

NEW DISCOVERY.—It is reliably reported that there has been made recently a discovery of a large deposit of lead and silver ore about four miles easterly from the town of Keeler. The deposit lies at the southwestern end of the Buena Vista mountain, on which the celebrated Union Consolidated mine of Cerro Gordo is situated. The indications are that this discovery is of large extent and of good quality as to ores. The fortunate discoverers and owners are Natt Randall and W. R. Johnson.

INDEPENDENCE MINE.—Messrs. Wilson, McKenzie, Willis and Jerry Fitzgerald are getting out a lot of ore at the Independence mine at Darwin, to ship to Dayton. The vein is of immense extent and the ore carries a high percentage of metal. On the surface it is rich in copper, but, as in similar formations elsewhere, it is expected to contain lead and silver, with perhaps some gold, at a greater depth. Should the result of the first shipment of ore be satisfactory, the proprietors will doubtless work the mine on an extensive scale.

SUICIDE.—On Tuesday last Nicholas Peterson committed suicide at Big Pine by taking laudanum. Some weeks ago Mr. Peterson lost three children by scarlet fever; this seemed to oppress him with deep grief and despondency; under the influence of these feelings he most unfortunately took to drinking more liquor than was at all usual with him. This of course aggravated his melancholy, under the influence of which he committed the act that all who knew him so deeply deplore.

BRIEGE IMPASSABLE.—Last Thursday the bank of the river at the south end of the bridge near Eclipse was washed out; a large volume of water is now running between the end of the bridge and the bank, completely barring all passage that way. Travelers must cross the river at Independence or Lone Pine, as there is no passable bridge between these places. The bridge at Beveridge has been impassable during the past two weeks.

ASCENT OF WHITNEY.—A party of gentlemen, made up from Carson and San Francisco, are coming to make the ascent of Mount Whitney on or about August 10th. Another party of English gentlemen are now at Mojave awaiting advices from Richard Runkle as to the possibility of a climb at the present time. Runkle left Lone Pine on Thursday last for the fishing ground and will at once report as to condition of trails, quantity of snow etc.

LIGHTNING STRIKERS. — Norman Conklin, Bert. Rhine and Willie Chalfant have put up a telegraph line, connecting with their several homes; with the store of Harris & Rhine, and with the printing office. The boys are determined to keep up constant practice till they shall all become expert operators.

AT BISHOP CREEK.

How Our National Birthday Was Celebrated There.—The Literary Exercises, Races, Games, Etc.

The many pleasure-seekers who arrived at the Bishop Creek station on the night of the 3d, found conveyances in waiting to take them across to the town free of expense to themselves, the teams being furnished by the Committee of Arrangements. On the arrival of the visitors in town, after a pleasant moonlit ride, the Committee saw that all were provided with lodging accommodations, and Bishop settled down for a brief rest. It was indeed brief; for soon the roaring of anvils, bombs, and other sleep-banishing contrivances announced the near presence of the "ever-glorious Fourth." At sunrise, another salute of thirteen guns was fired.

The town was liberally decorated. Suspended across Main street, from Wm. Hutchings' saloon to the store of J. H. Stoutenborough, was the following—simple but expressive:

W E L C O M E !

This was flanked by flags. Every house of business was fairly covered with bunting, evergreens, mottoes, etc. And our flag was not the only one which appeared. There were observable many other national ensigns, attesting the friendship and good-will toward us of the countries they represented. But over all, from the public flagstaff floated that emblem of liberty which, at least in the opinion of Americans, should float over all—the stars and stripes.

THE LITERARY EXERCISES.

By the time set for commencing, a large number of people had assembled in the grove on the grounds of the Baptist church, where the literary exercises of the day were to be held. A platform had been erected for the speakers, and an ample number of seats provided for the audience. At 11 o'clock, Mr. T. T. Cook introduced Mr. S. D. Woods as the President of the Day. Mr. Woods made a brief address, and finished by introducing the Chaplain, Rev. A. Clark, who then offered prayer.

The Candelaria String Band, comprising cornet, violin, guitar and bass viol, played "The Red, White and Blue," after which Mr. Woods delivered a patriotic, though brief, address.

The choir followed with a well-rendered song, "All hail the joyful morning." The choir was composed as follows: Miss Alice Howell, Miss Susie White, Miss Bennie White, Mrs. T. T. Cook, soprano; Mrs. Smale, Mrs. Chas. McKay, alto; Chas. Wonacott, tenor; Wm. J. Dunn, J. H. Shannon, N. C. Young, bass; Miss Carrie V. Stoutenborough, organist.

The Declaration of Independence was read in a forcible manner by Mr. J. H. Shannon.

"Let the Hills and Vales Resound," a patriotic song, was given by the choir.

Mrs. Luna Hutchinson, Poetess of the day, read an original poem, her subject being "Our Country." Although, as Mrs. Hutchinson stated, the poem was the same one as delivered two years before by her, yet many to whom it was new attentively listened to and appreciated it.

Following this was a double quartette by the choir—"My Cottage Home." It was well received.

Mr. Woods, in eloquent language, introduced Miss Elma Yaney, reader of Drake's "Address to the American Flag." Miss Yaney (who lately graduated, with the highest honors, from the State Normal School), read that grand old poem in a manner that caused all to feel more truly Americans and patriots; and many are the words of praise we have heard regarding the reading.

The choir rendered, in a very creditable manner, "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Mr. P. W. Forbes was introduced as the Orator of the day, and delivered the oration. All who heard Mr. Forbes speak highly of his address, and declare it well worthy of repetition in print; but as space will not admit of printing the whole of it, the following brief synopsis, kindly furnished by Mr. W. A. Harris, short-hand reporter, of Dayton, Nev., must suffice:

"Fellow Citizens:—We are here to-day as humble worshipers at the glorious shrine of Liberty; as free Americans, our hearts beat responsive to its music. We are here to celebrate our glorious country's preservation, to keep burning the fires of patriotism and liberty. Our joyful hearts throb in unison to Liberty's sweetest strain. * To-day, all over this great land, from the rock-bound coast of New England to the Golden Gate, from the sullen Atlantic to the smiling Pacific, patriotic millions mingle their voices in shouts of gladness. * The high and holy sentiments of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man, are to-day recognized, while in every city, town and hamlet, floating gallantly and proudly, is that bright starry emblem, snatched from the canopy of Heaven—the dear old flag. * There are times when, surrounded by death, like Rachel, weeping for her children and refusing to be comforted, sadness reigns supreme. But the cloud passes away, and we see its silver lining. To-day Joy, with lightsome step advancing, holds us captive with her smile. * Our mind to-day insensibly goes back to the revolutionary period. The mists of the years vanish, and we are with our ancestors in their ever memorable struggle for independence, where a million heroes wrested from the grasp of the tyrant King of England their freedom, their ownership to the fairest part of all God's bright creation. * The Declaration of Independence sounded the death knell of oppression. The emissaries of King George too late made concessions. The down trodden people would not listen. The Promised Land of Liberty, with its green pastures and bright waters, was within their vision, and like the Israelites they would not return to the bondage of Egypt. Then began that fearful struggle. * Let us not forget the women of the Revolution. The memory of Molly Pitcher stands out prominently as a remarkable instance of bravery in that heroic age. The spirit which animated the mothers of the Revolution was akin to that of the Spartan mother who sent her son to battle, with instructions to bring back his shield or be brought back upon it. * At last the priceless boon of liberty was won, sanctified and sealed by the blood of many battle fields. Peace, under the auspices of Liberty, ushered in an era of progress before unknown in the history of the world.

Civilization waved its magic wand over the land, and our valleys smiled with golden wheat and corn; while on every hillside, beside the rippling streams, rose, as if enchanted, countless villages; now teeming cities enjoying the benefits of the numberless great inventions since then, alive to the mysterious pulsations of the telegraph and awake to the music of the locomotive.

To-day we have the bravest, most gallant men, the most beautiful, cultured and truest hearted women in the world. * To be able to say, "I am an American citizen," is as great an honor and as proud a boast as was ever made by the haughty Roman when saying 'To be a Roman citizen is to be greater than a king.'

I thank you for your kind attention."

"America" was sung by the choir, after which the President, on behalf of the Committee of Arrangements, extended to all a cordial invitation to partake of the GRAND BARBECUE.

Tables were spread under the trees on the Baptist Church grounds, and refreshments of every kind and description, contributed by the people of the vicinity, placed thereon. The large crowd then sat down and partook of a first-class dinner. Many who claim to be competent to judge state that in their opinion the barbecued meats served on the occasion were superior to anything of the kind they had ever before seen. After the barbecue came the RACES AND SPORTS.

The first prize offered was a cash prize of $6, for climbing the greased pole. No one succeeded in gliding up the 18 feet of slippery pine, and the fun was declared off until evening, when the prize was taken by a young gentleman whose name could not be ascertained.

The sack race for boys under 16 was won, after a close contest, by Bart. Conroy. Prize, $3.

The free-for-all sack race was won by Negro Sam. Prize, $5.

A number of couples took part in the three-legged race, free for all, for a $5 purse. It was won by Vernon Smith and Joe McNally.

The wheelbarrow race created more amusement than anything else on the programme. The contestants were blindfolded, and the first to amble over the 75-yard course with his wheelbarrow and pass between two posts, 15 or 20 feet apart, secured the prize of $5. No one came up to requirements on the first run; and on the second trial, Fred. Bulpitt took the race and money.

The boys' footrace, for a $3 prize, was won by Pete Conroy.

A number contested for the prize of $8 for the winner of the free-for-all footrace. Won by Charley Olds, of Round Valley.

The foot-ball match, for a prize of $10, was contested by teams under the leadership of Chas. Olds and Vernon Smith, and after a sharp fight, was won by the latter.

After the regular programme was finished, two purses of $5 each were offered, for two games of foot ball, to be played between whites and Indians. The aborigines took the coin in two straight games.

Barna Peeler, J. H. Bulpitt and Chas. Wonacott managed the sports, to the entire satisfaction of all.

The Mexican population entertained the visitors for some time by a "chicken pulling," but the chicken, after many narrow escapes from a violent death, was taken out of the ground as tenderly as it had been placed there.

THE FIREWORKS AND DANCE.

In the evening, the discharge of a bomb called the people to the south end of town, where the fireworks were to be. A great variety of rockets and candles were shown, besides pinwheels, bombs and mortars, colored fires, etc. The best pieces of the evening were a large eagle, and "July 4, 1884." Bud. Stoutenborough had charge of this department, and his work excited general admiration.

The ball was a grand affair. Swearingen's Hall was crowded, and many went to Hutching's Hall, leaving the former still comfortably filled. Fine music was to be found at both, and the sun was well above the Inyos on the 5th before the dancers stayed "the light fantastic toe."

Space will not permit a long summing up, but here it is in brief: No accidents; every one pleased; all declare it to be one of the pleasant celebrations they ever had the fortune to witness.

Here and There.

H. Levy has started an opposition stage between the town and the R. R. depot.

Where, oh where, is that box of barbecued meat? Will some one rise and explain?

Edward Chenot was admitted to citizenship by Judge Hannah last Tuesday. Mr. Chenot took out his first papers in 1852; he is an old settler, and successful business man.

It is something of a change from the pines and snows of Plumas county, to be able to reach from the office window at Independence, and gather from the trees ripe peaches and apricots at will. These fruits are now plentiful in our local market.

On Wednesday last Messrs. Clark and Perrin, of Salt Lake went down to Wild Rose District to examine the extensive antimony deposits of that district owned by My Harmon and Paul Pefferle. Messrs. Clark and Perrin are extensively engaged in the reduction of antimony at Antimony City, Garfield county, Utah.

THE GREENLY MILL.—Messrs. P. A. Chalfant and Geo. Thorpe are just in from Deep Spring District, where they have been engaged in constructing, and for the past month, in running the above named mill. Mr. Chalfant informs us that while some of the ores worked did not clean up to the big figures hoped for by the boys, not a single lot, worked from four different mines, but gave a fair margin of profits. Although not a single ton but was worked as it came from the mine—without any sorting whatever. With the exception of one small lot, the ores put through worked remarkably free, the only appliances at present in use in the mill for saving the gold being a complete set of fine amalgamating plates. In due time other appliances, particularly a concentrator, will be added, for use on both the gold and silver ores of the district. Mr. Chalfant says that while he does not claim to know of any wonderfully rich mines in the district, he does know of many that will as certainly pay a fair margin of profits as that they are worked, as most of them will be right along. At present he is confined to his bed by sickness, but barring delay on that account will, together with Mr. Thorpe, return immediately.

HURRAH FOR CLEVELAND!—When the news of Cleveland's nomination was received yesterday afternoon, preparations were at once begun for a demonstration in honor of the event. Flags were flung to the breeze, the mountain howitzers boomed, bonfires blazed, colored lanterns were hung out, and the stand was prepared for the orators. Later in the evening the people assembled in front of the Court-house. The meeting was called to order by District Attorney Laird, who introduced Mr. Miner, a young lawyer from Mono county. Mr. Miner dwelt at length upon the need of reform in politics; plead that the history of the Democratic party during the past twenty-five years be forgotten, and the party be now given a chance to show what it will do, and promised that the result would be satisfactory. Senator Reddy was next introduced, and in his address dwelt upon the abuses of corporations; claimed that they were the creatures of Republican rule, and would never be effectually controlled till the Democratic party was placed in power. Mr. Reddy, in this off-hand speech, fully maintained the glorious reputation for eloquence of the race from which he springs. At Bishop Creek and other places in the county similar rejoicing prevailed.

POLITA.—Mr. Wm. Irwin, Superintendent of the Polita mine, near Bishop Creek, has now a force of seven men at work on the property, and will put another gang on in a few days. He says that if there is anything in the mine he will find it. He has been making arrangements to have the ore worked in the Hawley mill. From 600 to 800 tons of ore on the dumps, and work will be pushed in the mine.

ARM BROKEN.—While Mr. and Mrs. Henry Evans, of Round Valley, were crossing Bishop Creek, near John Bourland's ranch, a few days since, their team swung around in the stream and became unmanageable. The team got upon the bank and ran away, throwing Mrs. Evans out and breaking her arm at the wrist. She was, at last reports, getting along very well.

YOSEMITE AND THE BIG TREES.—Billy Matlack and family, of this place, and George Gill and family, of Bishop Creek, left in company last Monday for a pleasure jaunt across the grand old Sierras. They will visit Yosemite valley and the Calaveras Big Trees before returning.

EXAMINATION OF BIDS.—The Board of Supervisors will meet July 15th—next Monday—to examine bids for the purchase of Inyo county bonds. Bids will be received until noon of that day at the office of the County Treasurer.

A HAPPY MAN.—Dr. C. C. Wainwright, formerly of Bishop Creek, now of San Bernardino, was presented with a solid addition to his possessions last week; it weighed 9½ pounds, and the Doctor now speaks of "my boy."

A NEW MAN AT THE BELLOWS.—During the absence of Billy Matlack, Uncle Abe Parker will keep the bellows at the blacksmith shop full of wind, and the forge fires ablaze.

DISMISSED.—The information against Julian Aguitar was, on Wednesday last upon motion of his counsel, dismissed.

FINAL PROOF.—John Redding, of Bishop Creek, gives notice of intention to make final proof.

H. L. Childs has been appointed Receiver of the Bodie Land Office.

PROBATE NOTICE.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE COUNTY of Inyo, State of California.

In the matter of the Estate of G. C. Gracey, deceased

Order to show cause why Order of Sale of real estate should not be made.

It appearing to the Judge of said Court, by the petition this day presented and filed by V G. Thompson, the Administrator of the estate of G. C. Gracey, deceased, praying for an Order of Sale of real estate, that it is necessary to sell the whole of the real estate to pay the debts, expenses and charges of administration.

It is therefore ordered by the Judge of said Court, that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased, appear before the said Superior Court, on MONDAY, the FOURTEENTH DAY OF JULY, A. D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the Court-room of said Superior Court, at the Court-room, in said County of Inyo, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said Administrator to sell so much of the real estate of the said deceased, as shall be necessary.

And that a copy of this Order be published at least four successive weeks in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper printed and published in said county.

THE CZAR'S LOVE ADVENTURE.

The father of Peter the Great, Alexis Michaelowitz, was one of the most popular Czars Russia ever had, and he would have been one of the greatest if his brilliant son had not eclipsed him.

Like many other crowned heads we have read about, Alexis was wont to dress in plain civilian's garb or a common soldier's uniform, and move among his subjects thus finding out their likes and dislikes, their wrongs and grievances; and very frequently the monarch's ukases were the result of the private's experiences among the people.

Not far from Moscow lived a poor nobleman, named Matwies, who often received visits from the Czar in his various disguises. Although Matwies recognized the czar every time, he was always careful to treat him according to his disguise, so that the other members of his family were entirely ignorant as to the real character of the visitor. One day the czar visited Matwies dressed as a captain of the "guards." While conversing together, a young lady entered the room where they were, but immediately retreated when she found it occupied. Alexis saw enough of her to notice that she was beautiful.

"Who is this young lady, Matwies?" he asked, after she had closed the door. "I never saw her here."

"That is Nathalie Narajchkin, a distant relative from the country. She is poor but amiable, and is an apt pupil. I have adopted her in my family, and love her as my own."

"Well," answered the czar, "take good care of her and teach her well, and I will find her a husband and give her a wedding present. Does she know me?"

"She does not, sir. She never goes out. She never saw you."

"Introduce me to her as a simple captain and do not let her know who I am."

At dinner the czar met Nathalie and found her a very intelligent and highly interesting maiden, so much so that he fell desperately in love with her, and the great czar of all the Russians was conquered by a modest girl.

From that day the czar came more frequently than ever before, and being handsome and gallant it was but a short time before Nathalie found herself longing for the visits of the captain. Although no declaration was made, yet she was not blind to the captain's devotion to her.

Matwies, however, saw with alarm their growing attachment to each other, as he was aware of the fact that the czar was about to choose a wife from among the most handsome noblewomen of the empire, and he feared that his acquaintance with Nathalie would end ignominiously.

On the day before the one appointed by the czar to choose his czarina he once more came to Matwies as captain.

"Matwies," he said, "you know that to-morrow I shall make a choice from the ladies of the Kremlin as to who shall share the throne with me. I desire Nathalie to be present and choose for herself a husband from among my courtiers, and whoever the fortunate man will be I shall rapidly promote him."

"Your will shall be obeyed, sire," answered Matwies.

"Well, then, remember that for twenty-four more hours I am the captain to Nathalie."

On the evening of the long expected day the entire city was illuminated and the palace was gorgeously decorated, while the brilliant lights threw their beams far across its surroundings. Inside all gayety, but with the handsomely attired ladies it was anxiety. Who should be the happy one? And they all rivaled each other in the splendor of dress and sweetness of manners. One, however, was more confident of success than all others, and that was the handsome but haughty Elizabeth, who was considered to be the belle of Moscow.

As the czar had been wont to mingle with these ladies occasionally in various incognitos, while one of his courtiers was representing him, none of the ladies knew whether the czar was present or not. Adding to this that the gentlemen were very anxious for the time to approach when the czar should command the masks to be lifted.

Way back in a corner, with Matwies, sat the humble Nathalie, with a plain dress and not a diamond to adorn her beauty.

She thoroughly enjoyed this, to her so novel a scene. Suddenly she recognized among the masks her lover, by his captain's uniform. As soon as the captains wandering eyes had found what they looked for half hid in a corner he came to her. She asked him whether or no the ezar had made his choice yet.

"No," not yet," answered the captain. "But come with me and I will bring you nearer the monarch, and who knows but what he might choose you, when he sees you."

"Oh, no!" says Nathalie, "I do not desire a crown, and how can I compete with so much beauty. Moreover," she added, looking archly at his eyes as they shone through his mask. "I am happy enough now."

"You are very modest, Nathalie. Remember you may add to the happiness of your czar."

"I do not desire to be a czarina. Please, do not insist any longer," she answered rather reproachfully.

Alexis saw that the only woman he cared for loved him also.

Going a few steps away from her he commands—

"Lift your masks!"

A deep silence pervaded the room and every eye rested on the czar. The ladies trembled with fear and expectation, while the noblemen were curiously waiting to see to whom the honor should fall.

The czar takes his crown, and placing it on the head of the modest Nathalie, says,—

"Noblemen, see your czarina!"

The masked gentleman with whom the haughty Elizabeth had been promenading, and whom she felt sure to be the czar, was the court jester.

A Thrifty New-Made Widower.

An eccentric character living in western Massachusetts had the misfortune to lose his wife, and all arrangements were made for interring the worthy lady's remains with fitting solemnity. When the hour for the ceremony arrived, however, the bereaved husband was nowhere to be found, and consternation fell upon the funeral guests as the minutes passed without his appearing. Just as suspense was becoming unbearable the widower came striding in from the back yard, puffing as if from violent exertion, his clothes covered with mud and his shirt sleeves rolled to the elbow. "Well, now," he exclaimed in a loud tone, as he came upon the silent company awaiting him, "is everything all ready? I thought as it was a kind of a broken day I'd take time by the forelock and clean out the well. I won't be mor'n two jiffies fixin' up, and then, if you hurry things a little, parson, we shall get to the grave full as quick 's if I'd been sittin' here wastin' half a day."

Nip And Tuck.

The train was rattling on, rickety click, rickety click.

"I was in such a hurry to catch the train I didn't wait to buy a ticket," said the New York banker, offering money.

"Yes," replied the conductor, abstractedly, as he punched the next man's ticket. "I notice that a good many New York bankers are in a hurry to catch the trains newadays."

"Well, sir, you needn't be insolent; here is money to pay my fare."

"I know, but I can't take it, sir."

"Ah, I see; the company doesn't let you conductors take money. 'Fraid you'll steal it. I see."

"No, sir, there is no company rule against my taking it."

"Then why don't you take it?"

"I'm afraid I'd be arrested for receiving stolen property."

The banker looked out of the window at the shady groves and cool, pellucid streams, while the train went rattling on, rickety click, rickety click.

Alfalfa and Bloat.

There seems to be a tendency in the clover family, and especially in alfalfa, to ferment rapidly in the stomach, generating expanding gases, producing what is generally denominated "bloat," and in a majority of cases resulting fatally. Gov. Stanford has had the misfortune to lose three fine young Holsteins this Spring at Vina from this cause. The superintendent, Mr. W. H. Smith, states that no difficulty of this kind has been experienced in previous years, and he is at a loss to account for the loss this year, unless it may be from the lateness of the season that kept the alfalfa back, and then the hot weather came so suddenly, causing the clover to grow very fast, and perhaps having an excess of water. This is only a surmise. At any rate he has taken all the young animals off the alfalfa, not caring to take the risks of any more deaths. He thinks there will be no danger later in the season.—Spirit of the Times.

The Honeymoon.

Delighted Young Husband—"What a treasure you are, my love. I thought you were so bound up in music and painting and embroidery and such things that you would not think of giving attention to such unpoetic things as meals, but here you have one of the most delicious plum puddings I have ever eaten."

Blushing Bride—"Oh, I do not forget that you always liked nice things."

"But getting me such a delicacy must have taken you considerable time."

"Well, it did; but that was because neither Bridget nor I knew how to get it open."

"Get what open, love?"

"Why the can the pudding came in." Philadelphia Call.

"Mamma," said a little girl, "do all the wicked people go to the bad place?"

"Yes, dear."

"And all the good people go to heaven?"

"Yes."

"Ain't some people wickeder than other people?"

"Yes, I suppose they are."

"Well, I think the people who are not so very, very wicked ought to go to the bad place in the winter time."—Philadelphia Call.

A few days ago two friends met at the Blaney House who had not seen each other for some time. Mutual inquiries were made about absent acquaintances. One of the friends asked:

"Where is Murphy?"

"He's dead, sure."

"Dead; poor Jack dead; and what did he die of?"

"Faith, the doctor said it was a very dangerous disaise, and called it nomoneya.

HOMES FOR WORKERS.

A Fine Climate, Productive Soil, and Thousands of Acres for Settlement.

In the eager search for available lands for settlement, the merits of Inyo county have been entirely overlooked. While the advantages offered in other parts of the State have been fully advertised, no effort has yet been made, so far as we know, to call the attention of homeseekers to the vast extent of good land open for settlement in Inyo county. With an area of 7,680,000 acres, there is now assesssd, for taxation, only 67,841 acres, or about one acre in each one hundred and thirteen in the county. It is true that a great deal of this area is not susceptible of cultivation, but the barren, or mountainous part of the county has value of another kind, and of this more will be said another time. The farming land is found in valleys, lying between vast mountain chains that run mostly north and south. The most important of these is Owens River Valley, between the Sierra on the west, and the White and Inyo ranges on the east. Owens River Valley is eighty-five miles long, and six and a half miles wide. These are not the extreme dimensions of the valley, but represent the area that can safely be counted upon as available for cultivation.

The dimensions given contain 353,280 acres. From this subtract all the assessed land in the county—and it is not all in this valley—and there remains in Owens River Valley alone 285,409 acres open for settlement. Let this be divided by 160, and it would afford homes for seventeen hundred and eighty-three families, each having one hundred and sixty acres of land. On the spots now cultivated—and compared with the whole area of the valley the existing farms are only spots—cereals of all kinds yield abundant returns. At this moment there is a field of wheat at Independence, belonging to Mr. E. Robinson, one of the Supervisors of the county, that will as surely yield fifty bushels per acre as that it shall be threshed. Corn never fails to give a crop. Potatoes, and all other vegetables known to the temperate regions, are not surpassed in quality and quantity per acre by any other region in the United States. Within the present week, we have seen in the yards at Independence peach and apple trees breaking down with their loads of fruit.

Where alfalfa has been introduced, two to three crops are cut each season, two tons per acre at each cutting is the common yield.

At this moment of writing, July 17th, 2 o'clock, afternoon, the thermometer reads 85° in the shade; a delightfu breeze is blowing. Sometimes the thermometer will rise to 100° degrees in the shade, but in this dry atmosphere the heat is never enervating. The character of the winters may be judged from the fact that fig trees have been set out for years at Independence, and grow to a large size, seldom bearing figs' however.

Beyond all doubt, Owens River Valley is remarkably well adapted to grape growing. No effort has yet been made to grow grapes, except for domestic use. The few vines planted are chfefly Mission and Muscat grapes. This year the crop of grapes is very heavy; every vine is loaded to the ground.

Snow seldom falls to a greater depth than a few inches, and generally disappears in a few days. From the mountains on the west, that rise to a hight of over 14,000 feet; streams of pure water flow down every few miles. Anywhere in the valley plenty of the best of water for domestic use can be found by sinking wells a moderate depth. For all farming purposes the land must be irrigated; for this there is an abundance of water. Owens river runs through ihe valley from north to south, having a very regular descent of five and a half feet per mile. The lateral slope from the mountains to the stream is also easy and very regular. It is easily seen that the conditions for irrigation are therefore most favorable. Owens river is at all times a large stream, sufficient to afford plenty of water for irrigation; but when supplemented by the streams that flow down from the Sierra, and all of whose waters could be caught in canals running paralell to the mountains; it would give more water than would be needed to irrigate all the land in the valley in the driest seasons. When it is remembered that people are flocking by thousands nto regions where water can be had only by sinking artesian wells at great expense, one must be astonished that this most favored region should be so long neglected; and the only explanation that is suggested is, that the great attractions and advantages found here have not been brought prominently before the public. Nor need this be wondered at. For many years the nearest railroad to the county seat was at Reno, more than three hundred miles away. More recently the southern transcontinental road came within one hundred and seventy-five miles, at Mohave. Now a railroad, the Carson and Colorado, connects with the Central Pacific railroad at Reno, and runs through the entire length of the valley from north to south. If every acre of land in the valley were under cultivation, the produce would be within easy reach of transportation by rail. This railroad north of the valley touches at some of the best markets in Nevada. It is intended some time in the future to continue the road till it shall make connection with the southern transcontinental routes. This will open up a market for the production of the valley in Arizona and New Mexico, regions that will consume such an amount of grains, fruits and vegetables as can hardly now be estimated. With the increase of population and production, the carrying trade of the railread will also be increased to such a degree as will enable the management to make great reductions in fares and freights. That they will do this there need not be any doubt. Their road was built without one dollar of subsidy, or the grant of one acre of the public domain. This fact alone is most significant of the value of the country in the eyes of capitalists, and certainly none are better judges of prospective values than they are, nor have any others so deep an interest in the rapid development of the country as those who put their money into this road. A stranger coming into the valley now is almost certain to judge unjustly of the settlers; such vast extent of very productive land altogether unimproved, is apt to give the impression that the people are lacking in energy, and unprogressive. But it must be remembered that till last summer they were almost entirely isolated from the world, and have not yet had time to readjust their business to the new conditions consequent upon the advent of the railroad. Every statement in this article is written as if the writer were certain of being called tf account for his words in a court oo justice. The advantages offered to settlers in Inyo county are rather under, than over estimated. When these advantages are fully known to the world an era of prosperity will set in that will carry the county among the front ranks of her sisters in California. As was intimated at the beginning of this article, the value of the seemingly valueless mountain chains of Inyo will be touched upon in a future issue of THE INDEPENDENT. When that is done, it is not improbable that the teeming soil and delightful climate of the county will appear to be the least valuable of her blessings.

A MATTER that has been in suspense since 1852 has lately been decided. This was the claim by the city of San Francisco for a patent for the ground on which the city stands. After much litigation and delay, the patent was at last put into the hands of the Mayor of the city reeently. The patent to the cfty was signed by the President of the United States on the 20th of last month. The land embraced is 17,754.36 acres. The patent covers thirty-nine pages, and to it is attached the plat showing the exterior boundaries of the pueblo, and all grants and Government reservations. The property affected exceeds in value that covered by all other grants combined, of lands in California.

THE prevalence of cholera in France makes makes extra precautions necessary in other countries. The authorities in New York are doing all in their power to keep out the disease, and to make the city so clean that the disease may not find the conditions favorable for spreading it. A corps of forty-six doctors have gone to work there under orders from the health board, visiting tenement houses, prescribing for the sick, enforcing sanitary provisions, and reporting contagious diseases. The streets in New York are said to be in a cleaner state than ordinarily, and the city is fairly prepared to take its chances.

JOSEPH MCKENNA, of Solano, has been nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Third Congressional District. Mr. McKenna has already made the run in the old district on two former occasions, and was defeated the last time by C. P. Berry.

THE Republican State Convention will meet at Sacramento next Wednesday, to nominate Presidential Electors and for such other business as may come before it. The Convention will have 456 delegates. Inyo is entitled to three.

CARL SCHURZ has flopped again, his paper now coming out strong for Blaine and Logan. Carl is everything by turns and nothing long.

A CORRECTION.—Last week we stated that Miss Elma K. Yaney had graduated from the State Normal School "with the highest honors." Miss Yaney wishes this corrected, as she did not receive the highest honors, although we are informed she stood very high in the graduating class.

One or other of the candidates now before the people will, if he lives, be President of the United States. Which one it shall be no man can tell. The President, whoever he may be, represents the honor and dignity of the whole people. How can the people of foreign nations look with respect upon another people who elect as their Chief Magistrate one whom half the voters proclaim to all the world to be tainted with such vices and crimes as disgrace civilized men, and, if such charges were true, ought to consign the object to a felon's cell, rather than the position of the highest honor ever conferred upon any man. It is with pride that every American can point to the history of his country in proof to no mean or sordid wretch, no monster of cruelty or immorality, was ever raised to that exalted position. The histories of all other nations may be searched in vain for record of such another train of men so distinguished for ability, so adorned with the virtues that are the highest glory of mankind, as the past Presidents of the United States. Yet each one of these great men, not even excepting him who was "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen" was the victim of vile and slanderous abuse. The men of to-day build the tombs of those whom their fathers stoned while living. This is conduct unworthy of so great a people as we are; it is unwise, it is uncharitable, it is shameful, because it is untruthful. Because men differ about principles is no reason why they should stoop to personal abuse. Knowledge, reason, logic; these are the legitimate, and the only effective, weapons of political contest. We but disgrace ourselves when we scream in anger that those who do not think as we do are monsters of iniuuity. Compared with the hereditary rulers of monarchial governments, how much superior in ability and character are the two citizens who are now offered to the American people for the highest office in their gift. As such let us treat them in our public discussions with the respect that is their due, and that not even the most ardent partisan would refuse to either in private life. Among ourselves it is well understood that the evil things said of political opponents in the heat of contest have but little foundation in fact; but suppose an American, traveling in a foreign country, should be confronted with the allegations made against the Chief Magistrate while he was yet a candidate for the office, how humiliated, shamed and disgusted he would feel! Our intercourse with foreign nations is now so intimate and constant, that what we say of each other at home is quickly known abroad. Let us remember this fact, and say nothing of any of the great men whom millions of their fellow-citizens are eager to honor, that would bring the blush of shame to our own cheeks if afterward repeated in our presense in a strange country.

C. MULHOLLAND.

REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE.—The Republican Central Committee met at the Court House on Tuesday, and there were present the following members: S. D. Wood, Chairman; George H. Hardy, Secretary; P. A. Chalfant, John Kispert, J. J. Stewart, J. H. Stoutenborough, and Thomas Bland. The absent members were represented by proxy. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. On motion, J. H. Morrison of Cerro Gordo was appointed to the vacancy caused by the removal of E. E. Steers. On motion, J. W. Smith of Big Pine was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the removal of A. H. Wemple. A. R. Conklin, S. D. Wood, and John Stoutenborough, were elected delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Sacramento on next Wednesday. The same parties were also authorized to attend the Convention—date and place not yet fixed—for nominating a candidate for Congress from this district. The Secretary was instructed to prepare a circular letter, giving notice to all members of the Committee of the objects, and time of next meeting of the Committee. The meeting adjourned, subject to call by the Chairman.

DEEP SPRINGS.—Teams are now hauling ore from Deep Springs to the Elna furnace. Mr. Minear, the Superintendent of the furnace, has hurried work as much as possible and is ready for a start. The ore now being delivered at the furnace belongs to S. P. Roberts, of Deep Springs. Quantities of ore from the same mine have been shipped to Oakland and sold there. Mr. Roberts was paid for some of it at the rate of 110 ounces silver and 60 per cent. lead per ton. The lowest he was paid for any ore shipped by him from his claims at Deep Springs was 55 oz. silver, and 50 per cent. lead per ton. If the furnace at Elna shall prove successful in working these ores—and there is no known reason why it should not—the Deep Springs and old Pine Mountain districts can supply unlimited quantities. The railroad now gives facilities for carrying the ores to the furnace that materially lessens cost, and will thereby promote greater mining activity in that region than was ever before known.

MOUNT WHITNEY.—Messrs. J. J. Steward, John Auton and H. Barry of Lone Pine, made a trip over on the slopes of Mount Whitney lately. In Cottonwood Cañon there is still a great deal of snow; in many places the bottom of the cañon is full, and the stream flows under it, as under a bridge. The party ascended about 12,000 feet but did not attempt to go any higher as the snow on the upper ridges appeared to be very deep, and the streams were much swollen. The party fished one day in Cottonwood, and caught 450 golden trout. So far as known in this vicinity, this variety of trout is not found in any other streams in the State. On their first night out the saddle horses belonging to the party broke from their pickets, and the fishermen had to pack their fish, saddles and other paraphenalia on their pack horse, and return to the valley on foot, where they found the runaway steeds.

SUPERVISORS' PROCEEDINGS.—The Board met on Tuesday, and proceeded to consider claims for reduction of assessment. The following were allowed: Mrs. E. Spencer, from the Assessors valuation, $1500; G. H Hardy, $250; Mrs. Allie Brown, $500; Argus Range Mining Company, $7,500 on mill property. To parties on the military reservation, the following deducions were allowed: C. A. Walter, $1400; Jacob Vagt, $1400; John S Gorman, $1400; Fred. Schabbell, $660; to Margaret Lewis, $1400. The following bills were allowed by the Board: For per diem and mileage: To Thomas Boland, $70.80; A. Spencer, $80.40; E. Robinson, $45.80.

BRILLIANT METEOR.—Over one hundred and fifty nebulæ which have escaped the vision of previous astronomers have recently been discovered by Dr. Lewis Swift, Director of the Warner Observatory Rochester, N. Y. One of these is of a most peculiar nature, and seems to be undergoing a wonderful change. Dr. Swift desires to thoroughly investigate the great meteor which appeared on the night of July 3d, and for this purpose requests all who saw it to communicate with him at the Warner Observatory, Rochester, N. Y., immediately, giving the direction of view, motion, color, etc.

I. O. O. F. ELECTION.—The following have been elected officers of Inyo Lodge, No. 301, I. O. O. F., to serve during the ensuing term: Thos. Crough, N. G.; J. B. Eldred, V. G.; Daniel Crough, R. S.; A. Stecker, P. S.; E. Robinson, Treas. The following were appointed: A. Parker, W.; J. E. Shepherd, Con.; Walter James, I. G.

REFUSED.—Robert Stanley applied for naturalization last Monday. The Court refused the application, on the ground of insufficient proof of residence in the State for one year prior to making said application.

Bishop Happenings.

"X-10-U-8," writing from Bishop Creek, under date of July 11th, says:

"This place has settled back into its old channel. Weather very warm. Wm. B. Hutchings and his partner, Jake Brauenstein, started out on a prospecting tour this morning; had a pack-horse loaded down, and looked as if they intended to stay for awhile. Have changed the telephone line from depot here, and put on telegraph instruments, just in working order. Eddie Clark is the operator here. Mr. and Mrs. Clark, formerly of Lone Pine, have been selected by the Trustees here to teach the public school the coming session. Mrs. Dormer and children are still here. Jno. Dormer went to Carson, on the 10th, having some business to attend to. A. J. Martin, of Candelaria, left on the same train for Candelaria.

The following items are taken from a private letter, dated July 17th:

T. T. Cook and family leave tomorrow night for San Francisco. He expects to take a position in the railroad office there.

The water has fallen some in the last few days.

John Dormer and family are still here. Hess Yancy is at home visiting his folks. Mr. Clark, formerly schoolteacher of Lone Pine, is seeking a residence to live in. He expects his family here in a few days. They will teach the public school. J. H. Stoutenborough and R. Stanley got home from Independence Wednesday.

"We are going to have a grand mineralogical lecture here soon: W. B. Hutchings on 'Formation and Elbows;' J. H. Moraty on "Slides;" W. S. Coates on 'Contact Veins.' Think it will be a grand scheme. You had better get up a delegation and come up."

The Wells, Fargo & Co.'s office was moved from this place three or four days ago to the C. & C. R. R. station, by Mr. L. A. Hall, Route Agent for the company. It will not do this place, having it over there.

JACK THE GIANT-KILLER REVERSED. All readers of the nursery tale will remember how much the giant was astonished when Jack appeared next morning as lively as ever, and said that a rat had given him a few switches with his tail, but that it hardly disturbed his sleep. This, after the giant had, as he supposed, pounded Jack to a jelly with his club. A few evenings ago Judge Conklin told the following story about United States Senator Vest of Missouri: Mr. Vest had been a member of the Confederate Congress. When that body dispersed he started to return to Missouri; he had no money, and was forced to make his way as best he could. He was accompanied by a man named Clark, and the two at length reached Louisville. They went to a hotel, and after supper were sitting in the bar-room. A huge Kentuckian soon entered, and at once began abusing all non-combatants, blaming them in a great measure for the defeat of the South. The man appeared to direct most of his discourse to Mr. Vest, whom he knew. At length Mr. Vest got out of patience, and asked if he was meant in particular. The man replied with an oath that he did mean Mr. Vest. Now, the Missourian is a very small man, but full of grit; he at once challenged the giant to go out doors and fight. Clark is a very large man also, and he now spoke up, and said to Vest that the Kentuckian would take hold of him and break every bone in his body, at the same time proposing to take his friend's place in the fight. Both of the others agreed to this. Once out doors no time was lost, at it they went; the Kentuckian soon had the Missourian down and was lamming him in good style. Vest saw that his friend would get pounded to a jelly if something was not done, and siezing a stick from a pile of four-foot wood that was at hand, he swung it over his head, threw his full force into the blow, and brought it down on the head of the Kentuckian, expecting to see his brains spatter all over his prostrate friend. The brains did not spatter, the man only looked around with an expression of annoyance upon his face, and said: "Don't bother me, Vest, till Clark says 'enough'." Clark at once said "enough," was permitted to get up, and the party returned and interviewed the barkeeper.

Real Estate Transactions.

J. W. Brown, to Benjamin T. Theban, ⅙ interest in Brown ditch, at Bishop Creek. Consideration, $100.

Here and There.

The nights are getting cooler.

Water is still very high. The river is running over its banks in many places.

Miss Carrie E. Willis, formerly resident here, lately graduated from Douglas Seminary, at Genoa, Nevada.

Green stacks of alfalfa, the first cutting of the season, are rising on every side. The yield appears to be very good.

Robert Stanley, whose application for naturalization was refused last week by the Superior Court on the ground of insufficient proof of residence gave the necessary proof on Wednesday, and is now prepared to wrap the drapery of the stars and stripes about him and vote like a sound American.

MOUNT WHITNEY.

Its Fishing Grounds and the Monache Meadows.

Mt. Whitney, though ranking as the loftiest summit of the United States, being at least 15,000 feet in height, is the least known of all the mountains of the Pacific, for that it is situated in the far off southeast, remote from the track of travel, and prior to the completion of the Carson and Colorado railroad accessible only by difficult and wearisome staging across a terrible breadth of desert. In this it is unlike Hood and Shasta, St. Helens and Ranier, the mighty mountains of the North, for they lift along the line of horizon's visible from many crowded avenues of travel. The Sierras, just before they decline to the levels of the upper Mojave Desert in the neighborhood of Indian Well, about fifty miles east of the town of Mojave on the S. P. R. R., around Mt. Whitney rise to their greatest altitude, and are massed into their grandest proportion. Their average height for a distance of about 100 miles from the neighborhood of Bodie southward is 12,000 feet. Lifting the eye to them from the deeps of the deserts that lie to the east they rise a tremendous wall of granite, at places almost perpendicular from the lowland at their base.

Along this lofty summit line are visible many peaks with white heads bare in the sun. Much can be written of these Sierras—enobled at every point with the features of majesty and glorifying the landscape with every element of grandeur. They are indeed the Alps of America; their culmination reached in Whitney—loftier than Blanc.

By reference to the map Whitney's position is easily fixed from Los Angeles nearly east, and distant about 250 miles. The eastern slope of the mountain is abrupt and sheer—lifting in an almost unbroken precipice—where the peak itself lifts from the general range and assumes the shape and dignity of an individual mountain.

The view of Whitney from the historic village of Lone Pine, which lies just under its shadow and fronting its great cañon, is exceedingly grand; far into the high heavens the mountain lifts in solemn and lofty majesty—its massive foundations disclosed in awful faces of granite, smooth and shining, except where slashed and riven by the deep scars cut upon it by centuries of storm. Vast snow fields lie along its slopes, and glaciers hide in the deeps of rift and gorge.

It is a splendid scenery, commanding by its height and breadth and rendered indescribable by the suggestions of an unmeasurable strength. The sheer uplift of the Sierras on the east is absent on the west, for here they decline in miles of sloping lands from the high, cold altitudes of snow and chill to the depths of vallies lying in the bloom of almost endless Spring. This decline runs through groups of meadow and wood land—a tangle of matchless scenery where the severity of rocky building is hidden in the depth of forest and wildwood, rich in endless green and relieved by the cool of meadows through which the tumbling waters make music amid acres of luscious grasses.

At Whitney's western base spread out a series of meadows whose fertility is fed by the waters which flow from out the snows and glaciers of Whitney and the mountain places which lie to the northward. These waters are clear and cool—fascinating with dash and rush; here clearing with exalted bound the high fall to rest a moment below in the depth of a quiet pool, and then moving down the mountain side to rove at last slowly and lovingly amid the depth of meadows green. There is something delicious in the sense of repose which broods "like a gentle spirit" over this region. The deep silence is disturbed only by the voice of waters that leap and dash and sing a perpetual song of motion. The night airs cooled by its contact with tha mighty breadth of snow lying on the lofty summits which stand around caress the frame with an exquisite sense of strength and vigor. The high noon of day, brilliant with light, is yet cool and refreshing. The nights are deep with repose and the early morning rich and fresh.

As a resort for the pleasure seeker this region is especially adapted. Every physical presence is calculated to delight, whether it be in mere repose which comes from rest or the excitement of the chase and rod. To the fisherman it is a paradise—every stream is full of trout, with flesh and flavor to to tempt the palate and appetite of the chief of epicures.

The remoteness of the field and the rest it has during a large portion of the year by reason of its inaccessibility has prevented any fierce onslaught on it, and from year to year since it has been known and enjoyed it has yielded to those who have availed themselves of its use a harvest of enjoyment. These trout are of several varieties, each of which are of the rarest quality. The waters of Kern River and its tributaries, excepting the head waters of Whitney Creek, are occupied by the speckled brook trout so often found in the streams and lakes of the Sierras, whose mat, is hard and sweet because bred in water so fresh and cold. The species found in the head waters of Whitney creek are peculiar to that place and creek and are known as the "golden trout." They are found, as we understand it, at no other place in the world, and have as yet secured no scientific name. They do not exceed in delicacy of flesh the other varieties found here but are noted for the beautiful color which flakes their sides, as purely golden as if they had been submitted to a coating of gold foil. This peculiarity of color and their distinct species is preserved by a natural barrier existing between them and the other varieties which are here found in this: a series of high and rocky falls prevent the fish of the lower waters from ascending and mingling with them; and so, from generation to generation, they have thus, by natural barrier been able to preserve their distinct character. At times some of them have descended into the lower courses of the stream, and a mixed tribe of trout, combining the golden and the speckled trout has been formed, individuals of which are often caught. This halfbreed tribe is peculiar in no way other than as disclosing the fact of the admixture of varieties. There are many persons in Owens River valley who each year spend several weeks at these fishing grounds enjoying the cool of their high places, and day by day following the pursuits of the fisherman. These report that they are always rewarded for each days work by a long string; that the fish are always ready to bite, and that they possess none of that deliberation and wariness so often a distinguishing characteristic of the trout in other streams where a constant line of fishermen has taught the trout to beware the fatal book, and that it requires no especial skill to be able to land, in quick succession, fish on fish. Many ladies frequently engage in the fascination of trout fishing here during the summer, and are as successful in results as gentlemen.

This region taken altogether—its magnificent scenery, its shade and cool and repose; its excitements of hunting and fishing—is as delightful a summer retreat as can found on the Coast. Year by year it is extending its name and reputation and will doubtless before long become one of the most sought for places of pleasure.

Personal Mention.

M. M. Glenn is visiting at Bishop Creek.

P. H. Mack has been in town for some days.

Mrs. Galvin has been spending some days in town.

Mr. McKillipp of Chrysopolis was in town Wednesday.

Mr. Miner left here on Monday evening for Bridgeport.

Mrs. Johnson and Miss Ida McCall were up from Lone Pine last Tuesday.

Senator Reddy went north on Saturday evening on his way to Bridgeport.

Mr. Springsted came down from Bishop last Saturday and stayed some days.

J. M. Horton, Mr. Enloe and A. Dell came down from Bishop Creek last Monday.

Miss Katie Clayton glanced in upon us yesterday with "her lovely 'een o' bonnie blue."

Miss Mamie Clark of Bishop Creek, has been in town most of the week, visiting friends.

Messrs. W. McDonald of Bisho Creek, and A. C. McDonald of Big Pine came down yestercay.

Mr. Fairman left town last Monday morning for Panamint District, to look after mines in which he is interested.

M. T. Goodwin showed as handsome a pair of horses upon the street the other day as need be put to any carriage.

Mr. Reddy is to be given a public reception at Bodie this evening. A call was issued for a meeting for that purpose.

Judge Sullivan has reopened his free and easy in San Francisco, and G. W. Tyler and General Barnes are again the leading performers.

Mr. Bolinger, from the Chrysopolis mines was in town some days this week. Lively times may be expected at Chrysopolis before long.

MINING ITEMS.

Mr. Barrie, who went East some time ago in the interest of the Maxim mine, was sick when he left, and has written Mr. Nevius that he was compelled to lie over twice on his journey, that he might regain strength enough to complete the trip. When he got well enough to be able to get around, the parties who are interested with him were attending the Chicago Convention, and this caused more delay. Now, however, he is getting matters in shape to put in additional machinery at the mill, and to better develop the mine. A telegram, received a few days ago, states that Mr. Barrie will leave New York next week for the mine. The mill is running steadily as usual.

BEVERIDGE MINES.—The mill at Beveridge, that has been stopped for some weeks, will be started up again about the beginning of August. The Keynot claim is that from which ore will be taken. The poorest ore ever taken from this claim yielded $58 per ton; much of it went over $200 per ton. The claim is owned by Lasky and Morena. Lately a small vein was opened in the mine, the ore from which is worth $2 per pound. The same parties have found a vein in the Vivarea claim that is fifteen inches wide, and contains over $200 per ton. Twenty-one tons of this ore are now on the dump, ready for milling.

BROWN MONSTER.—Messrs. Walter James and E. J. Reynolds have leased the Brown Monster mine from Mr. Eibeshutz; they will at once proceed to open up new ground in the mine, and expect soon to resume shipments of the rich lead ores that the mine produces. During the part twelve months the Brown Monster has produced some very rich smelting ores.

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE.—Property belonging to the estate of the late John Chastaine will be sold at public auction July 31st. See the notice of the Administrator in another column.

CHANGE OF TIME.—A change of time having been made on the Union Pacific railroad, the west-bound train will now arrive at Reno between 9 and 10 at night, instead of 5:40 in the evening.

Inyo Lodge, I. O. G. T., will meet to-night at its hall. A full attendance is desired.

WRITING FOR LIFE.

"My dear Tom, I speak to you not only as an old friend, but as a medical man; and I see that it is quite necessary for you to have complete and perfect rest for some weeks. You have been overdoing it in nursing that old uncle in the country for the last two or three months, and, to my own knowledge, have taken the last train down there at night and the first train to town in the morning, and have consequently not had a good nights rest for all that time How can a man stand it, added to your hospital work all day, without suffering from it? Don't you feel to require rest?"

"Not the least in the world returned Raven.

"Oddly enough, the nursing seems to have done me good. I confess to having felt thoroughly knocked up some six weeks since; but I battled bravely against the feeling, won the victory, and now I'm fresh as paint and up to work better than ever."

"You don't look it. I repeat, you look thoroughly worn out. But you know your own business and state of health; and, now your uncle has gone and left you a potful of money, you can take things easily."

"Yes, old boy, I'm game for anything—mind and body first-class; and I intend to stick to my hospital work. It's very good of you, Jack, to take an interest in my health and all that, but say no more about it, I beg."

"I promise to say nothing to nobody."

Raven and I were both at the same hospital—St. Mazarus,—where he held medical and I a surgical appointment. We were both hard worked, and often day and night; and my time and attention for about three months after the above conversation, were so fully occupied and engrossed that I thought no more of the ocaurrence. Raven looked in good health and was very successfull—indeed, he bid fair in a short time to rise to great eminence in the profession. He was immensely popular with every one. His gray hair and bright blue eyes and healthy, florid complexion, combined with a frank, hearty and open manner in speaking made him a friend with everybody, and inspired confidence in all his patients as well as in all his friends.

As nearly as I can recollect, it must have been about three months after his uncle died that Raven came up to me one day in the hospital.

"I've just received a summons to Exeter," said he. "The family i wealthy and influential; and, from wha I know of the case I've been called there to attend, I'm sure sure it's more of a surgical than a medical one. I will be an excellent chance for you Lawson; and I can promise you a good fee to begin with. Therefore, if you can manage it, meet me at Paddington this evening at half past nine, and we will go down together by the express. Send me word during the afternoon if you can come or not."

I hesitated. It was the depth of winter, and I hardly liked leaving my wife and a most important baby; but fees were scarce—this was a golden opportunity not to be rashly neglected. I decided to risk my wife's disappointment.

"It is most kind of you, Tom. I will certainly go down with you. So far as I can see, there will be nothing to prevent my doing so."

A gleam of satisfaction shone in his bright blue eyes.

"You promise?'

"Unless anything unforeseen should happen to prevent my doing so I will be at the station by half past nine".

"Remember!"

Raven was dramatically impressive, I thought, as we parted; and I arranged my work so as to be able to keep my appointment. The hardest task was breaking the news to Amy, who would be low spirited, and would conjure up all kinds of horrors and impending railway accidents, and who finally dissolved in a shower of tears as I tore myself away, burdened with no end of rugs and comforters to alleviate in some measure the moral wet blanket she had thrown over me.

I was only just in time to catch Raven who hastily opened the door of the railway carriage.

"Jump in, Jack, jump in! Half a crown to the guard has secured us this compartment all the way down! so we shall have it all to ourselves without fear of interruption. Time's up; you have run it fine. Fire away!"

He flung in my bag and the several rugs etc., and we entered. The guard touched his hat and shut the door with a bang.

"This door is unlocked, guard?" said I.

"Yes, sir; side nearest the platform is always unlocked. The other door is locked."

He Whistled and the train started.

"I can't bear the idea of both doors being locked," I remarked to Raven.

"In case of accident it would be impossible to escape from the carriage."

"It doesn't matter," he said, and then relapsed into silence.

For about twenty minutes he remained opposite to me, sometimes with his eyes closed, sometimes with them fixed on me in a most unpleasant manner. All my endeavors to draw him into conversation failed, and after a time I gave them up and relapsed into silence.

Suddenly he rose from his seat and drew from the inside of his overcoat a long and pointed knife, which flashed ominously in the lamplight.

"Jack Lawson, we must both of us die to-night," said he calmly and deliberately, without any excitement of manner. "I feel that the time has come for both of us to quit this vale of tears."

"Yes; I quite agree with you, Tom Raven," I replied—seeing what had happened—in as calm a voice as his own. "I have long thought that life was very undesirable; and, to leave it in your company, with you, my oldest and warmest friend, would be the most agreeable thing that could happen. But—you are not married, Tom."

"Thank Heaven, no!"

"Remember, I am married; and, had you given me notice of this wish of yours before starting, I would have made arrangements and spoken to my wife to prepare her. Have you made your will?"

"No, I have not."

"Good Heavens, man, not made your will! Tom, it is absolutely necessary for both of us to make our wills before we die. I have not made mine, and I should hate to leave the world with the chance of my wife and child having to go to the work-house or be chargeable on the parish after my death. You would like to leave your money to some one in particular—is it not so?"

"Of course I should like to leave my money properly—of course—I never thought of making my own will."

"You must also remember, Tom, it would never do to die deliberately, in the way we both wish to die, without leaving the world our reason for the act. You would not wish your name to be a by-word and the cause of derision to any one, I am sure; and I am certain I don't wish mine to be so. Therefore we must draw out our reasons for dying."

"Do you know, Jack, I never thought of that?"

"Well then, first put your knife down on the cushion there and we will set to work. I've plenty of paper in my bag and plenty of lead in my pencil, and we've the whole night before us."

A tremble of my hand, a quiver of my voice, would have been fatal. I opened the bag and drew forhh the writing paper. The knife was on the cushion at my side.

"No, Tom, let us first state our reasons to the world for wishing to die to-night by our own hands. If you will dictate to me your reasons, I will write them down, and then we will revise and correct them. After that I will dictate mine to you and you shall write them. We shall be able to do our work well and quickly."

"Quite right, Jack; we ought to give them our reasons. How odd that I never thought of that! Let me see; if I kill you first, I might write them out afterward."

"Ah, but who will write out mine? Don't be selfish now, there's a good chap!"

"To be sure! Well, are you ready?"

He began dictating in long, flowery sentences. Now and again I interrupted his flow of language to gain time. This kept him thoroughly occupied and interested, while the train sped on at express rate. He had nearly finished his long rambling dictation, when, to my inexpressible delight, I felt the speed of the train gradually slackening. I knew my chance for deliverance was near.

"Read over for yourself what I have written," I said to him. "The carriage is close—a little fresh air will do us both good. I will make any correction you may require."

I sat on the knife and reached over to lower the glass. A slight fumbling necessitated my rising to manage better and the knife was in my left hand and concealed under my coat. I turned round to look at my poor friend, and saw him trying to read my scribble by the light of the lamp, seemingly unconscious of the stopping of the train. In another moment the glass descended, the knife dropped ubon the platform, my hand was thrust through the window and on the handle of the door. The train nearly stopped as I jumped out. Poor Raven even then was quite engrossed with what I had written for him. I called the guard, and quietly assembled the porters on the platform at the door of the carriage.

"Come, Tom, this is Swindon! Le us have a cup of coffee!" I called t him through the window.

In that moment the spell was broke I saw him look for the knife, then rus to the window at the opposite side; bu we were too quick and too powerful fo him. The guard, two porters and my self jumped into the carriage and h was secured.

My best friend, with a brilliant futu and in the ripe portion of his lif was a raving lunatic, and has remaine hopelessly so—insane from toil—o of the many victims of overwork.

I need scarcely add that the ca which Raven had presented to me calling him to Exeter was an entire fab cation, and was invented by him part of the scheme which in his ma ness he had no doubt seriously imagi ed would confer a benefit on both of u I frequently go down to the asylu where he is to inquire for him; but t mention of my name brings on such violent aggravation of the disease th I am not allowed to see him. Po Raven! I fear I shall never see h again!

That terrible night can never be faced from my memory, and I can ne er sufficiently congratulate myself having so fortunately thought of t expedient which answered so admiral —"Writing for life."

In the Hole.

Yesterday, when crossing over Un Square, I was saluted by a theatri friend whom I have known for so thing like twenty years.

"Anything gone wrong with you? enquired, struck by the pallor of face and the general air of deject that oppressed me as well as him.

Well—I hate to say it, old fellow, I'm in the hole; and if you could le me a little—"

"Sorry," I interrupted, "but fact is, I'm just now putting every c lar I have into business, and you kn how a fellow is when he doesn't h more'n enough to skin through But how much do you want?" I as half prepared to hear him say a bill would about plug the hole.

"If you'd let me have fifty cen he began, in a despairing way, " soon—"

"Good God!" I exclaimed, as actual truth that this man was starv forced itself upon me.

"Here—here's a dollar. Take and welcome."

He looked the other way a mom gulped down his rebellious emotion said:

"I haven't had a meal since the before yesterday's breakfast. I h been fired out of my bed and don't kn where to sleep to-night. The o mouthful of food I have tasted si the last breakfast was a pretzel i beer saloon down here at Fourth a nue and Fourteenth street last ni when one of the boys asked me to t a drink. Much obliged for the dol You'll probably never get it back, I'll have a good feed."

I hope he relished it. But such the ups and downs of fortune in business that it would be no surp to me if on my next visit to New Y he should send me down an order a lower box in his own theatre.

Bill Nye's Answers.

The fool's paradise is the place w the fool-killer buries his dead. fools cannot be considered as respo ble for their act, they cannot be ished in purgatory and yet they not be admitted into heaven. T are therefore consigned to a place fitted up especially for them, where they can ask each other: "Is this hot enough for you?" and all such little intellectual sparkle as that. There is where those people go who breathe in the barrels of shot guns, or light the kitchen fire with kerosene.

People who enter this paradise enter it with great rapidity, and generally in fragments. The outer court is used mainly for the purpose of assorting and classifying the remains.

This is also the home of the man who during life casually sat down on a buzz saw to think of a hard word.

– A Kentucky delegate was taken suddenly ill in Chicago. It is suspected that some fiend in human shape secretly emptied his whiskey flask and filled up the vessel with Chicago drinking water.

Had No Back Teeth.

Two young ladies were talking and laughing in a well-filled Chestnut street car recently, and a little girl, three years old perhaps, eyed them with wonder from the opposite side. Finally she concluded that they were laughing at her, and she turned to her father as if to ask his protection. He was paying no attention, and she decided to take her own part.

"What are you laughing at?" she [illegible] fully of the ladies. Every [illegible] and with a malignant voice, hoarse with annoyance, said:

"Rebecca, does you want to ruin me in my pishness? What for you call me dear Schon, ven I vants to be known as cheap Schon? Do you vant to have dot peebles lose confidence in me?"

He Wasn't the Kid.

"Boy!" he called, as he snapped his fingers at the post-office boot black, "are you the lad I handed the dollar bill to yesterday to get it changed and you beat me out of thirteen cents?"

"No, sir."

"Look out! How do you know you ain't?"

"Cause; do I look like a boy who'd beat you out of a shilling when I could walk off with a dollar? Stranger, you must have got hold of some poor little kid who's just begun bizness."

DEATH VALLEY.

The True Story of the Perishing Emigrants.

Human events, during the flight of the centuries have immortalized places with sacred or tragic memories. Grecian valor centuries ago gave to the rude rocks of Thermopolæ a luster which grows more luminous with years. Lexington is immortal with a divine patriotism. No mention of these places can be made that does not lift before the mind the vision of the splendid deeds that there gave exhibition to the grandeur of human nature, in its lofty moods of love and devotion.

The story of the fate of the emigrants who were lost amid its then unknown wastes was formerly as exaggerated as the character of the valley; and during the summer of 1882, having ascertained that survivors of that party were still resident in the State, we determined upon obtaining from their lips the true story. Our search was a persistent one, and was rewarded only after several months of correspondence carried forward at various points. As illustrating the character of that correspondence, we insert the following answers received among others to letters of inquiry:

"Dear Sir:—Mr. J. W. Brier's address is not known to me. I have therefore sent your letter to Rev. W. W. Brier. Milpitas, Cal., who can probably forward it to its destination. The chapter of history you refer to seems to have been of a most remarkable character. Yours truly, S. WOODBRIDGE, Aug. 23, 1882. San Francisco."

"Dear Sir:—I sent your letter to my brother at Grass Valley, Nevada county. He is the J. W. Brier who passed through the Valley of Death.

Yours truly, W. W. BRIER."

Following this was received a letter from J. W. Brier, Jr., son of the above mentioned J. W. Brier. We give that letter entire as it contains the true story of that eventful and awful experience in the desert:

MR. BRIER'S STORY.

GRASS VALLEY, Nov. 4, 1882.

——————; My Dear Sir:—To send you my ms. at present is quite impossible, for it is not complete, nor have I my father's consent. However, I shall give you, in brief, some of the most interesting portions of my narrative. How I should like to join you in your proposed undertaking! You too faithfully portrayed the peculiarly awful features and complexion of our deserts; but to one who has not penetrated them, the most graphic picture must fail, as a photo falls short of a painting, or a painting sinks in comparison with nature. I shall not attempt to reproduce my impressions; and your imagination can supply, in a measure, those emotions with which a company of bewildered and famished creatures contemplated the weary succession of sandy plains and rocky ranges, from near the scene of the Mountain Meadow massacre to those hills which contain the sources of the Santa Clara.

A hundred wagons, conveying about three hundred men, women and children, left Salt Lake City early in the autumn of 1849, under the guidance of a Mormon by the name of Hunt, having Los Angeles as their destination and the Spanish Trail as their proposed route. The guide did not render satisfaction in the important items of grass and water; so after the company had followed him to the vicinity of Mountain Meadows, a council was called and a new departure was resolved upon by perhaps a third or more of the entire party. A company of Mormons came into camp and displayed a chart purporting to have been made by the Utah Chief Walker, which described a route directly westward and terminating at Owens Lake. The adventuresome among our party, (among whom my father was prominent), considering the statement reasonable, lost no time in renouncing their allegiance to Hunt, and the hazardous journey was begun. I may state here that, had my father's opinion prevailed, we should have pursued a line of travel nearly direct to Wild Rose Canyon. But two Indians having been captured, and questioned touching the "big water," (meaning Owen's Lake), naturally directed us southward, thinking we had lost the Spanish Trail, the immemorial road to the ocean. Thus, after weary weeks of wandering, (most of us having left our wagons and packed our oxen), we encamped in the Armagosa within view of Funeral Mountain. I should state here that the larger part of the new company had become discouraged before we had entered upon our trials, and returning had overtaken Hunt. They arrived at Los Angeles about two weeks in advance of us. After we had decided to leave our wagons, a company of eleven men led by Savage and Pinney, taking whatever they could carry on their backs, pushed ahead, hoping to reach Owens Lake in a few days. Near the Armagosa, Savage and Pinney, differing with the rest as to the route, remained in camp, while their nine companions pushed over into Death Valley. The former were found in a dying condition by the Indians, were taken to Owens Lake and recruited; the latter all died in one night and in one bed, not far from the center of Death Valley. Our immediate party lost six by starvation. One man fell while endeavoring to cross Death Valley alone. Our route into Death Valley was down a ravine into Furnace Creek. We walked without resting from early dawn until midnight; yet from our starting point, we saw the springs near the mouth of Furnace Creek, and supposed them to be distant about two leagues! We reached those warm springs at midnight, on Christmas Eve, 1849. At the mouth of the Canyon, we found a very aged Indian buried, all save his head. You will mark the spot probably, as it is an old Indian haunt. Leaving this spot, we skirted a salt basin, and passing up the Valley, crossed its northern reach within view of the White mountains. We passed over the hillocks of sand, along the deeply furrowed and stony table lands, until we reached the lofty pass which conducts into Panamint. One of our party died while crossing the range which divides Panamint from Borax Lake; another before we had reached Borax Lake. Robinson, the last who died, fell from his horse, I believe, at the place of our last encampment. My mother was the only woman in this company, which had finally dwindled to about twenty or thirty. There were three children of us, the youngest four years and the eldest eight. We were without other food than that supplied by our few emaciated oxen, for a period of six weeks or more. You can readily understand why they were destitute of flesh or even marrow. We consumed their hides; and just before reaching Los Angeles, we killed three wild horses, whose flesh we devoured in a most ravenous manner. We were all the merest skeletons; our persons clothed in rags, and our feet enwrapped in pieces of hide.

After you will have returned from your trip write to me, and I shall be only too happy to afford what further information you may wish. In haste,

Most truly, J. W. BRIER, JR."

The foregoing of course but faintly outlines the sufferings of the emigrants, and contains but a few of the incidents of that terrible trip, that were from the very condition of things full of fear and despair. It is, however, of great value as an accurate historical statement of an event as widely known as the county itself. It takes from the story its threads of fiction and makes it a tale of actual experience, verified by evidence beyond dispute. Names, course of route, deaths and privations, the central facts of the story, are now established.

As the letter suggests, much must be left to the imagination in estimating the emotions of those who, in that early day, found themselves lost amid awful deserts, and in the grasp of a region merciless as death. What visions of horror must have swept across their minds, enfeebled and debilitated by daily contact with fear! What anguish must have wrung their hearts, sore with the memories of home and friends now left forever—into what immeasurable abysses of hopeless and helpless condition of mind must they have been swallowed up! No pen could write or tongue, less than a God's, describe the soul's unutterable anguish in such hours of suffering.

Mention is made of one woman. But from facts ascertained since the writing of that letter, to that one woman is due largely the escape of the party from death. Feeble by nature, worn to a shadow by her privations and agony, embarrassed by her three children—she was the lofty soul of hope to that band that would not yield to despair. Her deathless faith in God would not be quenched; and into the gloomy contemplations of the men as they sat down to brood over their desperation, she projected by her faith the vision of escape. She held them, enfeebled and dying, to a tireless march towards succor, and at last, out of jaws of death she saved her beloved sure and safe. We have stood by the side of the trail followed by that band, and as we caught the complexion of the region and went back over the story as we know it, that woman's heroism seemed to us something more than human.

The last camp of the emigrants in the valley is now well established. Years afterward were there found many evidences of its occupation, and since that eventful time the place has been visited by some of those who were of the party and surely identified.

In searching for water in the neighboring mountain, traces of mineral were found; and after the escape the story of these discoveries, magnified by distance, the terrible complexion of the country and the tragic circumstances of its finding, gave it the glamor of romance, until a belief grew apace that here were situated mines rivalling in extent and richness the ancient Ophir. Many searches were, in succeeding years, made, but as yet without success. The story of the Gunsight mine, connected with these emigrants, will be told in a subsequent article.

Death Valley has become within the last few years, by reason of the industries connected with the borate fields, the seat of quite a population and activity. Though robbed somewhat of its terrors, it is still, and will remain forever, a region hostile to mankind.

EVERY one has heard the expression, "land poor," and it is pregnant with meaning. A man holding more land than he can properly work, fritters away his labor, fails to secure a good crop from any part of it, and is actually poorer by possessing too much land. The same truth applies to mining, but with worse results even than to farming. The farmer who tries to work too much land secures a partial crop, at least; the miner who tries to hold too many claims fails to realize anything at all from any of them. It is a daily experience here in Inyo to meet with men who try to hold a dozen, or even a greater number, of mining claims. Few of them have capital to employ labor and put up machinery. They trot from one claim to another, attempting with their own hands to do the necessary assessment work to keep their titles good. Of course in this way no one of all their claims can be made productive. At the end of the year they come out in debt, the value of the mining interests of the county is discredited, the miner is discouraged, and the friends who furnished him with supplies are injured, though nothing could be further from the intention of the miner than such results. The greatest profit in farming is realized from small tracts well tilled; the greatest profit in mining is to be gained by a careful examination to determine upon the best location, and then a patient, persistent and vigorous effort to fully develop the mine. A large addition to the number of farmers in the county would not only bring more land under cultivation, but would greatly increase the productiveness of that already worked. If we had ten times as many miners as at present—and there is opportunity enough for one hundred times as many—the productiveness of the mines would be increased in like proportion.

THE Greely expedition is described as a great success. And yet with nineteen men out of twenty-five, all in the prime of life, dead of hunger and cold, it is hard to realize in what the success consists, or where is the cause for rejoicing, except than any of the party escaped alive. While the heroism and endurance of the men are worthy the highest praise, and reflect honor upon the American name, yet it is a great pity that such capacity and noble qualities should not be employed in work more fruitful of benefit to their country and their kind.

"EVERY day that the sun rises upon the American people it sees an addition of two and a half million dollars to the accumulated wealth of the Republic, which is equal to one-third of the daily accumulations of mankind." This statement by the English economist, Mulhall, is noble evidence of the soundness of our system of taxation and revenue, and of the intelligence and industry of the American people.

THE members of the State Board of Equalization who were here this week reported that they found the assessment roll and valuation of property in Inyo in a more satisfactory condition than in any other county they had visited.

NOTICE.

All subscribers for THE INYO INDEPENDENT, and all advertising patrons, will please observe, that the paper has passed under another management, and that all subscriptions are by agreement between Mr. Glenn and the present proprietor of the paper, due to the latter. All regular advertising accounts accruing after June 15th, are also to be paid to the present publisher. Accounts due previous to the date named are due to Mr. Glenn.

C. MULHOLLAND.

The establishment of a cradle factory will be the next thing in order.

DIVINE SERVICE.—To-morrow at 11 A. M. divine service will be conducted at Good Templars Hall by Rev. Warren Nims. All are cordially invited to attend.

A CANDIDATE.—Attention is invited to the card of Mr. Joseph Rowan, who offers himself as a candidate for Sheriff, subject to the action of the Republican Convention.

CHANCE FOR STOCKMEN.—The best of alfalfa can now be bought in stack at Bishop Creek for four dollars per ton. Here is one of the best regions for stockmen to be found anywhere.

COMMITTEE MEETING.—A meeting of the Democratic Central Committee is called to meet at the Court House, Independence, August 20. See notice elsewhere stating the objects of the meeting.

BEVERIDGE BRIDGE.—The bridge across Owens river at Beveridge that was impassable lately, is now in thorough repair. Through the energy of Road Supervisor Palmer all damage has been repaired.

A RAPIDLY GROWING INDUSTRY—Fruit raising is a rapidly growing industry in Inyo county; already orders have been taken to the amount of several thousand dollars for young fruit trees to be set out next season.

STATE CONVENTION.—At the State Convention, A. R. Conklin of Independence was nominated by acclamation for Presidential Elector at Large. Mr. Markham of Los Angeles was nominated for Congress from this district.

EQUALIZATION.—Messrs. Charles Gilden and John Markley, members of the State Board of Equalization, came here last Monday. They made a careful examination of the assessment list of the county, but found no reason to make any changes. The gentlemen left some days ago for Mono county.

RELAXATION.—A number of the boys came in from the Maxim mine t'other day, and have been taking a little relaxation. They are all good natured and jolly, have plenty of money, are full of fun, and are having a good time. The present hour is all their own, the next they never saw.

ANOTHER WRANGLE.—Judge N. D. Arnot, of Alpine County, will preside in the Superior Court here on Monday, to hear argument on the writ of habeas corpus in the Silva case. The tweedle dum of the matter was heard by Judge Hannah and the tweedle dee of it is to be inflicted upon Judge Arnot.

CONCERT.—Professor Wood, the blind violinist, will give a concern this evening. Mr. Wood comes highly commended as a very skilful performer on the violin and guitar. His concerts are always well attended and his audiences highly pleased. Tickets for admission, fifty cents.

TO BEE-KEEPERS.—The following from the Virginia City Enterprise is of interest to bee-keepers: "Honey, in the comb, retails in this city at twenty cents per pound. Persons in this State and California who have more of the article than they know what to do with, will do well to send the surplus to this market."

DEPUTY CLERKS.—For the convenience of voters who have not been registered, the following have been appointed Deputy Clerks at the various precincts in the county, viz: S. G. Sneden, Bishop Creek; H. A. Man, Bishop Station; J. J. Moore, Big Pine; John R. Hughes, Lone Pine; W. R. Johnson, Keeler; O. G. Fuentes, Beveridge; J. J. Gunn, Darwin.

CELEBRATION.—The Mexican population of Lone Pine, with their characteristic energy are making active preparations to celebrate the 16th of September, and it is to be hoped that all good citizens will be on hand to assist them and participate in the joys of the day. As the Mexicans pride themselves on having lots of fun and amusement on the 16th, let us all be on hand and join them in celebrating their national holiday.

A NEW INDUSTRY.—A new industry has just been introduced here by Mr. S. A. Densmore; this is the manufacture of wine from peaches by a new process, secured by United States patent. The article to be produced is not peach brandy, but a veritable and valuable wine. The process is already in successful operation in several States in the East, and ready sale is found for all the wine manufactured. Mr. Densmore holds the sole right to manufacture in Inyo county, and is the State agent for the sale of rights in other counties. Mr. Densmore is also agent for Lewis & Brooks, nurserymen at San José. In our next issue further particulars will be given.

MINING ITEMS.

A revival of industry is manifest at the mines of the Wild Rose district. Messrs. W. K. Miller, J. M. Keeler, and N. J. Medbury have been taking ore from the Mohawk, Blue Bell and Argonaut mines, formerly known as the North Star, Garibaldi, and Nellie Grant. A shipment of ten and one-half tons of ore was lately made from the mines to the Snow's Cañon mill, and worked. From this the proceeds were four bars of bullion, weighing 3400 ounces. Most of this is silver, but as no facilities for assaying are at hand, the exact value cannot be given till returns shall be had from San Francisco. The credit of this work is chiefly due to Mr. Miller; he had the ore taken across Panamint Valley, thirty miles, to the mill, in order to prove its value. From the result of this experiment, it is easily seen what wonderfully rich results would be produced by a mill close to the mines, where there is an abundance of wood and water.

M. G. Nixon has bought the Freeborn Cañon mill and mines, and expects to have a force of men at work by August 3d. We can now look for this mill to produce regular monthly shipments of bullion as in former times.

The mines at Chrysopolis are now to be worked vigorously. Superintendent Bolinger has put a force of men to work and will develop the mines as rapidly as possible.

S. A. Densmore has leased the San Carlos mines to to J. M. Keeler, who will put a force of men to work on them next Monday.

Personal Mention.

Judge N. D. Arnot, of Alpine county, arrived here this morning.

Mrs. Mulholland and family arrived at Independence last Monday.

Mr. C. McEvoy was over from Beveridge at the beginning of the week.

M. M. Glenn and family returned this morning from a trip to Bishop Creek.

Omie Mairs is doing a lively stage and freight business between the town and the depot.

Mr. A. R. Conklin and Mr. S. D. Woods left here last Sunday to attend the State Convention at Sacramento.

Messrs. McDermitt and Nixon went over to Beveridge last Monday to look at mines there with a view to invest.

Joseph Rowan and George Drake, of Bishop Creek, have been doing some interviewing at this end of the valley during the week.

Alec. Clark made a trip to Lone Pine last Monday, with a load of ripe apples, apricots and peaches, which he readily disposed of at living rates.

Mr. Fairman returned from Panamint last Saturday evening. He found the condition of things at the mines and mill fully as favorable as he had expected.

Jim Richardson, an old resident of Inyo and a former citizen of Independence, who is now residing at Bishop Creek, is at present circulating among his numerous friends at the county's capital.

Bishop Happenings.

During the latter part of last week, Mr. T. T. Cook and family left for San Francisco....S. G. Sneden, Esq., left for Sacramento last Sunday night, presumably to attend the Republican State Convention....Mr. and Mrs. John Dormer and family left for Carson last Wednesday evening. They were accompanied by Miss Minnie Smith, who will remain with them for some time....Mr. E. A. Carothers of Candelaria is visiting here; also Mr. Gamble, who is the guest of Mr. John L. Bourland.

Wm. A. Irwin is expected here every day. It is thought that he will put an additional force of men at work on the Polita mine, of which he is Superintendent and owner.

It is reported here that Mr. M. L. Cook, Superintendent of the Casey Mining Company's property, is expecting some of his company here from the East; they probably will start the mines up again. REGULUS, JR.

THE loss by fire in the grain fields of San Joaquin is estimated at $90,000; insurance $32,000. It is not known if the fire was the result of accident or design.

TRIP UP THE MOUNTAINS.—Last Wednesday Mr. J. R Eldred, Bert. Rhine, and Wm. Staines made a trip up on the mountains by way of Kearsarge. Beyond Onion Valley the snow was found so deep that they had to leave their animals and go to the first lake on foot. Trout were very shy, though plentiful; they would touch the bait with their noses, but would not bite. A few were caught, however, and Mr. Staines shot one that weighed over three pounds. The party camped but one night.

A ROUSING WELCOME.—Hon. P. Reddy received a rousing welcome on his arrival at Bodie last Saturday evening. The reception was in no sense a partisan affair, but was participated in by good citizens generally without regard to party distinctions. The meeting was held in Miners' Union Hall, which was densely packed. Speeches were made by several of the prominent men of Bodie, and one by Mr. Reddy himself, which was enthusiastically applauded. Music, vocal and instrumental, filled the intervals between the addresses. After the meeting at Miners' Union Hall, Mr. Reddy held a reception of his friends at the Occidental Hotel, where as many flocked in as the parlors could contain. To one who has held a public trust, nothing can be more gratifying than the hearty approval of his constituents; and this Mr. Reddy has received in the fullest measure.

MILL SITES.

The Law in Regard to Them—What the Secretary of the Interior has to say regarding them.

Some time since, J. B. Haggin, of San Francisco, made application at the Land Office of his mineral entry for the Mariposa quartz mine, and mill sites Nos. 1 and 2, Coso District, Inyo county. Payment was made, and final certificates issued to Mr. Haggin. One mill site contained 4.5 acres, and the other (.5) one-half acre. The Commissioner of the Land Office decided that United States Statutes and regulations of the Land Office did not contemplate that more than one mill site or tract of land for milling purposes may be embraced in an application for a lode claim, and therefore directed the cancellation of one of the mill site tracts. From this decision Mr. Haggin appealed to the Secretary of the Interior. The question for him to decide was whether, keeping within the restriction of five acres of non-mineral land, more than one mill site could be embraced in the application for a vein and patented therewith.

In his decision the Commissioner called attention to the clause in Section 2,337, R. S., which provides "that the owner of a quartz mill may also receive a patent for his mill site, as provided for in the section-" and to that part of the section which provides for holding "a piece of non-mineral land" for milling purposes. The construction of the law by the Commissioner showed that he based his decision on the ground that in said section the singular number only is used. If there were any force in that view, in general rules of construction, it would not avail here because the fourth section of the Revised Statutes provides that "words importing the singular number may extend and be applied to persons or things; words importing the plural may include the singular." The regulation, therefore, which follows the statute, should in that respect, be construed in like manner as the statute.

The Secretary of the Interior reverses the decision of the Land Commissioner and says, in his opinion, Section 3,337 does not require that construction put upon it; and since the amount in both locations does not exceed five acres, he thinks, in this instance, both mill sites should be permitted to stand. He adds that in both instances it might be necessary for the owner of the lode to occupy only one piece of non-adjacent surface ground, and in other instances more than one piece might be necessary and proper. He thinks the practice under said section should be to allow the entry of such number of pieces as may appear to be necessary for mining and milling purposes.—Territorial Enterprise.

Lone Pine.

A social dance once a week is one of the pleasant features of society at Lone Pine. Old and young enter heartily into the enjoyment of these pleasant occasions.

A favorite resort at Lone Pine is Lubken's brewery. The cool cellars and sparkling beverage are great favorites with all who go to Lone Pine.

Harvesting is well advanced; wheat and hay are nearly all cut and crops are good.

Visitors to Lone Pine are warm in their praise of the courtesy and attention shown to guests at the Whitney House and Lone Pine Hotel.

The school at Lone Pine is now open; Mr. Charles Groves is the teacher, and has 65 scholars. The people of Lone Pine take great interest in their school, and have it well furnished with all appliances necessary to aid the teacher in his labors. A fine organ is not the least valuable article in the school, and is something only too seldom found in schools.

A FAVORED REGION.—The great natural advantages of Inyo county are becoming known. The Virginia City Enterprise has this to say: "Parties who come up from the Inyo country report it a land 'flowing with milk and honey.' It is also this season a land of fruit of every kind. This is good enough for the valleys, while many paying mines are everywhere being developed in the surrounding hills and mountains, and mills and furnaces are being started up all through the country."

CONGRESS has, in a great measure, ceased to be occupied with labors for the good of the whole people. Not measures of national importance, but the success of party is what now determines legislation. The Territorial Enterprise says:

The record of the recent session of Congress goes far to confirm the opinion expressed by the closest observers that Congress, as a legislating machine, has broken down. It is not the fault of either party, but of circumstances, that it is no longer possible for an American Congress to legislate seriously and according to the convictions of the majority of its members upon any subject of general import upon which there is difference of opinion among the people. Parties are no longer divided upon distinct lines, and neither party is united within itself upon any of the great questions of policy. This fact has forced upon Congress the task of guarding party interests and promoting party success, and whichever party is in the majority finds itself so divided in doctrine that its only safety lies in preventing all serious attempts at legislation. Whether we shall have to invent some other legislative machinery, or in some way free Congress from its political duties in the interest of legislative work, is a question that cannot long be postponed.

A GENTLEMAN from the neighborhood of Briggs' vineyard, near Davisville, says that where the army worm marched through the vineyard, they literally eat every leaf from the vines, and left the bare stalk with the appearance of vines in the Fall, when the frost has caused them to shed the leaves. The worms marched straight through, cutting a swath about sixty feet.—Enterprise.

INQUIRIES FOR LAND.

That attention is already drawn to Inyo county as a desirable place for settlers, the following communication, received a few days ago, gives proof:

BOONVILLE, MO., July 11, 1884.

Dear Sir:—Please send me your catalogue of lands. I want to come to your county. What does land rent for there?

Yours, &c., R. O. NEWMAN.

There is no such catalogue as Mr. Newman asks for. A map of the county would be the best form in which such information could be put, and the County Supervisors have now in consemplation a scheme for getting up an official map that will be an authority on the subject.

The following facts may be of interest to Mr. Newman, and others who are looking for homes in Inyo. As was stated in an article published in the INDEPENDENT last week, there is a great deal of land in the county yet open for settlement; consequently, even improved land is cheap; no one will buy land at a high figure when it can be got by settling upon it, and paying the customary fees for perfecting title. The county has escaped the infliction of the land shark; no immense tracts are held by indivivuals to the exclusion of actual settlers. The largest amount of farming land held by one person in the county is about 1,500 acres. The average is not over one-sixth of this. But little land is worked by rentors; the few who do work that way pay to the proprietors one-third of the entire crop. The rentor furnishes seed, the land owner implements. Last year merchants at Independence paid thirty dollars per ton for potatoes, and forty-five dollars per ton for wheat. At Bishop Creek prices were a little lower than these figures.

An average yield of wheat is estimated at 1,500 pounds per acre. The average yield of corn is estimated at 1800 pounds per acre. Beans, white and pinkeye, are now worth three cents per pound. Around Bishop Creek, where most of the farming is done, crops never fail; there has never been flood or drouth. No insect pests have ever destroyed crops in the county.

From the above facts a practical farmer ought to be able to judge safely of his chances for success in Inyo county.

How did it get there?

One day last week, at the Bay View track, the trotter James H. vouded a snake sixteen inches long and from three-quarters to an inch in thickness in its largest part. The horse previous to this had been somewhat fractious, and had a trick of biting his sides, as if suffering from pain. His actions were a puzzle to those who observed them. After he was relieved of his snakeship he became quiet, and altogether a different horse, and immediately increased his speed several seconds. The snake can be seen at Col. Dickey's at Bay View track, who has it preserved in alcohol for the benefit of the curious. We have not seen it but Mr. Fred Collier informs us that it is a genuine snake, and the question is, how did it get in the stomach of James H? Was it in the water he drank, when it was a baby snake, and did it grow and wax fat in the intestines of a trotting horse? We record the fact on undoubted authority and leave it to the explanation of others.—Spirit of the Times.

Railroad Lands.

The Land Office of the Central Pacific Railroad has adopted a new policy relative to the sale of lands, the object being to prevent the land being bought and sold by speculators. To this end it has been decided to sell no land to any person who will not occupy and improve it, and to such persons, except to those who wish cattle ranges, a reduction in price from 33 to 40 per cent. will be made. But the railroad will control the land until it has been improved by the purchaser in the manner proposed, and retains the power of preventing its sale to speculators.—S. F. Call.

DR. KOCH, who is now in France to study the cholera, is a high authority in medical science. He gives an item of information that is worth knowing. He says that the germs of cholera cannot live in a dry atmosphere. Under these conditions the climate of California will be well adapted to resist cholera if it should visit us in the summer season, the time at which its presence is most dreaded; and no county will have less to fear than Inyo.

THE Fish Commissioners of California have decide not to restock the streams in that State with any more fish. "The Fish Commissioners," said an aquatic Stockton sport, "have stocked the waters here with worthless catfish. The catfish have driven off the perch. The Commission has knocked off business too soon; it should have furnished a supply of catfish killers."

CHANGE OF TIME.—At the request of the Union Pacific, the Central Pacific has consented to change its time table to the old hours. Trains will leave San Francisco for Ogden at 11:40 instead of 7:10. There is no change in the time of arrival at San Francisco.

What Cured Him.

"Gentlemen," said he, as he heaved a sigh like a tired horse, there was a time when I swore by Jay Gould. I named my baby after him, I named my horse after him, I got my son to name a steamboat after him, and I crossed a Hubbard squash with a Jersey water melon and named the new vegetable Jay Gould. If he had said the sun rose in the North I would have licked my best friend to prove it."

"Well?"

"Well, along came a man who wanted my farm ad I sold it."

"Yes."

"And when I had the cash in hand I put it into Wabash stocks. Jay Gould said that—"

"Yes, I know—go on."

"I invested $10,000 in Wabash, and Jay Gould, and—and—"

"That cured you."

"Exactly. I'vd killed the baby, shot the horse, blown up the steamboat, rooted up the vegetable, and got enough out of the crash to pay for a rope and a cheap coffin. Gentlemen, farewell. I'm going to a hotter land."

Always Ahead.

"Thar's my son Joseph," said the old farmer as he cut off a liberal hunk of plug and dropped it into his mouth. "I brung him up the same as I did Dan'l, an' I giv 'em both a thousand dollars to start in life. Joseph went into speculation and Dan'l went into buckwheat."

"And how did they come out?"

"Waal, in the fust five years Joseph he made $30,000 and Dan'l he lost half his capital."

"And the next five?"

"Waal, Joseph lost all he had and Dan'l controlled all the buckwheat itch in New England. Tell you, stranger, atween raisin' buckwheat and speculation in sheers, buckwheat is bound to git thar in in the end. You know what to depend on. The market never slops over or milts down. You sow, reap, eat, scratch, and you're allus ahead."

A Co el Shock.

Dressed for church, she stood before the mirror admiring herself, and mentally observing that she never appeared more lovely. The candid critic, however, would have declared that her figure was not in just proportion, for she was very tall and thin and her height seemed greater than it actually was in consequence of ostrich plumes that flowered in snowy masses over her hat.

"Yes, I know I am handsome," she said, "but I can't help it;" and turning to go out, caught sight of her little brother standing in the door way.

"What are you doing there, Bob?" she asked sharply.

"Looking at you, Fanny, returned the artless child.

"What do you want to be staring at me for?"

"'Cause you look just like a long handled feather duster."

And sitting all alone in church that morning she wondered how she would feel if Bob got the measles and died.

A Stand Off.

A couple of practical jokers, living at a big up town hotel, bought a terrapin while walking through the market the other day, and slipped it into the bed of a new arrival who had just registered.

They watched that night until they saw the new-comer retire to bed.

Ten minutes later a white robed figure began shouting down the elevator shaft for the landlord.

When the crowd got up stairs the victim conducted the landlord to the bed and turned down the clothes.

"Mr. Hotelkeeper," said the stranger, solemnly, pointing to the terrapin, "I'm from New Jersey, and I can stand most anything, but either that bug or me has got to take another room."

"Doctor, I want to thank you for your great patent medicine."

"It helped you, did it?" asked the doctor, very much pleased.

"It helped me wonderfnlly."

"How many bottles did you find it necsssary to take?"

"Oh, I didn't take any of it. My uncle took one bottle and I am his sole heir."

To make a circular flower bed, drive a stake in the center, tie a cord to it equal in length to the radius of the bed, securing at the other a large long knife by which the sod may be cut.

NOTICE OF FORFEITURE.

TO WILLIAM STANFIELD, CO-OWNER: You are hereby notified that the undersigned has expended the sum of One Hundred and 50-100 Dollars, in labor and improvements upon the "State Line Mine," situate in old Sylvania Mining District, Inyo county, State of California, being the amount of expenditures required to be made and done for the year 1883, in order to hold said mine under the provisions of Sec 2324, Revised Statutes of the United States. And if within ninety [90] days after the expiration of the publication of this notice, you shall fail, or refuse, to contribute and pay your legal proportion of such expenditure as co-owner, your interest in said mine, or claim will be forfeited, and become the property of the undersigned, as provided under section 2324 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

JANET'S HAIR.

CHARLES G. HALPINE.

"Oh loosen the snood you wear, Janet
Let me tangle a hand in your hair, my pet.
For the world to me has no daintier sight
Than the brown hair veiling your shoulders white,
As I tangle a hand in your hair, my pet

I was brown with a golden gloss, Janet;
It was finer than silk of the floss, my pet;
'Twas a beautiful mist falling down to your waist,
'Twas a thing to be braided and jewelled and kissed,
'Twas the loveliest hair in the world, my pet!

My arm was the arm of a clown, Janet,
It was sinewy, bristled and brown, my pet;
But warmly and softly it loved to caress
Your round, white neck and your wealth of tress,
Your beautiful plenty of hair, my pet.

Your eyes had a swimming glory, Janet,
Revealing the old, dear story, my pet;
They were gay, with that chastened tinge
of the sky,
When the trout leaps quickest to catch the fly,
And they matched with your golden hair, my pet.

Your lips—but I have no words, Janet,
They were fresh as the twitter of birds, my pet;
When the Spring is young and the roses are wet,
With the dew-drops in each red bosom set,
And they suited your golden-brown hair, my pet.

Oh, you tangled my life in your hair, Jane!
'Twas a silken and golden snare, my pet;
But so gentle the bondage my soul did embrace
The right to continue thy slave evermore,
With my fingers enmeshed in your hair, my pet.

* * * * *

Then never I dreamed what you were, Janet
With your lips and your eyes and your hair, my pet.
In the darkness of desolate years I man,
And my tears fall but pray over the stone,
That covers your golden hair, my pet.

A GHOST STORY.

"I don't believe I ever told you my experience in the dead-house of the hospital after Sailor John's death," said a well-known physician to a reporter. "I never cared about saying anything regarding it, for if I have to confess it, for the first time in my life I was a little weak.

You know the dead-house at Charity Hospital, and its interior? Well, I had had a case of aneurism that puzzled all of us, and, being a young physician then, I had a natural pride in my diagnosis, which did not agree with that of the surgeons. So I determined that when the patient died, as he was sure to do, I would hold an autopsy myself. Well, the poor fellow succumbed at last, and as I had been busy all day, I could not get back to the hospital until 11 o'clock on the night of June 30th. I remember the date well. Illuminating the inside of the dead-house there was but a single gas burner slight. Rigid on one of the dissecting-tables was my subject, awaiting me.

I needn't tell you that, after all my student life at the hospital, going out alone at that time of night produced not the slightest impression upon me. We were too used to such things to notice them. In fact, so great was my desire to prove my diagnosis correct as against that of other physicians, I thought only of the case, and nothing else.

It was anything but a pleasant night. I may say that I cannot remember a more disagreeable one. A blustering norther was blowing and a heavy rain falling. The wind moaned around the eaves of the hospital as if hundreds of sufferers were in agony, and the gurgle of water in the cistern gutters was anything but musical. Once in a while a flash of lightning threw out in relief the bodies lying on other tables awaiting burial. Certainly it was a night of nights for a visit to a dead house. Well, I took off my oil-cloth coat, opened my dissecting case and started to work. The wind stole in through crevices and flared the gas so that I was delayed in my investigation considerably. But after an hour's labor I approached the solution of the problem over which I had so long studied. So full of anxiety was I my hand trembled, and seeing this I stopped, filled my pipe and began smoking to conquer the eagerness.

The face of the dead man was ashen in its paleness, and the flesh was as cold as marble. Looking back at the picture now, I don't think I ever saw a more spectral corpse than that. The eyes were open, and in the agony of death the muscles of the mouth had contracted, so that in the rigor mortis he had a sardonic grin that was horrible in its leer.

The patter of the rain on the roof was incessant, but it sounded pleasant, for it seemed company to one. Still, it did not drown all other sounds, for now and again above the storm there came from the female ward a poor sufferer in delirium.

It took but a few minutes' smoking to recover my steadiness of mind, and I resumed work.

While bending over the body, and just at a moment when the greatest delicacy of operation was required, a curious noise from one corner of the dead-house startled me. It was not like a footstep, but was somewhat like a shuffling of feet.

Instinctively, I looked in that direction, and noticed for the first time some four or five skulls on the floor in a partial state of preparation. The younger students had been at work preparing them for their cabinets. The grinning faces looked as if to chide me for working on such a night, but then I was too anxious about my case to miss my opportunity.

Applying myself again to my subject. I was soon lost in the peculiar developments my eye discovered each moment, when again I was annoyed by a distinct sound from the corner.

Glancing in that direction, it must be confessed, I was not a little surprised to see one of the skulls moving slowly toward me along the flagging of the floor. I rubbed my eyes and looked again. There it was—the flesh less sockets of the eyes gazing at me, the uneven, jagged teeth, giving a ghastly grin to the mouth.

This is a little difficult for me to tell exactly what were my feelings. That they were peculiar I frankly admit. I fell to studying about the cause of this motion on the part of the skull and examined closely to see whether or not there was a string attached and a student playing one of his pranks.

But no. In the night I could plainly discern that there was nothing attached to this relic of humanity. Then what moved it?

Still engrossed with my endeavors to solve this mystery, I did not take my eye off the skull.

Slowly, stealthily and steadily it came on, directly toward where I was sitting on a high stool. The motion produced a dull, grating sound, as some protuberance of bone scratched on the marble slabs.

After it had advanced about three feet it stopped.

I laid down my pipe, still keeping my eye on the unpleasant thing, and tried to laugh away the morbid sensations that had now begun to rise within me. I whispered to myself how much I would have jeered at any brother physician should he have told me of experiencing the slightest feeling of nervousness under similar circumstances. Even the students would have retailed the affair as an indication of my efficiency had they known it. Surely there were mechanical causes to produce these results. I knew that the unsubstantial could not give motion to the substantial. My natural philosophy told me that there must be a force at work to impel that grim fragment of a human frame toward me. Yet what force was it?

I determined not to leave my seat to attempt a close inspection, fearing to be rewarded by the laughter of those who were endeavoring to astonish me.

The dreary monotone of the rain and the unearthly sobbing of the wind turned my reflections to a more sombre color, and some things came back I had read in Robert Dale Owen's "Footfalls on the Boundaries of Another World"—curious things, authenticated by affidavits and all the solemnity of oaths of remarkable revisitants from the grave. While dwelling on these subjects I recalled many conversations I had had with my patient, now dead and buried some three weeks, Sailor John, and his persistent assertions of the possibilities of the intellectual spirit returning to this world of the flesh.

There! The skull moved again. On it came, still sliding along in a direct line toward me.

Do what I would, I could not shake off a feeling of uneasiness and disquiet. I did not like the situation—that about expresses it.

'Eer-eeeke,' grated the skull's bony points on the floor, the sound tingling my nerves as when one scratches the finger-nail on brick or rough surface.

My pulse grew more frequent. I experienced a chilly sensation down my back, and a cold perspiration dampened my forehead.

Around me the corpses lay, the gas light making them sallow-yellow. They at least did not move.

I could stand this strain no longer. I was becoming a victim of a weakness for which I would have reprimanded a child. I felt pale, if that is possible, for it seemed as if all my blood had rushed to my heart.

With a bound I sprung toward the skull, and stooping, grasped it with my two hands. I lifted it from the floor.

Out jumped a large rat and went scampering away. I cannot describe my feelings when I saw the cause of all my discomfiture. At first I laughed, and then became angry with myself for, even for a moment, allowing such an incident to disturb my equilibrium.

Examining the skull I saw how it had occurred. The rat had entered the cavity in which the brain had been, through the foramen magnum or aperture through which the nerve matter of the spinal column communicates with the brain. The skull turned over, imprisoning the body of the creature, and permitted the use of his feet only through this foramen. He could move the skull, but while it was on the floor he could not get his body out.

Pasted across the whitened brow was a piece of paper, and on it a student's name—'Henry J. Stubbs'—and below: 'Skull of Sailor John, a King of one of the Polynesian Islands; died May 12, 1869. Charity Hospital.'

In an instant I remembered the day of the month. It was June 30, the night of John's birthday. His promise came back to me. He had said he would make himself known to me on that night.

I regretted the intervention of the rat. Had that animal never been discovered by me there would have been an excellent foundation for a ghost story, on which I could have made my affidavit, and thus swelled the number of authenticated cases of remarkable spiritual manifestations. But the rat spoiled it all.

Even with the full explanation of the skull's movements the nervous feeling did not pass off for some time, and even now when June 30th comes around I think of Sailor John and his promise, which, however, he has never fulfilled."
—New Orleans Times Democrat.

Tommy Wonders.

Why my papa should sit with his pipe in his mouth all the evening, after saying that he hopes I will be a good boy and never smoke.

Why my mamma should expect me never to tell a lie, when she finds it so convenient to tell several almost every day.

Why papa and mamma say such nice things to each other when we have company, and hardly talk to each other at all when we haven't.

Why papa can be so polite to the women mamma calls hateful, and why papa dislikes the men mamma thinks ever and ever so much of.

Why my mamma should be so fickle-minded. She told Mrs. Smith the other day how glad she was to see her, and when Mrs. Smith left said she hoped she might never set her eyes on her again.

Why papa told mamma he had been kept at the store that night he didn't come home to supper. I heard him tell Mr. Jack he had been on a picnic with the boys. I wonder what he meant.

Why mamma hid the cards that day the minister called.

Why little boys and girls are so much worse now than when papa and mamma were children.

Why papa won't tell me any of the stories that he tells to Mr. White and Mr. Black, and which makes them laugh so.

I wonder what little boys were made for. They are always such nuisances, and in everybody's way.

All Alike.

An oleaginous gentleman, with half a dozen chins and a stomach like a bass drum, sat in the front seat of the railway car, where his bay front had plenty of room to dispose itself. He was very, very warm, but his streaming face betrayed no sign of ill-temper or impatience. His expansive features were the very picture of contentment. He looked so placid that a thin built gentleman on the other side of the aisle after gazing at the flashy one for several minutes took courage to ask:

"Beg pardon, sir; but it's a pretty warm day."

"Hot!" replied the big man sententiously.

"So it is," continued the slim party. "You'll excuse my curiosity, but I suppose you cannot weigh less than—"

"Just three hundred."

"But you were not always so stout?"

"No."

"Ten years ago you were as slim as I."

"Slimmer."

"And when you were a young fellow nobody supposed you'd live to reach your majority. You were a perfect skeleton in those days."

"Nothing but bones."

"And when you were born you could have been placed in a pint pot."

"Easily."

"I thought so," said the slim man, as with a sigh of relief, he settled back into his seat; "they're all alike, all alike."—Boston Transcript.

A Leap-Year Hint

Maud—"Why do they put wax on champagne corks, Mr. Shyman?"

Mr. Shyman—"To keep it."

"To keep it?"

"Yes; unless perfectly air-tight the stuff becomes spoiled and won't pop."

"Oh! was it your mother's failure to wax you when you were young that spoiled you?"

"Spoiled me?"

"Yes; you won't pop, either."

THE imprudence of keeping pet bears was illustrated the other day at Susanville, Cal. A rousing demonstration—Getting out of bed.

HUMOROUS YARNING.

Young Spoonogle never knows when to leave when he calls on a young lady; he likes the sound of his own voice so well that he talks on and on, while the poor girl grows light headed with the tax on her strength, and wishes the mantel piece of Elijah would fall on the tiresome caller.

There is a young lady on Lafayette avenue who made up her mind to give Spoonogle a lesson. So last Sunday night when he called she was as cordial as possible up to eleven o'clock. Then having had a four-volume history of Spoonogle's life, with an extended account of his influence in politics and business, she began to get dizzy and have a ringing in her ears. At that moment her young brother rushed into the room and said hurriedly:

"Pa wants the morning papers, sis."

"Look in the vestibule, Willie," she answered gently. "I think I heard the boy leaving them there some hours ago."

Spoonogle never took the hint but drawled on about the roller-skating rink and what a figure he cut on skates. The next interruption was from the head of the house, who entered briskly rubbing his hands.

"Good morning—good morning," he said cheerily. "Ah, Spoonogle, you're out early. Well, 'early bird,' etc. It's going to be a fine day, from present appearances."

Spoonogle was dazed, but he concluded the old man had been drinking, and sat back with a "come one come all, this rock shall fly, from its firm base as soon as yours truly," air that was decidedly convincing.

A half hour passed and the mother hurried in.

"Dear me, I'm late," she said as she entered. "I smelled the coffee an hour ago and knew breakfast was waiting, but—ah! Good morning, Mr. Spoonogle!"

Then the sweet youth took the hint and, drawing himself together, he got out into the hall and opened the front door just as the hired girl rung a bell and called "Breakfast" over the banisters.

The Waves in Saginaw Bay.

"Captain," said the reporter as he elbowed his way into the circle, "how large waves did you ever see on the Lakes?"

"Well, let's see. Do you mean within the last five years?"

"I mean any time since you have been sailing."

"Oh—ah! Well, sir, twenty years ago, when I used to sail the bark John B. Skinner, I saw waves on the Saginaw bay which must have been—"

"Go on."

"Say," observed the captain, "please ask some of these gentlemen their opinion."

There were six other captains in the circle. Two of them said they had seen waves fifteen feet high; two more agreed on twenty feet, and the other parties thought they had seen waves running around loose which must have been full of twenty-five feet high.

"Now then, captain," said the reporter to the first.

"Well, sir," replied the captain, seeing that the other gentlemen have given in their figures, I will say that I have seen waves on Saginaw bay exactly fifty one feet and seven inches high. I took a ladder and tape-line and measured 'em and I know that I knocked off at least ten inches of their tops in reaching up."

He came last, and the other captains could only nurse their desperation.

Had a Diamond at Home.

"So you want a position as clerk, do you?" asked the proprietor of the hotel of a dapper young applicant.

"Yes, sir."

"Have you had much experience?"

"Oh, yes, sir. I have been connected with a great many large hotels, and can give the best of recommendations."

"Well," said the landlord, "we want a clerk, but—" and he hesitated.

"But what?" asked the young man.

"You seem to have no diamond breast pin."

"Yes, I have. I've got a big one, but I thought I wouldn't wear it this morning."

"In that case," replied the hotel proprietor, with a relieved look, "the position is at your service. I thought at first you had a diamond yet to purchase and the way business is going on now it might cramp me somewhat."

After a Texas Trip.

Mrs. Livermore, in an interview with a reporter concerning the effect of the stage on women, said:

"I can answer your question best by telling you a little story about Mrs. Waller. A young girl was acting in the same theatre with her and was observed, Mrs. Waller called the girl to her and in a more tragic tone than she ever used in Lady Macbeth, said: 'Get out of it; get out of it, I say. You are on the brink of hell. Get out of it at once. To succeed you must become demonized. Get out of it, I say.'"

It is suspected that Mrs. W. gave this advice after making a trip through Texas, an experience calculated to disgust one with the business.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, AUGUST 2,..... 1884.

Published Every Saturday, by
C. MULHOLLAND.

CONGRESSMAN Culbertson, of Kentucky, shot himself last Wednesday. It is thought he will die. He had been drinking a good deal.

THE recording angel will now get a much needed rest from making entries for perjury; no more testimony is to be taken in the Hill Sharon case.

THE weather in the Eastern States is described as "beastly." Rubber coats out of doors and fires within are essential in July. Dwellers in our lovely climate do not know how to pity the unfortunate "down Easters."

IT is now said the Mother Hubbard dress will have to go; that it is ungraceful, dowdy and unæsthetic. This may all be so, but it has one advantage that will make the girls unwilling to part with it—hugging don't rumple it.

IT is a queer political contest as it stands. All the Republicans are going to vote for the Democratic candidate, and all the Democrats for the Republican leader. At least that is what an intelligent New Zealander would conclude to be the case after reading the more strictly partizan newspapers on both sides.

AT BATTLE MOUNTAIN, Nevada, there are a great number of artesian wells, none of which are very deep. One of the wells, which is about 130 feet deep, flows 50,000 gallons of water in twenty four hours, and the water rises to the height of twelve feet above the surface. There are undoubtedly many other localities where water could be as easily and as cheaply obtained as in Battle Mountain.

He's a genius; he's an ass. He's a hero; he's a poltroon. He's a pure man; he's a libertine. He's an honest man; he's a thief. He's a truthful man; he's a liar. He's a man of broad views; he's a narrow bigot. He's an independent man; he's a tool of corporations. He's a pure minded patriot; he's a selfish demagogue. He's a man of deep religious feeling; he's a sniveling hypocrite. He's——well, he's a candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people, and these estimates of character and capacity show how much reason and candor have to do with political preferences.

THE Bradford Pa. glass works, which shut down on account of a strike, resumed Wednesday with non-union men. In the afternoon the strikers surrounded the factory while Degneaux, the new foreman, and Superintendent McCartney were inside, and began throwing stones. McCartney escaped, but Degneux was captured and his eyes gouged out to prevent his doing any more work. There was great excitement and it was feared the strikers would burn the factory and other buildings of the company.

OWEN'S RIVER VALLEY offers more attractions to colonists than any other part of the State. There is plenty of land; water in abundance for irrigation can be had from Owen's river; the soil is exceedingly fertile; the climate is delightful; fruits of all kinds except tropical flourish in perfection, and telegraph and railroad ensures communication with the great world as completely as in the old and crowded States of the East. Tracts of land can be secured containing from one to ten thousand acres, or more if wanted, every foot of which can be made to yield abundantly of grain, fruits and vegetables. When the character of this great and beautiful valley shall become fully known abroad immigration will set in with a rush, and soon every foot of land will be taken up.

An interesting letter from a prospector will be found in another column. The writer calls attention to a subject on which better legislation is very much needed. It is unfortunate for the mining interests that the counties containing mines are sparsely peopled compared with the agricultural counties, and that in the distribution of Congressional districts the latter counties are always able to select men for Congress. These having no immediate interests in mines give little or no attention to legislation affecting them, and thus the wrong complained of in the letter goes unredressed. The whole inhabitants of mining counties would gain much by sinking partisan politics and uniting to secure the nomination and election to legislative offices of men whose interests are identical with their own.

RIGHTEOUS INDIGNATION.

PINE MOUNTAIN, July 30, 1884.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:—We here most cordially indorse the article in your issue of the 19th ult., headed "Homes for Workers." Yes, there are thousands of acres of splendid land open for settlement in this valley, which will make beautiful and profitable homes. Much can be said in favor of the great resources of this county, especially that now we have an avenue opened to us even to the sea, by the C. and C. railroad. It is not my intention to speak much of these things at present, but I want to do a little growling. It is this: Why has not a prospector or a miner as much right to locate land and pay Government the regular price for it as a settler, who seeks out the very choicest of bottom or valley land, and pays his $1.25 per acre and gets his title from the Government?

When the prospector locates his 20 acres on the side of a rocky and barren mountain, where a goat would starve to death if he was obliged to stay ten days, he (the prospector) is compelled to pay $100 per year for such land. If poverty or sickness overtakes him he loses his property; for at 12 o'clock, midnight, the first of every new year there will be a notice ready to be clapped on if he has failed to do his $100 worth of work. You will say he must get it patented. Show me one miner in fifty who is able to get his mine patented, when it costs from $700 to $1000 and a mile of red tape to go through. Where is the fairness or justice of such a law?

Rocky! Yes; $100 for 20 acres of a mountain miles from water, where there is not a bit's worth of vegetation on the whole mountain—that is the kind of land prospectors are compelled to pay $100 a year for. Well, you will say if prospectors don't like it they must turn their attention to something else. Very good; what would the mining interest of the Pacific Coast be to-day had there been no prospectors?

They only ask the law-makers to give them a square deal. They are willing to pay government prices for land and take a government title. "What is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander."

The prospector's life is anything but beautiful; he ekeks out a most miserable and scanty subsistence, making paths for settlers, who make homes while he still goes forward and has none, only the mountains and the blue canopy of heaven. Day after day; months, years pass, still he is building trails for others to follow. Finally Dame Fortune smiles upon him; once more he goes to the nearest store, tells his old friend, the merchant, that he has got it at last and all he wants is a side of bacon and a sack of flour; and he will get out ten tons for the new mill, for he believes that new man is square, and will do the fair thing by him. It is the old story. Early and late he hammers away, sleeps bad and eats worse; but at last his ore is at the furnace. It looks good but the new man says he was much disappointed in the yield. The poor prospector goes away, tearing his hair out by the roots. He owes for hauling or packing, and much worse, his friend the merchant, who has helped him through many a tight place. Finally he succeeds in finding what he has looked for so many years. Does he make anything to speak of? No; but the man that followed after is the man who makes the money.

The prospectors are the pathfinders to most all new mining countries; and how little credit they get! When Fremont found a trail to the Pacific Coast, it was in every mouth; it was "Fremont, the great Pathfinder." That very trail made him so great a man that in after years he thought he ought to be made President.

Still the prospectors are, like Eugene Sue's Wandering Jew, always on the go, and each has big things to tell about his last find. Yours, &c., S. P. R.

A Big Suit Against Sharon.

The case of the Odd Fellows' Savings Bank vs. William Sharon was begun yesterday in Judge Rand's Court. The circumstances which led to the suit are as follows: On the day after the Bank of California failed William C. Ralston, cashier of the bank, made an assignment to Sharon of all his property. Under this deed Sharon proceeded to settle the debts of Ralston. Among these claims was one of over a million dollars borrowed by William Barling in his own name, secured by stock of the Bank of California. One of the parties from whom Barling borrowed money was the Odd Fellows' Bank, to the amount of $355,000. After the failure of the bank and the death of Ralston, immediately following, a settlement was made by Sharon with the Odd Fellows' Bank, by which he paid 50 cents on a dollar, leaving a balance of $177,500 of the claim unpaid. It is charged that he settled a claim of the Clay-street Savings and Loan Society for $250,000 by settling the amount in full. The Odd Fellows' Bank did not learn that any other creditor of Ralston had been paid more than 50 cents on a dollar until 1879, when this suit was brought.

It is alleged in the complaint that Barling acted as an agent for Ralston in incurring this debt, and that Sharon promised when he made the settlement, to pay the plaintiff as much as any other creditor. The complaint also alleges that Sharon holds the property he received under deed from Ralston in trust for Ralston's creditors, and asks that either Sharon be required to pay the $177,500 balance, or that he give an accounting of his transactions with the Ralston property.

The defendant denies that the Barling notes were for the benefit of Ralston, or that he holds property in trust for the payment of Ralston's debts. He also denies that he promised to pay plaintiff the same percentage as any other creditor of Ralston.—Chronicle.

Professor A. H. Willis, now a prominent mine-owner of Inyo county, came up yesterday morning on a visit to the Comstock. He has much to say in praise of both the mineral and agricultural outlook in that region.—Enterprise.

Theories About Cholera.

Florence Nightingales views in regard to cholera are worthy of consideration, because of the work she did in her time in camp an hospital; but when she comes to antagonize a scientist of the ability of Dr. Koch her opinions will have small weight. She regards cholera as a local disease, not contagious and depending for its virulence upon the nature of the place and its sanitary conditions. She would establish no quarantine where the scourge breaks out, but would allow the place to be evacuated. That, in her judgment, would be the speediest means of stamping it out, for it would then have nothing to feed on and the sanitary defects of the place could then be remedied. Such an argument as this has small weight against the clear demonstration of Koch of the spread of the disease through microscopic germs, which are propagated with a rapidity and power almost as marvelous as the progress of light or the force of electricity. Koch has yet to advise a means of checking cholera, but we believe a few years will witness this achievement of scientific genius. In the meantime quarantine has proved effective in preventing the spread of the scourge and it is not likely that any nation will relax it in favor of the non-contagious theory.—Chronicle.

The words of Dr. Koch, that "the cholera would spread everywhere," are finding realization to a degree that should cause preparation. Where the scourge does not break out this year, it is feared that it may make its appearance next year. That it is on its march can no longer be denied and quarantine next to cleanliness, is the surest preventive that can be adopted. Dr. Koch has enlightened the world as to the causes which produce cholera, which must prove a great aid to medical science in the search for its cure. In time there is scarcely a doubt but this discovery will be made, when the epidemic can be fearlessly met and successfully vanquished. As we have heretofore said, San Francisco is in no immediate danger of a visit from the disease, but as her port is open to the ships of all nations, too many precautions cannot be taken to ward it off.—Call.

Sudden Death

An old and well known citizen of Virginia City died very suddenly last Monday. The Enterprise says:

Colonel James Kelly, the liquor merchant, died last night a few minutes before 9 o'clock, of an apoplectic stroke. He was stricken about 5 o'clock in the evening, and the physicians from the first had but little hope of his recovery. He suffered a stroke some months ago, during a visit to the town of Gold Hill, and his life was then despaired of. About a month ago he ruptured a blood vessel in one of his legs, and had yesterday just got about again when he was stricken down. Deceased was an old resident of the Comstock, and a man well known and highly esteemed by all old settlers. In early days, when quite a boy, he was for a long time a clerk in the grocery and provision store of John Mallon. Afterwards he was in the same business at No. 68 South C street on his own account. About the same time he was a large dealer in mining stocks and made and lost a great deal of money. Recently he had opened a liquor store in the Black building, corner C and Taylor streets. Deceased was about forty six years of age and leaves a wife and two or three children in this city. James Kelly was a fine musician, and at one time took great interest in military matters. He was a quiet, unobtrusive disposition, but withal most kind-hearted and genial. His sudden death will be mourned by a host of friends throughout this State and California.

C. MULHOLLAND.

THRESHING — This week threshing was begun here. The grain is yielding well.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS.—This evening there will be an election of officers for Inyo Lodge, No. 546, I. O. G. T.

LODGE MEETING.—This evening there will be a regular meeting of Inyo Lodge No. 221, F. & A. M. Members and visiting brethren are invited to attend.

THE SCHOOLS. — The public school here, taught by Miss F. C. Northrup, will open about September 1st, for a long term. The school at Camp Independence, which will be in charge of Miss Elma K. Yaney, will probably begin at the same time.

ROYING CATFISH.—In mowing the wild grass that grows about the borders of Washoe lake, the workmen of mornings frequently come across belated catfish that have been ashore bug-hunting during the night and are just making their way back to the lake.

FIRE AT LUNING.—On Wednesday last a disastrous fire occurred at Luning. The fire originated in Benton's Lodging House, destroying that building, and, having no apparatus for handling water, spread rapidly, burning Knapp & Laws' store and McSane's saloon and restaurant.

SECOND PAPERS.— There are many men in this county now entitled to receive their second papers on completion of naturalization. Unless said second papers are received not later than next Wednesday the parties cannot vote at the coming election. Hurry up and get your papers.

NEW GOODS.—Harris & Rhine have just received a large shipment of goods. Among the rest are dress goods in various styles that will be offered at lower prices than usual. Ladies will find among these goods great variety of such articles as they need and of the latest styles and best qualities.

NO MARKET.—For apples at retail eight cents per pound is asked here in Independence. Of course the home market for produce must be dull when such extravagant prices are asked. When fruit shall be offered at reasonable rates a market will be found for it and it will be profitable to raise it.

GOOD ENTERTAINMENT.—Mr. Wood, the blind musician, gave a highly satisfactory entertainment here on last Saturday evening. The attendance was large, many coming from distant points. After the concert there was a dance at the Blaney House. The party broke up in time to avoid violating the Sabbath.

ARMY WORMS.—This pest has invaded Mono county. The Bodie Free Press says: "The chances are that the army worm will lay such sad havoc with the vegetable ranches of Mono county that our markets will have to import green diet for the remainder of the season. They have proved very destructive about Mono Lake, and are still traveling to the Southward. Following the immense migration of butterflies come the worms, upon which the theory is based that the army worm is simply a ravenous caterpillar." As the darkey said, "It's an ill wind dat blows no whar," and Mono's difficulty may be Inyo's opportunity.

A FEATHERED CONVERT.—John Gillig's parrot has joined the Salvation Army. The bird has its perch on a balcony fronting on South C street, and last evening, when the Salvationists began singing in the streets below, it struck in with them, singing most lustily. It caught the tune to perfection, but paid no attention to the words. The parrot was evidently powerfully wrought upon. It went it without ceasing to the tune of the "Blood of the Lamb" for about an hour—long after the Salvation Army had moved on—and was finally carried indoors still shrieking its Salvation tune in a perfect frenzy of delight, to the amusement of the throng of ungodly collected below. It got off through its nose a tearful twang that was excericiating.—Enterprise.

FISHING PARTY.—On Tuesday morning of this week Messrs. S. Shabrie and C. D. Begole started out from Lone Pine for a day's fishing up the river. They had great success and returned in the evening with their saddlebags chuck full of catfish. Mr. Reynolds, the jolly landlord of the Lone Pine Hotel, grinned as broadly as a catfish could when the fish were placed in his charge with directions to have them prepared for supper. In this branch of high art Landlord Reynolds has no superior. A dozen persons sat down to the delicious mess he had prepared, and after doing full justice to the feast voted unanimously that the same company of fishermen be deputized to go on another expedition. This is the largest catch of catfish yet made at the lower end of the river since it was stocked.

LOOK OUT, BOYS!—The boys who have been visiting orchards lately had better look out, or rather they had better keep out; watch has been set for them, and if caught they will be roughly handled. The boys may not know that to break into an orchard is a criminal offense, and the offender is liable to be sent to jail.

RENO HAS IT.—The infallible preventive of death from snake bite has been found. Reno has it. The Gazette says: "Last evening Mr. Lemery, of the Palace Restaurant, received word that N. S. Sherman, a Pyramid Lake fisherman, was bitten on the hand by a rattlesnake. The snake died and Sherman lived, although very sick for a time." The man was tougher than the snake; the remedy killed the latter, but it only made the former sick. What a pity that the showman who lost his life from snake bite in New York could not have got a bottle of the Reno medicine.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY.—A valuable mineral discovery has lately been made near Reno. The Journal says: "Captain Griffith has developed an unexpected bonanza in his Peavine mine. An analysis of the last ore strike develops the fact that it is cobalt and nickel, carrying a very little copper and iron. The Captain has had three tests made of the ore and all agree as to the results. There appears to be an immense body of the ore, which, when first cut into, was supposed to be copper, but a few simple tests at the mine showed this to be an error. That the ore carried a high percentage of metal of some kind was certain, and having convinced himself if was neither copper nor iron, the Captain concluded to have the mystery solved by a chemical analysis, which developed the fact that he has a bonanza in nickel.

CATTLE SALE.—The cattle belonging to the Chastaine estate were sold at auction last Thursday. Sales were made in separate lots as follows: First lot forty-seven head at $18 per head; second lot, twenty-three head at $20 per head; third lot, thirty-two head at $18.75 per head. These lots were all taken by Mr. McCord, of Kern county. The fourth lot, seventy-six head at $19.75 per head, taken by Mr. Miles, of Galt, Sacramento county; fifth lot, forty-six head at $18.50 per head, taken by Mr. C. L. Meyers, of Big Pine; sixth lot, fifty-three head at $17 per head, also taken by Mr. Miles. The entire lot included animals of all ages, from sucking calves to old cows. There was a good attendance at the sale and competition was quite lively. Cattle men think the stock brought its full value.

THE PROSPECTORS AND THEIR WORK.—Prospecting is very lively along the whole line of the Carson & Colorado, from Hawthorne to the terminus of the road. The railroad is a great convenience to the prospectors in many ways. It carries their traps and provisions from place to place, and when they have found a vein that will pay it carries their ore to where it can be brought to mill test and reduced. Small lots of ore are being constantly brought in to the Douglas mill, at Dayton, either to be tested or be reduced. Now, too, there are beginning to be mills and furnaces at the other end of the road—down in Inyo—to which the ore may be sent. The only use prospectors now find for their donkeys and pack mules is in bringing ore down to the road from their camps and in carrying back provisions and other supplies. Thus is prospecting in the wilderness made easy.

AN UNINVITED VISITOR.—A man who was at work in the bottom of a prospecting shaft yesterday, down in Flowery, was not a little disgusted at having a rattle-snake come tumbling down to the bottom. Luckily, the creature landed in the tub which the man's partner had let down previous to going away to a spring for a jug of water. The snake fell about thirty feet, and being somewhat stunned, was cut in two by the miner with his shovel before it became actively hostile. The man in the shaft had been waiting for a day or two, and when he sent the snake up to his partner on his return from the spring, he made him believe he had vomited the creature up during his absence, and declared he "felt quite another man;" as indeed he should have done, the snake being three feet long and decorated with five rattles. —Enterprise.

A DESERT LAND.—The impression prevails abroad that this part of California is little more than a desert. Mr. N. T. Piper, of Fish Spring Valley, lives in the very heart of the so-called "desert." He has finished cutting his first crop of hay this season and has gathered 600 tons of as good alfalfa as ever was cut. The second crop will yield quite as much. He has a large tract in barley, now ready to cut, that he is sure will yield one hundred bushels to the acre. Young fruit trees, apples plums and apricots, set out about four years ago, have a good crop of fruit. How is this for a "desert?" Mr. Piper made the first location of the land eighteen years ago. When making the survey he had to pay twenty-five cents per pound for barley to feed his mules. For many years after claiming the land he had no thought of making a permanent location and did nothing toward making such improvements as all want to have around a home. As time wore on he realized more fully the great value of the place, and became more attached to it and during the past three or four years has been putting up good buildings and setting out orchards until at present he has a home and property such as places within his reach all that makes life enjoyable. The State of California, and this part of it in particular, offers opportunities for well doing to men of energy such as are not equaled elsewhere on earth.

MINING ITEMS.

WILD ROSE DISTRICT.

In last week's issue of the INDEPENDENT some facts were given concerning the mines of Wild Rose District. In the Chronicle of last Tuesday an article appears on the subject that is worth repeating as it contains additional facts. The writer of the article is thoroughly reliable, and knows the country well:

To the Editor of the Chronicle:—SIR: Inyo county offers a very promising mining item, if we may be permitted to judge. Over 3,000 ounces of silver bullion recently shipped to Messrs. Selby & Co, produced from a trifle over ten tons of ore from the Mohawk, Blue Bell and Argonaut mines in Wild Rose District, in the Telescope range in the Southern part of Inyo county. This ore was hauled thirty miles and across Panamint valley to Snows canyon mill in the Argus range by W. K. Miller, one of the owners and a resident of Lone Pine, to test the milling quality of the ore. Mr. Miller is a strong believer in this district. He has looked upon white Pine, Pioche and other early camps in their prospecting days and he has equal faith in the outcome of White Rose District. The milling test was very satisfactory, coming up to 85 and 90 per cent of the assay value by the most ordinary process, and bullion 75 and 80 fine, carrying a light per cent of copper. This district shows a large amount of high grade ore. Some of the most promising ledges have been considerably developed, giving encouragement that they will make mines of great and permanent value. Natural and good roads lead to these properties and to the wood and water, which are both found ample for mining and milling purposes and are contiguous to the mines. There are hundreds, and I may say thousands of tons of this fine milling ore out and in sight, and no milling facilities near at hand to work it profitably, and the owners, mostly miners, are unable to undertake the erection of reduction works. The climate is very healthy and the finest in the world for continuous mining. What is needed is practical mining men who judge for themselves and will listen to no idle report; who take no second sight—men who have capital and who want to see where it goes. Such men (who are really our successful mining men and who alone can benefit a mining district) could just now take in the whole White Rose District and the principal mines, with all the natural advantages, for a mere nominal sum. And if there is an equal showing on this coast to build up a reliable, prosperous camp we have not seen or heard of it, and we are willing to vouch for this account.

POLITA MINE.

William Irwin and Tom Luther, formerly of Bodie, have purchased a three-fifth interest in the famous Polita Mine opposite Bishop Creek, and have also rented the Hawley mill, where they will crush several hundred tons of ore and ascertain the best method of reducing the same. They will then probably put up a mill near the mine. The C. & C. R. R. Co. are now putting in a side track at a convenient point for the transportation of the ore, and will also probably build a side track to the Hawley mill. Messrs. Irwin and Luther are shortly to be joined by Mr. George Storey, and we have no doubt but this trio will make a success of it, as they are all workers and have no such word as fail in their vocabulary.

MAXIM MINE.

Last Tuesday Mr. Nevins brought in from the Maxim mill seventy-seven ounces of gold bullion, worth fourteen hundred dollars. This bullion was obtained from seventy tons of quartz. The quartz contains a large percent of sulphurets, and as there is no concentrator at the mill the loss must have been heavy. From the result of this run it is very evident that with concentrators and vigorous working of the mine, the maxim would develop into a very valuable property.

DEFIANCE FURNACE.

At the Defiance furnace six tons of bullion are being turned out daily, being a yield of twenty per cent from the ore smelted. The bullion is all high grade. Mine and furnace is the property of Hon. P. Reddy, who is a firm believer in the great value of the mines of the district, and is confident that immense profits will be made by working them.

MODOCK FURNACE.

The Modock mine and furnace at Lookout is turning out bullion steadily. There is now a large quantity of bullion at the railroad ready for transportation to San Francisco. Mr. Frank Fitzgerald, the owner of the property, is making a good run at the furnace.

Messrs. Alexander and Kehoe will shortly make a shipment of ore from the Eclipse to Elna furnace, which will soon start up.

Yesterday morning four miners left Lone Pine for the Beveridge District to work for Cohn & Straus.

Three miners have gone to Kreggs' Canyon to work the mine there and start the mill.

At the old San Carlos mine a force of men will be put to work next Monday.

FINE TROUT.—Last Tuesday William Lake and Willie Staines came in from a prospecting trip over on King's River; they brought with them fifty fine trout, many weighing one and a half pounds and over, caught in the lakes at the head waters of the river. Trout are reported very abundant in the lakes and streams, the weather is delightful, and the conditions for pleasure parties all that could be wished. There is plenty of snow on the higher mountains, that will continue to afford a copious supply of water to the valleys.

LETTER FROM CARSON CITY.

A few days after the 4th I started on a trip to this city in company with Mr. and Mrs. Dormer, whose guest I now am, and where I expect to remain for a few weeks.

Being my first excursion on the C. & C. R. R. for so long a distance, I found it more tiresome than pleasurable, with little of note by the way. The drive to the depot from Bishop Creek, just as the sun was going down, "over hedges and ditches, hills and low grounds," was not very agreeable, but the sensation of change compensated for all this.

We left on the train a few minutes after ten o'clock, P. M., and as there was no moon, saw nothing of the country through which we passed until the next morning, when the whistle awoke us from our reclining couch on its arrival at Candelaria. From there we went on to Hawthorne, where we had breakfast. From there the road runs along the east side of Walker Lake its entire length of 33 miles.

Among the passengers were a lady and gentlemen, evidently not accustomed to rural life, by some of the remarks I happened to overhear. Passing a field of wheat, the lady observed: "What a nice meadow, but the grass looks as if it was frost-bitten." Soon after passing some hogs that had been wallowing in the alkali mud, she remarked: "I never saw gray hogs before, and no hair on them." I suppose, if she made notes of her travels, she put these hogs down as a native species of this sagebrush country, and perhaps added by way of speculation, that they might have been the remnant of some unknown relic of former times.

On running through a narrow ravine, we were startled by the continued whistle of "down brakes;" when, on looking out of the car window, we saw several bovines, one of which was kicking one foot into the air, with its head to the locomotive, showing fight, having evidently been hit by the cowcatcher.

Arriving at the Mound House, we changed cars for Carson City, sixteen miles distant, where, at 4, P. M., we were glad to get off and go to a nice home and take a quiet sleep for the night.

Last evening I attended a lecture, by a Mr. Miller, an ex-prophet or New-Light apostle of a new creed, setting forth in a very original manner, that all the preachers and teachers of Christendom were the worst of heretics, not having the spirit of Christ or teaching the doctrine he taught. The two greatest crimes he laid at their doors were, preaching for pay, and teaching infant baptism; clinching the latter argument by quoting Philip's saying to the eunuch; "If thou believest with all thy heart thou mayest be baptized." But many of his quotations were so original and eccentric that it brought down the house. Of Christ's rebuke to Peter he said: "Get behind me, you devil, you don't sabe."

This modernizing the language of Scripture reminded me of the darkey preacher who was reported as speaking of the Eden story in this wise: "The Lord saw Adam monkeying around in the garden, and he gib him de grand bounce."

Between cranks and fanatics, many creeds are running the gauntlet; and it may be hoped, to their benefit more than harm, sine truth, like the diamond, is only made brighter by friction.

Being out in the current of life, once more, and domiciled in one of the pleasantest homes in this city, I will send you from time to time my observations and impressions of things I see, of any note or interest to the readers of THE INDEPENDENT. L. H.

Personal Mention

Captain Keeler came up to town on Wednesday.

John McEvoy arrived from New York on Wednesday.

M. G. Nixon returned on Wednesday from Benton.

John Lubken was up from Lone Pine on Tuesday.

Mr. N. T. Piper of Deep Springs was in town most of the week.

W. A Greenly came over from Deep Spring Valley last Wednesday.

Mr. A. R Conklin returned home from Sacramento last Sunday.

Assistant Supt. Laws, of the C. & C. railroad, was in town last Tuesday.

Mr. McCord, of Kern county, was in town this week, attending the sale of the Chastaine cattle.

Senator Reddy came down from Bodie last Sunday to attend the resumption of the Silva case.

Mr. Miner, counsel for Silva, was on hand from Bridgeport at the reopening of the case last Monday.

Mr. William Barrows returned from San Francisco last Wednesday, and resumed his residence here.

Tom Luther was in town at the beginning of the week on business connected with starting the Hawley mill.

Rev. Warren Nims and wife started on Thursday morning for the M. E. Conference, this year to be held at Genoa, Nev.

C. D. Begole, Charles Levy, W. K. Miller and Joe Williams were up from Lone Pine on Thursday, attending the cattle sale.

Miss Eva L. Shepherd, who has for some time past been visiting relatives at Pleasantville, Iowa, returned home last Monday.

J. W. Dickenson and Ralph Miles, of Galt, Sacramento county, were here this week attending a cattle sale. Mr Dickenson is an old resident of Independence.

Mr. S. D. Woods is yet in San Francisco. He is working earnestly to find buyers for the county bonds, and for that good work deserves the thanks of the people of Inyo.

Here and There.

The days are getting perceptibly shorter.

Parties from the northern end of the county report everything quiet and everybody busy.

Dove-shooting is now legal, but the birds are scarce.

Joe Williams of Lone Pine, leaves for San Francisco to-day on his way East.

The King's River trail over the "high Sierras" will be open and passable in a week or two. So say those who have tried it.

George Campbell, lately a Postal Clerk on the C. & C., wishes it stated that he resigned, and was not dismissed.

The local telegraph line, extending along Main street, is now, and for some time has been, in perfect working condition. Any one wishing to "catch on," for the purpose of practice, can do so by paying the necessary cost of instruments and connection, of course subject to the approval of "the company."

DRIED UP.—The torrent of legal eloquence in the Silva case dried up Tuesday evening. Judge Arnot has taken the case under advisement, and will give a decision at an early day. The Judge and attorneys all left here after the close of the arguments.

SOMETHING WRONG.—Last week a shipment of apricots was received at Bishop Creek from the Sacramento valley. There is something wrong here; instead of importing apricots to this valley, not only should the home market be fully supplied, but tons of the fruit ought to be shipped away. Nowhere else in the State can that kind of fruit be produced in greater perfection than in Owens River Valley. Merchants would make a very serious mistake by trying to force a market for produce raised elsewhere, when as good an article can be got at home, and it is difficult to believe that any would do this. On the other hand, farmers would be not less unwise to let their fruit rot on the ground, rather than accept a price that would make the shipment of fruit raised in the Sacramento valley unprofitable, the freight charges on such fruit are a heavy percentage in favor of home-raised fruit.

FRUIT ROTTING ON THE GROUND.—On walking through an orchard in town a few days ago, the ground was seen to be covered with apples rotting on the ground where they fell. The party in charge of the orchard said it was no use to pick up the fruit, as there was no market for it. Being asked what price the apples ought to bring he said five cents would be a low figure. Here is the whole secret of want of market for fruit; it is held at prices far above its value. At three cents per pound, or even two cents, apples would be a far more profitable crop than grain, vegetables or hay. If offered at reasonable prices not one pound of the immense crop of this season need remain unsold. But at five cents per pound for apples few people with large families can afford to give their children all they would eat; in fact many families cannot afford to buy any fruit while in orchards it is rotting on the ground. The flush times have passed away forever. We must realize that fact and adjust our business to the new conditions.

BORN.

ROSS—At Independence, July 28, 1884 to William and Mary Ross, of Darwin, a daughter.

At Bishop Creek, July 9th, 1884, to the wife of Dr. S. A. Middleton, a 14-pound son.

It was a boy! and the doctor pranced with joy! Yes, a representative of the INDEPENDENT met the proud father a few days later walking up and down the streets of Bishop Creek looking into the second story windows and down upon those who had ventured a guess that the name of Middleton would die with the "happy daddy."

Professor—Correct. Give an example.

Student—During the summer the affections of city people for their country relatives expand and in winter they contract.

A versatile genius in Atkinson, Me., is a blacksmith by trade and is also a lawyer, and the spare room of his house is his office. Furthermore, he has a dentist's chair in one corner of his shop, and when business is otherwise light he practices at the trade of cabinet making.

"Why don't you celebrate today?" said a man to a secondhand clothing dealer on the Fourth of July.

"Sell a brate? Vot ish dot?" was the answer.

"Why, celebrate, celebrate, celebrate. Don't you know what that means?"

"No, I doesh not. I nefer sell a brate, but I sell a suit of cloding for four tollar und twenty-five cent vot cosh twenty-five dollar, und dot ish de pest sellin' vot I can do in dese hart times."

The matrons of this city are considering the advisibility of organizing a society for the prevention of young couples staying out after 2 o'clock A. M. This is good, and we promise to print the by-laws, rules and regulations gratis.—Oroville Mercury.

"Johnny," cried a mother to her boy who was yelling with that peculiar intensity of a small boy with the throttle wide open, "Oh, Johnny."

"Yes, ma'am."

"For heaven's sake, what are you yelling at that way?"

"Ma'am?"

"I said what are you yelling at?"

"I'm yelling at the top of my voice. I thought you knowed."

She had just returned from Vassar, and papa was stroking her hair fondly.

"I hope, my dear," said the old man, "that you haven't acquired any of the vulgar slang phrases which so many of the Vassar young ladies are said to use."

"You bet I haven't, papa," she replied brightly, "when anybody catches me talking slang, he is especially invited to slug me under the seventh rib."

"That is right, my daughter, you must never indulge in slang. It will give a young lady dead away."

"The development at the back of the head, my friends, indicates parental affection," exclaimed the phrenologist. "Now you will observe," he went on, feeling the boy's head, "that this bump is of abnormal size, thus indicating that he loves and reveres his parents to an unusual degree. Is this not so, my lad?"

"Naw."

"What's that? You do not love your parents?"

"I think well enough of ma," the boy replied, "but I ain't werry fond of the old man. That bump you're feelin' of he giv' me last night wid a baseball club."

The feeling in Washington seems to be regret that every man named for the first place on the Democratic ticked could not have it, as all were alike worthy. There was sympathy for Thurman. The others can wait; the old Roman can't. Not long ago, it is related there, a newspaper man met Judge Thurman in Columbus, and asked him who he thought would be the Democratic nominee.

"Some of these fellows who go looking around for the nomination," replied the old Bandanna chief.

"Do you not go round looking for the nomination, Judge?"

"Not by a darned sight. But I guess everybody knows where I live."

An Austin school teacher, who is simultaneously an Irishman, has been very much annoyed by absentees. He created a slight flutter of excitement among the elder pupils by saying, in a very impressive manner:

"Children, I want yez to understhand that from now on the absentays must sit on the front binch, so I can know right off who they are and apply the corrective."

"Say, old man," said the thirsty man to the boss, "that barkeeper of yours gave me nothing but foam for a glass of beer. He'll hurt your business."

"Hurt my business," echoed the proprietor; "why, he's my foam man."

BEN BUTLER AS MAUD MULLER.

Ben Butler, on a summer's day,
Stood in a convention making hay;
The hay was sweet and the hay was dry,
But it wasn't as cocked as old Ben's eye,
For old Ben saw, on a gelding gray,
Judge Nomination ride that way.

When the Judge saw Ben in the hay at work
He stopped his horse with a sudden jerk,
And he rolled his eyes on the winsome face,
And the buxom form and the airy grace,
And the wealth of cheek and the mesh of hair,
Of sweet Ben Butler a-working there.

"Oh," sighed the Judge, "that the fate were mine
To wed with a creature so divine!
With Ben for a mate my life would seem
Like a poet's song, or an artist's dream;
But whe they heard of my marital pick
How like a steer my folks would kick!"

So, fearful of what his folks might say,
Judge Nomination rode away,
And left Ben Butler standing there
With her wealth of cheek and her mesh of hair.

And of all sad words of tongue and pen,
The saddest are these—"He wouldn't have Ben" —[Chicago News.

TOM BLINKER'S SECRET.

Tom Blinker was a jovial, light-hearted commercial "gent," who, after traveling some years for a London firm, had started in business as a commission agent in Bilchester. Unfortunately he failed—or at least he did not not succeed which is nearly as bad—and at the date of his story he was pretty heavily in debt. But his creditors were disposed to deal leniently with him, partly because he was known to be in the main honest, and partly because he had intimated that when Lord Montarlington returned he would soon be in a condition to discharge his liabilities. Lord Montarlington had a large estate in the neighborhood, and was naturally very much respected and looked up to in the town. He had been absent from England three years on a foreign tour, and Tom Blinker had not come to Bilchester till shortly after his lordship had started on his travels. Tom's announcement, therefore, caused a great deal of surprise and speculation, and more especially as he always referred to Lord Montarlington in very guarded terms, and never dropped the slightest hint as to the nature of his acquaintance. This mysterious reticence had much more effect upon the public mind than if Tom had entered into details, and if some persons were skeptical enough to doubt whether Tom had ever set his eyes upon his Lordship in his life, it was generally believed that for some reason or other Lord Montarlington would relieve him from his difficulties.

But his lordship's return was so long delayed that Tom's creditors began to grow impatient, and Tom himself seemed to lose heart. There was no disguising the fact that he had reached the end of his tether and nothing short of a miracle could avert bankruptcy and ruin. Duly impressed with this unpleasant fact and also bearing in mind that two or three of his largest creditors had threatened to take proceedings against him immediately, Tom wended his way to the Blue Boar one evening in a very depressed condition. On reaching the parlor of that ancient hostelry, where a convivial club, of which he was a prominent member was wont to hold its weekly meetings, he was surprised at being greeted with a chorus of congratulations and good wishes.

"It's all right, Tom!" "Cheer up, old boy!" "Keep your courage up, Tom!" were some of the reassuring exclamations which greeted him in certain tones, for Tom was a pleasant, good-natured fellow, and most people wished him well, though few would lend him money.

"Why, what's up?" he naturally demanded.

"What's up! Haven't you heard Lord Montarlington has come back?" said Mr. Beans, the grocer.

"You don't say so!" ejaculated Tom. with a start.

"Yes, sure enough. He passed through the town this afternoon. Wonder he didn't give you a call, Mr. Blinker, as you're such a particular friend of his," added Mr. Beans, who was one of the unbelievers.

"Tom seems quite taken aback. One would'nt think he had heard good news," remarked Mr. Pestle, the chemist, rather slyly.

"His Lordship is agoin' to set you to rights, ain't he, Tom? Make your fortune, I've heard," chimed in another.

It must be owned that Tom did not appear elated at the news. He seemed disconcerted, and for a moment looked decidedly embarrassed. His confusion did not escape the notice of the assembled convives, who exchanged significant glances. It was quite evident, from their nods and winks, Tom had been voted a humbug on the spot, and that his story of his influence with Lord Montarlington was believed to be all gammon.

"His Lordship's solicitor has just arrived here from London," remarked one of the company. "I heard him order dinner and a bedroom, and say he would drive over to the castle in the morning."

"There's a companion for you, Tom," said Mr. Beans, jocosely. "You'll go over to the castle first thing to-morrow, of course? His lordship must be dying to see you."

"A very good suggestion," returned Tom, rising from his seat with rather a desperate air. "It's a plaguey long drive alone. Did you hear the name of the lawyer, Jakes?"

"Pennington, I believe," was the answer, "and he is in the blue parlor."

"I'll go and introduce myself, pals if you'll excuse me a minute," said Tom, who had completely recovered his equanamity and easy affability of manners; "meanwhile, Mr. Chairman, if you will order the glasses round at my expense you will do me proud."

After this Tom Blinker made a very effective exit, having succeeded in turning the tide of public sympathy in his favor. Mr. Beans and others, who had somewhat openly intimated their disbelief in his bona fides a moment before, now looked foolish in their turn, while those who had remained neutral began to sing his praises. When Tom returned after a short absence he was regarded by every one with increased respect.

"It is all right," he remarked, confidentially, as he resumed his place. "I introduced myself to the lawyer, and we arranged to drive over to-morrow together. He is a most pleasant gentleman. I never met him before."

The last observation, uttered in a careless tone, made a distinct impression upon the audience, for it seemed to imply mild astonishment that a person so intimately associated with his Lordship as the family lawyer should up to that time have been unknown to him. He did not apparently seek to convey any impression whatever, for he at once changed the subject by volunteering a song, and never referred to Lord Montarlington again throughout the evening. He appeared suddenly to have recovered his spirits and abandoned himself to social enjoyment. Whether he really surpassed himself, or whether his mysterious acquaintance with Lord Montarlington made every one more inclined to appreciate him, it is certain the company laughed at his jokes and applauded his songs with more vigor than usual, and when the meeting broke up his health was proposed and drank with great enthusiasm.

Early next morning the neighbors, with mingled admiration and envy, witnessed the departure of Tom and the lawyer from the inn Tom handled the ribbons, having borrowed Mr. Beans' little mare and trap the preceding evening, in order, he said, to do the thing of style. The grocer was proud in his turn-out, and was only too glad to oblige Tom, now that his prospects had materially improved. Tom Blinker looked very spruce indeed, when he drove to the inn to pick up the lawyer. He was a good-looking man, with white teeth, a florid complexion, and a genial impression. Dressed in his best, with a flower in his button hole, he presented quite an imposing appearance, and it was observed that Mr. Pennington, the lawyer, treated him with marked courtesy.

"This is really a very civil attention, sir," remarked Mr. Pennington, who was an old-fashioned elderly gentleman of a nervous disposition, and they bowled along the hard counrty road toward their destination.

"Don't mention it, sir; you're welcome, I'm sure," said Tom Blinker, affably.

"I wouldn't abuse your good nature for the world. You are sure I am not taking you out of your way?" persisted the lawyer, glancing at his companion with mild curiosity.

"Certainly not, sir. As I told you yesterday I had arranged to drive over," replied Tom.

"They told me at the hotel when I happened to mention your name that you were well acquainted with his Lordship," said Mr. Pennington, who evidently did not know what to make of his obliging companion.

As the lawyer spoke Tom gave the mare rather an awkward flick with the whip, which caused her to bound forward with unpleasant velocity. Mr. Pennington then awoke to the fact that Tom Blinker's skill at driving was hardly equal to his politeness; indeed, it soon became evident that the mare had the trap pretty well at her mercy. Tom appeared cheerfully indifferent to the circumstance, and took ditches, sign-posts and milestones flying. The lawyer, however, was far from comfortable, and soon forgot his curiosity in his personal fears. He ceased to ask questions, and devoted himself to holding on to the hand rail, regardless of Tom's conversation, which continued in a lively vein, in spite of the most startling episodes. Great and unspeakable, indeed, was the old gentleman's relief when the castle at length came in sight, the little mare having done the distance in probably the shortest time on record.

"Here we are," said Tom, pointing with his whip. "The entrance lodge is down the road to the right."

"Pray don't let me take you a yard out of your way, sir," said the lawyer, preparing to alight; "I can easily walk the rest of the distance."

"Don't mention it. As I am so near I may as well look in and pay my respects to his Lordship," said Tom, in an off-hand manner. "The mare will be glad of a rest; she has brought us along in grand style."

A remark of a mildly sarcastic nature came to the lawyer's lips, but he did not utter it, for fear of giving offense to a friend of so good a client as his Lordship. A few minutes later Tom drove up to the entrance of the castle with an imposing clatter.

The lawyer was evidently expected, for they were immediately ushered along a corridor to his Lordship's study. On the threshold Tom's modesty seemed suddenly to assert itself, for he hung back a little, so that his companion led the way into the room.

Lord Montarlington advanced to receive his visitors with outstretched hand. He was a handsome, gray-haired, elderly man, with frank, genial manners. In appearance he looked like a sailor, and in fact, yachting was his favorite occupation. He was a widower and childless, and since the death of his wife he had resided very little on his estates. He greeted the lawyer with a friendly grasp, and also shook hands with Tom.

"Now I'm safe on terra firma, my Lord, I do not mind confessing that Mr. Blinker has made me pass a 'mauvais quart d'heure,'" said Mr. Pennington, with a humorous smile.

"Pooh! There was no danger, my Lord. The little mare is as safe as nine-pence, only, like the rest of her sex, she likes to take the bit in her teeth," interrupted Tom, with his jovial laugh.

"Ha! ha! Pray be seated, gentlemen," laughed his Lordship, as he glanced with good-humored surprise at Tom. "So long as no bones are broken there's no harm done. Mr. Pennington, it was very good of you to come down from town. I ought to have called on you, but to-morrow I'm going North—"

"And goodness knows where besides," interposed Mr. Pennington, producing a bundle of papers from his side pocket like a conjurer. "I have someshing important to say, so I thought I would take this opportunity, my Lord."

"I don't wish to intrude," said Tom, rising discreetly.

"My dear sir, pray don't move," said his Lordship Mr. Pennington and I are not going to talk secrets. Besides, I hope you will both stay to lunch."

"Delighted, I assure you," said Tom, readily. "That is, if your Lordship will allow me to send a messenger with a note or two to Bilchester. I had some appointments I can easily put off."

"By all means. There are writing materials by your side," said his Lordship.

"Lord Montarlington and his lawyer soon besame immersed in business, while Tom wrote half a dozen short notes on paper bearing the Earl's coronet and crest, with the address of the castle. The tenor of each of these epistles was decidedly the same, a single specimen will suffice to satisfy the reader's curiosity:

Dear Mr. McVittier: I quite intended to call and see you about those two ponies I owe you, but his Lordship will not hear of my leaving. Please let the matter stand over a bit and spare yourself the trouble of issuing a writ.

Yours ever, T. BLINKER.

while engaged on these important compositions Tom could not resist giving an ear to the conversation which was going on on the other side of the fire-place. He gathered that the principal object of the lawyer's visit was to consult his Lordship about appointing a new steward. The post was at present vacant, the late occupant having resigned in a huff, and Mr. Pennington was in favor of giving it to a practical, business like man, who would not be above his work. His Lordship cordially acquiesced in this view, and left the matter in the lawyer's hands, and having affixed his signature to a few documents, the conference ended.

"Now, gentlemen, let us look around," said his lordship with an air of relief. "Mr. Blinker, the butler will hand your letters to a groom, who is now going into Bilchester and will deliver them immediately."

Tom Blinker was trembling with suppressed excitement, for it suddenly occurred to him to apply to his Lordship for the vacant stewardship. He was almost startled by his own boldness, and although not wanting in cool assurance, he could not at that moment summon up courage to apply for the post. He resolved to wait until after luncheon, by which time he hoped to have created a favorable impression.

Mesnwhile he pulled himself together and assumed a more sedate and business-like air. Tom was a shrewd fellow and very well posted up to agricultural topics generally. He had a knack of repeating information gained at second-hand as though it were entirely original, and he never confessed ignorance on any subject whatever. Fortunately for him neither Lord Montarlington nor Mr. Pennington knew anything of country life except in its frivolous aspects, so that during their rambles through the stables and over the grounds Tom contrived to impress them both considerably without committing himself. At luncheon he was still more successful, for there was no denying that he was capital company on festive occasions. He made his Lordship roar with laughter at his jokes and witticisms, and even the lawyer became quite hilarious. The result was that when Mr. Pennington rose to depart—for his Lordship's carriage was to take him to the neighboring station to catch the London train—Tom no longer felt any hesitation about preferring his request.

"My Lord, there is a little matter I should like to mention before Mr. Penning goes," he said airily. "I wish to offer myself as candidate for the post of steward to your Lordship. As I'm on the spot I can get into the harness at once, which will be an advantage. I'm willing to come on sale or return—I mean on approval for a month. That is an advantage, also. And I flatter myself you wou't find a better business man, or one that would serve you straighter if you would fill the TIMES for six months with advertisements."

Tom's tone and manner were hardly those of a person asking a favor. He seemed honestly conscious of his own worfh, and Lord Montarlington, though somewhat taken aback, was evidently struck by the suggestion. He looked at the lawyer and said:

"Eh, Mr. Pennington? What do you say to that?

"Well, really, my Lord, such a thing never occurred to me," said the lawyer, looking undecided. "If your Lordship thinks Mr. Blinker will be likely to suit—"

"A month's trial, eh?" interposed Tom with alacrity. "Very well. Then thai's settled."

And so it was. His Lordship glanced at the lawyer and the lawyer at him, but neither raised any objection and the result was that Tom received permission to begin his duties on the morrow. He was a proud man when he drove into Bilchester that evening and announced his good fortune. He found, however, that the neighbors were less surprised at the news than might have expected, for every one had heard of the letters which he had written from the Castle on paper bearing his Lordship's crest. If he had come back and said that Lord Montarlington was his long lost brother, the credulity of his friends would have borne the shock.

Tom proved himself quite competent to discharge the duties he had so rashly undertaken. When a man has plenty of assurance, backed by natural abily, shrewdness, and determinatian to succeed, he can not well turn out a failure. Those who uttered ominous predictions based upon his unsuccessful career in Bilchester, overlooked the fact that want of capital was alone the cause of Tom's misfortune, and it turned out that he had a powerful incentive to do his best in his new position, for shortly after he became engaged to be married to the pretty daughter of mine host of the Blue Boar.

Lord Montarlington left for the North on the day Tom entered on his new duties, and three months afterward on passing through London, he had an interview with Mr. Pennington.

"By the way," he said, at the close of their conversation, I suppose the new steward is a success as I haven't heard to the contrary?"

"He is the best agent your Lordship has ever had; a prompt, business-like, energetic and trustworthy man," said Mr. Pennington, warmly. "May I ask how you came to know him?"

"Why, you introduced him of course," returned his Lordship, staring. "I never saw him before that day."

"Nor did I," returned the lawyer opening his eyes; he offered to drive me over, and I was certainly under the impression your Lordship was acquainted with him."

Lord Montarlington and the lawyer stared at one another for a moment in open-mouthed astonishment and during that brief period Tom's prospects were in imminent peril. Then his Lordship suddenly burst out laughing, and Mr. Pennington followed his example.

"I never heard of such bare faced impudence in my life," exclaimed Monarlington, as soon as he could speak. "'Pon my honor he deserves his good luck. As he appears to suit we had better say nothinr about the matter; only keep your eyes on him and don't let his impudence carry him too far."

"I will pull him up sharply on the smallest provocation," returned Mr. Pennington, gravely.

But the provocation never arose, for Tom continued to be an exemplary agent. His substantial salary soon enabled him to pay off his Bilchester bebts, for which we may be sure he was not pressed, and within a year he married. He is now a much respected and very influential personage in the neighborhood, and to this day people in Bilchester continue to speculate on the nature of his mysterious influence with Lord Monarlington.

New Orleans Exposition.

The World's Exposition which opens at New Orleans next December and closes next May has an occasion for being which is of the greatest industriat interest. This year is the centennial of the shipment of the first bale of cotton exported from this country.

In 1784 a single bale of this fiber was sent from Charleston, S. C., to England. This export has now increased to seven millions of bales and great industries; mighty mills and hundreds of thousands of operatives in Europe depend on the American cotton crop. If this crop should fail in our Southern cotton growing region, England would lose the source of most of her supply, and she takes a billion and a half of pounds every year. Russia, with her consumption of raw cotton reaching 270,000,000 pounds, would suffer. Germany would be at a loss to substitute our contribution to her 284,000,000 pounds. The other countries of Europe consume of this plant, respectively: Norway, 5,400,000; Sweden, 25,000,000; Holland, 24,000,000; Belgium; 58,000,000; France, 246,268,000; Switzerland, 27,000,000; Portugal, 7,250,000; Spain, 105,000,000; Italy, 100,000,000; Austro-Hungary, 175,000,000 and China, 24,000,000; the Dominion of Canada, 18,000,000; and Mexico, 21,000, of pounds. These amounts cover the cotton imports into those countries exclusive of any they may produce. We believe the plant is grown in commercial quantities in China, but that country imports most of its cotton fabrics from England. Allowing twenty millions of pounds for the countries not enumerated, an idea may be gathered of the vast and increasing demand for this great American staple, and its relation to all the other gaent industries of the world. The capital invested in its production, transportation, manufacture and distribution to the points of consumption is almost incalculable. With the single exception of the food products, it enlists more men and money every year than any other industry in the world.

The best attainable figures, from The Cotton Goods Trade, put the production of raw cotton at these amounts:

United States	2,770,000,000 lbs.
East Indies	407,000,000 lbs.
Egypt, Smyrna, etc	269,000,000 lbs.
Brazil	44,000,000 lbs.
West Indies	16,000,000 lbs.
Total	3,506,000,000

It will be seen that of this gross output the United States produces all but 736,000,000 pounds, so that we have the world at our feet as a producer of this crop. Its total failure or abandonment in this country would breed a famine in half of the manufacturing centers of Europe and cause two-thirds of the civilized world to go naked.

The countries of consumption number twenty-one of the governments of the world. The countries of production number of five, and it is not probable that the producing area is capable of much enlargement, while the range of consumption extends with the increase of population in every cotton wearing country in the world. Surely this is a most august growth from the one American cotton bale so lonesomely sent to sea in 1784, and it is one of the world's great industrial facts and factors which deserves the emphatic attention proposed to be devoted to its centennial in the exposition at New Orleans.

It is intended there to not only exhaustively illustrate the cotton trade, in its historical, mechanical, agricultural and financial features, but incident thereto to set forth the sister industries of the United States and friendly countries which choose to take part. Surely no more elevating scene is possible than this grand assemblage of the myriad results of Nature and the equally numerous products of manual skill and inventive genius.

The exhibition will be one of the most complete ever seen on the planet. Congress has given a subvention of money, and each exhibiting State will doubtless supplement by an appropriation sufficient to secure for its resources a worthy representation. The motif being the cotton centennial the location at New Orleans is a historic propriety, for there the cotton bales served as a breastwork behind which that part of our common Republic was defended from invasion and delivered from reconquest.

California has a rich stake in this Exposition. Being herself a candidate for the next great exposition on American soil, the favor which her invitation will meet from the sister States must greatly depend upon the completeness and arrangement of her exhibit at New Orleans. Our Commissioner, Col. Andrews, is the properest of all our citizens for the duty assigned to him and all the representatives of our industries should combine to see that everything produced in this State, by our aggregated capital, by our mines, soil and waters should be on parade inspection at New Orleans. This is the center of the seal trade, and San Francisco outranks New Bedford as a whaling port. Our fleets are familiar with the Arctic circle, and our burly sailors almost domesticate with the walrus, the ptarmigan, the polar bear and the eider duck. There is hardly any luxury or necessity of life that we do not produce or center here the trade in by our enterprise. Let our State back her claim to the next world's fair by showing her capacity alone to equip an exhibition worth traveling from the ends of the earth to see.—Oakland Daily Times.

AT Narragansett Park, Providence, on August 1st, the famous trotter, Jay-Eye-See, driven by Ed Bithers, trotted a mile in 2:10, beating Maud S's. best record of 2:10¼, and winning the name of King of the Turf. Immediately afterward Jim Golden drove the horse Winship, with a running mate, a mile in 2:06, an unprecedented event. Phallas, the Kentucky horse, with Bithers driving, made an attempt to beat his own record of 2:13¾, but succeeded, only in equaling it. This is the best time on record for a stallion.

Special Rates to the State Fair.

CARSON & COLORADO R. R. Co.
CARSON, Nev., July 23d, 1884.

——————: Dear Sir:—Some days ago Mr. S. D. Woods advised me that quite a number of the residents of Independence and vicinity desired to attend the California State Fair, Sacramento, early in September, providing special rates of fare could be had.

I have taken up the matter with the Passenger Dept. of C. P. R. R. Co., and am now able to name the following:

The C. P. Co. will sell this year tickets good for the fair week, Reno to Sacramento and return, for two-thirds regular rates, namely, $12. In connection with this rate, our company are willing to sell tickets from Owens River points to Reno and return at half rates, providing not less than 25 persons purchase tickets. Please understand that such tickets will be good only during the fair week.

Providing 50 or more persons purchase tickets and travel to Sacramento together, there to break up and return at pleasure, I can offer a half-rate to San Francisco and return, from Independence, etc.

I should think that every one intending to attend the Sacramento Fair would want also to visit San Francisco, and therefore believe that they should buy tickets to San Francisco. This, of course, providing that a party of 50 or more go.

I submit the above to you that you may talk the subject up with your people, as Mr. Woods informed me that he would not be back home for some days.

After you have talked this subject over with your people, let me know please, what the prospects are for the excursion. Yours truly,

D. A. BENDER,

NOTICE.

All subscribers for THE INYO INDEPENDENT, and all advertising patrons, will please observe, that the paper has passed under another management, and that all subscriptions are by agreement between Mr. Glenn and the present proprietor of the paper, due to the latter. All regular advertising accounts accruing after June 15th, are also to be paid to the present publisher. Accounts due previous to the date named are due to Mr. Glenn.

C. MULHOLLAND.

TO BE INSTALLED.—Inyo Lodge, No. 546, I. O. G. T., will install its elected and appointed officers to-night. The list will be given in full next week.

Mr. W. A. Harris, who has been here reporting and transcribing the testimony in the Silva case, returned to Dayton, Nev., last Monday evening.

FIRST SHIPMENT.—Mr. A. Tanner received telegraphic orders for a ton of potatoes consigned to Messrs. Knapp & Laws, of Hawthorne. We believe this is the first shipment of the season.

PLEASANT PARTY.—A farewell party to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn was given at the Court House on Tuesday evening. The attendance was good, the music excellent, and the party was voted an entire success by all participants.

RAIN.—On Sunday evening the Valley was visited with a delightful shower. Previous to that day the weather had been very sultry but has been cooler since. The rainfall was not enough to create any damage to the crops now being harvested.

NATURALIZED.—On Saturday last the following men received their final papers: Michael J. Harrington, native of Ireland; Antonio Moreno, native of Mexico; William Pascoe, native of England and Antonio Barba, native of Mexico. William Bulpit, native of Prince Edward's Island, and Thomas Hughes, native of Wales, received theirs on Monday.

C. & C. BUSINESS.—The Chronicle of the 5th contains the following item: "There was received at Mound House by the Carson and Colorado railroad, July 31st, one car of silver bullion—20,100 pounds—from Modoc Mine, Keeler Station; received August 1st, one car silver bullion—21,000 pounds—from Defiance Mine, Keeler Station, both consigned to Selby Smelting Works, Oakland wharf. Also, on August 1st, 20,000 pounds of borax from Rhodes' marsh, for Nevada Salt and Borax Company, San Francisco, and 22,000 of borax from Candelaria for F. M. Smith, San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA'S BIRTHDAY.—An exchange says: California was admitted into the Union September 9, 1850; and the coming anniversary of her natal day is to be celebrated on an elaborate scale at Sacramento. One of the notable features of the occasion will be the presence of James W. Marshall, the venerable pioneer, whose discoveries led so largely to the settlement and development of the Pacific coast. The arrangements are making by the "Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West," of which there are over 30 flourishing organizations, and the membership of which is limited to the children of the Argonauts who arrived in the country prior to California's becoming a State.

BAND OF HOPE PICNIC.—Independence Band of Hope will give a picnic next Saturday, August 16th. It will be held at Mr. S. A. Densmore's place, near Camp Independence, and all are expected to bring well-filled lunch baskets. Swings and every thing necessary for amusement and enjoyment will be put up on the grounds. There will be an abundance of fruit provided for all, free of cost; ice-cream and lemonade will be free to the juvenile picnickers, while those elder will be charged a merely nominal sum for the same. Finally, the grounds selected for the occasion are probably the best for the purpose to be found in the State east of the Sierra. A most cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. No effort will be spared to make the affair as pleasant as possible.

Personal Mention.

School Superintendent Groves is in town to-day.

Mrs. J. D. Blair returned from a visit to San Francisco on Tuesday.

John B. White and My Harmon, of Darwin, were in town in the early part of the week.

Mr. Daniel Crough returned on Tuesday morning from a visit to relatives in Sonora, Tuolumne county.

Mr. Chas. McEvoy, who has been for the past few years closely connected with mining interests in this County, left here on Thursday last for Idaho, where he will take charge of the Boise Co's. mill.

Mr. I. Harris returned from below on Tuesday last, where has been for the past two months, having taken his family there to attend school. The young folks wish to be remembered to many Inyo friends.

Mr. James Cardwell, Deputy Sheriff of Esmeralda county was in town this week. Mr. Cardwell's butcher shop at Hawthorne is one of the best in the State of Nevada, and he is here buying cattle, hogs and sheep to supply it. He left for Bishop Creek Thursday evening.

Particulars of the Late Shooting scrape at Bodie.

The Carson Appeal has the following from Bodie, dated August 1. All the parties named are well known on the Comstock: "The killing of Deegan by Donnelly still causes great excitement here, and there still danger of lynching. The shooting took place during the progress of a fire in Soderling's assay office, when Felix Donnelly approached William Deegan from behind and commenced shooting into his body. The shooting took place during the explosion of cartridges in Stewart's burning drugstore, and, except those who actually saw the shooting, the throng of men and women who occupied the sidewalk supposed it was another box of cartridges in the course of explosion, several of which had just been placed in the house of Neptune Hose Company, and so rapid was the firing that officer John Patty, who was standing a few feet in the street, hearing the first two quick shots, turned, and, seeing what was going on, made a rush for Donnelly, but before he could reach him the assassin had emptied the other four chambers of his revolver. Patty at once disarmed Donnelly and escorted him to the branch jail. This morning at one o'clock Under Sheriff Wilcox, fearing violence, removed his prisoner to Bridgeport and placed him in the County Jail there. Dr. Walker was called soon after and saw at once that his death was only a question of minutes. He could do nothing further than administer stimulants. Deegan was shot at five minutes past eleven o'clock and expired forty minutes after being shot, being insensible from the time of reaching his room until death relieved him.

The most important part of this whole affair is that Patrick Coyle, a miner employed on the Bodie Con., who was standing in range, received one of the balls which missed Deegan in the bowels a few inches below and to the left of the navel. Coyle was removed to the Occidental Hotel and Dr. Deal called in, who attended the wounded man assiduously, but he died at 5:30. Ned Shunk was also wounded in the leg. It is claimed that the bad blood between the men arose from the fact that the deceased had spirited a woman away from the town who was claimed by Donnelly.

Communicated.

After a three months' pleasant sojourn in our midst we are to lose, owing to her departure for home, the pleasant society of Miss Sarah Joseph, which to our many young folks is an irreparable loss. We hope that Miss Joseph will take with her as pleasant recollections of us all as we shall always entertain of her, and that, if the opportunity should present itself, we shall again see her in our midst a welcome visitor.

To show, at least in part, our regrets at her departure, and to afford her one more pleasant recollection of her many Inyo friends, we desire that Miss Joseph meet them one and all on next Tuesday, August 12th, 1884, at Mairs' Hall, Independence, the occasion to be celebrated by a dance. INKY FINGERS.

A HINT.—The following note from a merchant at Hawthorne may contain a useful hint:

HAWTHORNE, August 6, 1884.

EDITOR INYO INDEPENDENT:—Reading in your paper of apples rotting on the ground, will you please state to your farmers that they can sell all of their fruit, apples, and other fruits they may have, providing they will sell to compete with other districts. I assure you we will all, in this part of the country, buy our fruits from your district always providing we can do as well as elsewhere. I lately received a small consignment of fruit from your valley, but was overcharged about one hundred per cent. That's what's the matter. Inform them in the ways of the world and you will do them good service.

Yours, &c., A. S.

Setenta y Cuatio Aniversario de la Independencia Mexicana, en Lone Pine.

Los mexicanos promovidos por sus sentimentos patrioticos que abrigan y tienden a la madre Patria, principian a tener reuniones para nombrar el cuerpo directivo que deverá funcionar en la solemnizacion del 16 de Setiembre proximo. Los mexicanos de este lugar y puntos circumvecinos, siempre han sido unidos y fieles á sus principios para llevar á cabo tan sublime idea de celebrar y dar el esplendor que merece al dia de Su emancipacion politica; Esta vez haran cuanto sea posible por reunir los fondos necesarios para satisfacer el loable fin de la fiesta, no obstante por la crisis que atraviesa el condado no omitiran esfuerzo alguno, no pudien la solemnizar como en años pasados, cuando se celebraba con mayor pompa.

Por su entuciasmo se ve que el acendrado patriotismo de esos dignos hijos de Mexico esta eternamente gravado en sus corazones; Todas las Naciones tienen un dia de gloria, las que han luchado por su Independencia tienen su dia de Santa Libertad, tienen su cumple anos y cuando este llega se visten de gala para recivirle y dar una prueba mas de su gratitud nacional, recordar una vez mas los primitivos dias de redencion, hacer un recuerdo de las grandiosas obras de nuestros antecesores que superion realizar para sellar en su Patria la Libertad—y defar en caos de olvido y de horror la tirania vireynal. Los Estados Unidos Americanos celebran el 4 de Julio, por ser el dia de su Independencia Nacional, unanimemente victorean al gran Washington el redentor de una nacion prospera y feliz; Los vicinos de los Estados Unidos Mexicanos, procsimamente celebran su dia nacional y entre sus vicores se observará el nombre illustre de Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla, el candillo immortal que en la noche del 15 de Setiembre de 1810, levantó el grito de Libertad é Independence ó muerto.

EL MEXICANO.

MINING ITEMS.

THE BETTER PLAN.

When the advantage of one actively worked and good paying mine in any locality is fully comprehended, it is strange that, instead of making a careful selection of the most promising prospect, and concentrating every energy to place it in the line of production, men should locate a large number of claims, and spend sufficient money on the score or more to bring one to a paying stage, and thus achieve practically no valuable results for themselves, their locality, or the interest upon which they depend. In many localities one mine, which by able management has been driven to the point of production, and proves by its steady and satisfactory output something of the real value and character of a mine, does more for the industry of mining and more to induce capital to seek investment in such enterprises, than a thousand prospect holes, upon which the assessment work has been barely completed. In many instances, this one mine which makes satisfactory returns for every investment of capital and labor, stands as a convincing proof of what a score of neighboring claims might become, if subjected to the same method of development and the same well-directed plans and management. That one mine is thus developed to a position of power and prominence, and established upon a basis which makes most creditable returns to owners, and scores of others on the same vein, with equal promise, and every assurance of as great success, stand as monuments of folly and disaster, strongly confirms the presumption that there must be some mistake in the measures adopted, and proves that the managers are proceeding on a wrong line, when, with the same material such diverse results are secured. It is evident clearly that the one which returns the most stisfactory evidences of value, has better claims, and gives better proof of being correctly managed, and the same plan should be adopted by those who desire to avail themselves of the advantages which it insures. When we take into consideration the capital which has been absorbed in experiments in the mining field, it is clearly evident that it is time that the light of experience should be, so far as possible, shed upon every operation where the object is the extraction of ore and its reduction for practical purposes. Sufficient knowledge has been gained from the years of experience, so that by this time uncertainty can be largely eliminated from the business of legitimate mining.—Mining Review.

POLITA MINE.

Tom Luther was in town on Tuesday last and reported everything working smoothly at the Hawley mill, which is being put in good shape. By next Monday the side track will be finished to the mill, which will start up at once. Messrs. Irwin & Co. intend to make the Polita mine a success, and are the right men in the right place. We hear that George Storey has arrived at Bishop Creek to take charge of the mill.

FREEBORN CANYON MILL.

Some twelve or fourteen men arrived in town during the week enroute for Freeborn Canyon to work for M. G. Nixon on the mines just purchased by the latter. The number of teams and pack mules that were employed to take the supplies over lead us to think Mr. Nixon means business, and we have no doubt that in he will soon be repaid for his immense outlay, as there is considerable ore now ready to be packed and milled.

Here and There.

Don't forget the Band of Hope picnic next Saturday.

The C. & C. pay car will make its usual visit to this section about next Friday.

Parties for the Kern and King's river fishing grounds and the Summit lakes are now in order.

The hour of meeting of the Sunday School has been changed from 2 o'clock to 3, P. M.

There are vague rumors of a change of running time on the C. & C.

Active preparations are being made by the Mexican population of the valley for a grand time at Lone Pine on the 16th of next month. In this connection, the letter of "El Mexicano," given elsewhere, will be found interesting.

DISINFECTING THE SICK CHAMBER.—Dr. Vilandt recommends that the atmosphere of a sick chamber where the patient is ill of diphtheria, measles, scarlet fever, or any allied disease, should be impregnated with the odor of a mixture of equal parts of turpentine and carbolic acid. Half a teaspoonful of the mixture will be enough at a time if it is put into a kettle of water kept near the boiling point. The odor generally gives some relief to the sufferer, and tends to prevent the spread of the malady. A disinfecting lamp can also be advantageously used and may be easily prepared for purifying any place where a disagreeable odor is perceived, being especially useful in sick rooms and in damp cellars where vegetables have decayed. Take any glass lamp for burning kerosene or oil, fill it with chloric ether and light. The old fashioned camphene or burning fluid lamps, with a small round wick, will burn longer and be of more service than the flat wicked lamps. While the ether burns a disinfectant escapes that will soon purify the most offensive atmosphere, even that of a sewer.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Farms versus Deserts—What Has Been Done, and What Might Be Done in Owens River Valley.

The more one sees of Owens River Valley, its capacity for future development becomes more apparent. Traveling by the wagon road from Independence to Bishop Creek, a distance of forty-five miles, most of the way is over land as rich as the soil of Illinois. For miles together, the native grasses stand as high as the sides of the horses; at times not a house is in sight, not a head of cattle can be seen, and, saving the track marked by travel, there is no evidence that civilized men had ever visited the country.

A GRAND SPRING.

About ten miles above Independence the road passes close to a spring. A flow of lava came down from the mountains about three miles distant, and overlaid one of the many streams that are fed by the eternal snows. This stream again sees the light at the spot indicated. About ten years ago the officers and soldiers then stationed at Independence made a ditch several miles long, and then threw up an embankment below the spring, with the expectation of raising the water in the enclosed space about ten feet. The attempt failed; when the water had risen a few feet it found new exits under the lava, and the attempt was abandoned. Now the water escapes through a break in the embankment, and at the point of exit rushes out in a stream four and a half feet wide and over three feet deep. This quantity of water would irrigate thousands of acres of land; it now runs to waste. By going a little distance up on the lava flow the stream could easily be found, and by cutting into the lava the water could be got out and every drop of it turned to profitable account. Here is a project far more certain of success than any mining operation, and that would open a bonanza that would never "peter" out.

THE FARMS.

A few miles beyond the spring is the farm of Mr. Ezra Goodale. Here a valuable hint has been given by setting out some sugar maple trees. The plants were put in three years ago, and are now thrifty and handsome trees. A tract of land planted with maples would be the most profitable investment a farmer could make. A little farther on, Mr. Tibbetts and Mr. Curtis have nice farms, and neat, comfortable homes. Well kept fences, trim, neat yards, orchards, wheat and corn fields, and the deep, rich green of the alfalfa fields show what industry can do in such soil and climate. Just beyond the farm of Mr. Curtis, a ridge runs out at right angle from the mountains, and nearly cuts the valley in two; the river sweeps around the ridge, and beyond it the valley opens out again. Chalk has lately been found in the ridge, and men are now prospecting the ground and have found the deposit in several places. North of this ridge are

FISH SPRINGS,

And here a large volume of water flows down. Mr. T. J. Goodale has a fine farm and large orchards here producing many kinds of fine quality. Some Indians have located land, and raise wheat, hay and vegetables. They were seen gathering their crop; the women put the wheat in baskets with their hands, and then carried it and passed it up to a man on the wagon.

From this point on for about six miles, the road again runs through a wide plain covered with rich grasses, but without any sign of inhabitants or improvements.

BIG PINE

is a nice village built on the banks of a large stream of beautiful water. Orchards, corn and wheat fields, meadows and alfalfa fields make a very attractive scene. Big Pine is not a sinner above her sisters, but here a remark may be made that applies with equal freedom all over the valley. Farmers are trying to cultivate more land than they can take care of. Weeds prevail in an astonishing degree; in many fields the grain is cut only in the cleanest spots; on the rest weeds and grain are left to contend for the mastery. Better have less acres and better tillage. At one farm the farmer was seen sacking his grain. His method suggested that he was a student of the bible; he was working just as Abraham and Boaz did. The grain had been tramped out on the ground by horses, and squaws tossed it up in the wind to clean it, while he industriously leaned against a hay-stack and watched them. Beyond Big Pine the road again runs along for miles together through the same character of country as that ready mentioned.

MR. WATSON

has made good improvements and has a fine farm. The traveler will hold his name in grateful remembrance for having planted trees on both sides of the road that now make a complete and beautiful arbor about half a mile long. Entering this cool and shady bower from the scorching heat of the dusty road one feels a sense of relief that inspires gratitude to the planter of the trees. This arbor is now in course of extension.

MR. FURBEE

neighbor to Mr. Watson, was found by the roadside ploughing corn; "laying by" as it is called in Illinois. The rich black soil reminded one of the Prairie State, and the tall corn stood up, covering the mules that were hitched to the plow. Near the corn was a piece of ground containing twelve acres from which Mr. Furbee had cut forty tons of alfalfa. The second crop was well advanced and was expected to yield quite as much as the first. Again the road runs through several miles of unsettled country to within a short distance of

BISHOP CREEK.

This is the principal farming section of the county. Within the past five years much land has been enclosed and all of it produces good crops of all kinds.

FRUIT.

In a garden on the farm of Mr. A. K. Briggs are peach trees laden with as fine fruit as is produced in Delaware or New Jersey. In the garden at Munzinger's brewery are apple trees that were set out in the spring of this present year and are now bearing fruit. Instances might be multiplied but these are enough to indicate the character of the soil and climate. Between Bishop Creek and Owen's River are thousands of acres of land yet open for settlement, and as good in quality, indeed much of it better, than that now under cultivation. Beyond the river almost nothing at all has been done. Just above the railroad station a small tract was planted in alfalfa two years ago. Mr. Stoutenborough located a square mile of land including by purchase this tract. The first crop of hay has been cut and averages two tons per acre. Fifty thousand acres of such land might be brought under cultivation on the same side of the river, and there is water enough for twice as much. Near the station are traces of the old station of Owensville, a town brought into existence by the discovery of rich silver mines in the mountains close by.

The owners of the mines quarreled, the mines were abandoned, the people went away, and now scarce a trace of the place remains. The mountains are known to contain rich ore, and now that the railroad affords so much better facilities, in all probability work will be resumed and pushed successfully.

Wheat harvest is now in full vigor around Bishop Creek; the grain is first class in quality, and there is a good deal of it. From Bishop Creek, sixteen miles southwest is

ROUND VALLEY.

At some remote period of time, a section of the first ridge of the Sierra Nevada has been crumbled down and carried out into the plain by volcanic action. This enormous mass of matter now forms a low ridge, beyond and between which and the mountains lies Round Valley. This lovely spot contains about seven thousand acres, and is owned by about thirty families. Streams of purest water flow down from the mountains, and can easily be conducted over every foot of the land. Corn, wheat, oats, barley; apples, pears, peaches, apricots, plums, and all kinds of small fruits and vegetables are produced. Alfalfa and timothy grow in rank luxuriance. The native grasses make hay of fine quality. The higher mountains around afford the best of summer range for stock cattle, and without going far away, fifteen thousand head of stock could find abundant feed.

The nicest looking honey in the world can be had in quantity limited only by the will of bee keepers.

Several of the farmers are men who made their first experiments in farming on the land they now own. Prospectors, who wandered into this then remote region in search of mines, and, allured by the beauty of the place, determined to give up their nomad lives and make themselves homes. Energy and perseverance have produced the usual results—these are among the most successful farmers in the county. One farmer who now owns 320 acres of land, bought the place six years ago for $4,000. The first two seasons' crops paid for the land.

WHAT IS THE USE?

It cannot be denied that the natural advantages of Inyo county have not been improved as much as they might have been. Speaking of the work of the Mormons in Utah, Justin McCarthy said: "Perhaps no people could have done any better, but I am certain none could have done any worse." This would be altogether too severe to say of the people of Inyo, still, without better information, the impression remains in the mind of a stranger that more might have been done than has yet been accomplished.

Riding over land where the wild clover grows so rank that it lodges, the owner was asked when he would begin to mow it. He replied, "I won't mow it at all; what's the use?" The parties then stood in the midst of a tract from which at least one hundred tons of the best of beef producing hay could be cut; at that moment three separate parties from different parts of the State were in the neighborhood, trying to buy beef cattle, and could not find half what they wanted. "What's the use" of cutting the hay? When suggestions are made or questions asked why this or that is not done, one is constantly answered by "What's the use?"

NO MARKET.

The assertion is constantly made that there is no market for anything, but when inquiry is made, it is found that they who make it have nothing to sell. One mercantile firm in the valley have already shipped from Stockton during the present season one hundred tons of flour. Another leading firm at this moment refuse to sell more than one sack of flour to a single customer. With all kinds of farm produce it is the same, and yet "there is no market."

TOO FAR FROM MARKET.

It is urged that we are too far from market to permit of farming being profitable. Owens River Valley is five hundred miles from San Francisco; Illinois is twice as far from its market in New York; Wisconsin and Kansas are three times as far; Minnesota and Nebraska four times, and Colorado and Dakota five times as far, yet all of these find their market in New York.

Freights are cheaper east of the Rocky Mountains than with us, but prices are better here than there, and with the increase of population and business freights will be cheaper here.

PROBATE NOTICE.

In the Superior Court for the State of California, in and For the County of Inyo.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ESTATE OF JAMES SHEPHERD, DECEASED.

On reading and filing the petition of JOHN RECHERD Executor of the last will and testament of James Shepherd, deceased, praying for an order of distribution of the residue of said Estate among the persons entitled.

It is ordered, that all persons interested in said Estate of said James Shepherd, deceased, be and appear before the Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, State of California, at the Court room of said Court, at the Court-house in the Town of Independence, in said County, on Monday, the first day of September 1884, at ten o'clock a. m., then and there to show cause why an order of distribution should not be made of the residue of said estate among the persons entitled thereto according to law.

And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published once a week for three successive weeks before the said first day of September, 1884, in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, a weekly newspaper printed and published in said county.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
Judge of the Superior Court.

Dated August 7, 1884.

INSOLVENT NOTICE

In the Superior Court, County of Inyo, State of California.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN M. HORTON, AN INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

JOHN M. HORTON HAVING FILED IN THIS Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which it appears that he is an insolvent debtor, the said John M. Horton is hereby declared to be insolvent. The sheriff of the county of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said John M. Horton, debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep the same safe until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said debtor, or to deliver any property belonging to him, or to any person, firm or corporation or association for his use. The debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or dispose of any property, until the further order of this Court except as herein ordered. It is further ordered that all creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge of the Superior Court of the County of Inyo, in open Court at the Court-room thereof, in the County of Inyo, on the eleventh day of September 1884 at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that, in the mean time, all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
(SEAL.) Superior Judge
Attest, THOMAS CROUGH, Clerk.

IDLE WORDS.

Oh idle words!
Will ye never die,
Bat float forever in the sky,
Dimming the stars that shine in memory,
Destroying hope and causing hope from earth to flee,
Ill omened birds!

Oh idle words!
Preying upon the heart,
Leaving with wounds a deadly smart;
Expiring breath that taints the very air.
Will ye forever leave your victims to despair?
Ill omened birds!

Oh idle words!
How many are the tears
That ye have caused to flow: the tears
Ye have begot and made to mountains grow
Crushing the innocent beneath a weight of woe,
Ill omened birds.

Oh idle words!
Your flight is even on,
In heavy flocks darkening the sun
By weary journeyings without delay,
To wend your weary way unto the judgment day.
Ill omened words.

HIRAM LESTER'S DAUGHTER.

"No, girl, I have no money to throw away on frillals. I have not the purse of a Fortunatus, as you must believe by the way you constantly pester me for fixings. In your dead mother's days girls didn't rig themselves out for the purpose of attracting attention. A plain calico frock and a simple straw bonnet are all that a female requires for Sunday wear."

And the speaker, a small, stern-visaged man, closed his grim mouth, and relapsed into silence, watching his tall, handsome daughter narrowly out of his wide-awake, keen black eyes.

Huldah Lester did not break the oppressive stillness at once; she let it remain undisturbed till the tall eight-day clock in the corner had monotonously ticked away five minutes, then she gave a little gasp and said:

"Father, you are terrible unjust to me, your daughter. You are one of the richest men in Meadowland, and it is your duty to see that your child is respectably, if not handsomely dressed. My apparel is neither decent for church wear nor the street. Repeatedly you have turned a deaf ear to my entreaties to do something whereby I could purchase my own clothing, for I am ashamed of being pointed out and stigmatized as the 'Miser's Daughter,' and made the butt of ridicule on account of my scanty old-fashioned garments. If mother had lived it would have been otherwise!"

The tears gathered in her gray eyes as she thought of the gentle woman who lay at rest in the cemetery on the hill, and she began to pace the floor in a nervous way.

It irritated her father, this rapid walking to and fro, and he cried out sternly:

"Do sit down, Huldah! You act like a child instead of a young woman almost out of her teens. That outburst of yours was especially childish, and provocative of no good whatever. You dress well enough, and I will not have you aping those brainless, ultra-fashionable women who frequent the village during the summer season. A woman's place is at home, not gadding the street, as the majority of women in this place are wont to do. And as for seeking a situation"—he paused just long enough to let his fist come down with a thump upon the table and render his words effective—"don't ever let me hear you mention it again! Hiram Lester is too proud to have his daughter work for a livelihood."

"Then he ought to be too proud to see his daughter go dressed worse than any scullion," was the retort that rushed to Huldah's lips. But knowing how useless it was to multiply words with the uncompromising man opposite her, she wisely kept silent. As he left the room she gave vent to a shower of tears.

"It is too bad," she sobbed, "nay, it is shameful to treat me thus. If he were poor I should not mind it; but he is so rich that he counts his money by the thousands. He gave me a good education, because a Lester must not be allowed to grow up in ignorance, but he is not willing that I should apply it to any practical use. I could teach, if he would let me find a school; or I might give music lessons, providing I could get the scholars. But no. I must stay at home and keep his accounts and cook his victuals, and receive—what do I receive," with an abrupt pause, "for my labor? Ha! ha!" with a bitter laugh, "the food I eat and clothes that a gipsy would sneer at. I shall bear it no longer; a reformation must take take place, and at once. Father's pride shall be humbled, and I shall have a becoming costume without its costing him a cent."

A roguish smile played around the pink, dimpled mouth, the tears no longer fell from the luminous gray eyes. Tying on her old sunhat she went down the street in the direction of the only grand mansion in the village. It belonged to a bachelor, Robert Ranger, who had heir to it by the death of an uncle. As yet he had not seen the property, but was expected daily from California, where he had been sojourning for the past year.

With firm steps Huldah pressed onward till she reached the place, a stately pile of gray granite, over which the Virginia creeper clambered, the well-kept grounds dotted with shrubbery. She went directly to the housekeeper, with whom she was acquainted.

Mrs. Madison heard her proposition with surprise.

"It is astounding," she exclaimed, with uplifted hands. "The daughter of the second richest man in the place in quest of work."

"Yes, I'll admit that," smiled the applicant; "but, nevertheless, it is true. I want clothes to make myself presentable at church and on the street. Father, who has no intention of being miserly, but who has no knowledge of a woman's wants, will not get them for me; so, perforce, I must earn them myself. You want a girl to help clean house and get in readiness for Mr. Ranger's arrival. I solicit the situation."

And when Huldah bade the house-keeper good-by, it was with the understanding that she should begin her work in the morning.

"And very good it is for you, my dear," said the kind old lady, "that your father is to be absent on business fof ten or twelve days; he would raise such a fuss that you would be glad to relinquish all hopes of earning what you deem absolutely indispensible to your happiness. Good-by; and don't hurry to get here in the morning," she shouted, as the girl went down the walk with buoyant steps.

That night Mr. Lester went to New York on business of importance, and the next morning Huldah presented herself at the Ranger to make herself generally useful.

As the days went by Mrs. Madison found her a perfect treasure. She was never cross like some of the girls in her employ, and her duties were cheerfully performed.

It was a warm, radiant morning in spring. Flowers were blooming, birds were warbling, and all nature wore a jubilant look, and as Huldah, with scrubbing brush in one hand and a pail of water in the other, entered the broad, cool hall to give it a cleaning, she cast her eyes longingly on the belt of woods lying beyond, and wished she were free to wend her way thither. But, strangling all such desire, she set down the pail and energetically began her work.

With sleeves rolled up above her elbows, displaying to advantage her round white arms, singing a love ditty at the top of her voice, she scrubbed vigorously away; and there in the doorway, a gleam of mischief visible in his dreamy brown eyes, stood a well-made, muscular young man of eight-and-twenty, in Panama hat and linen duster, who had just come up the walk, and paused to drink in the music of the girl's voice.

Who was she? By all that was good and great, who was this girl with the lambent gray eyes, the glossy dark hair that strayed over her sun-bright face, and the dimpled arms, so white and shapely that wielded—good heavens, it could not be a scrubbing-brush!

He stepped forward to see if he were not mistaken, and at that instant Huldah became aware of his proximity. The blood rushed to her face, she dropped her brush, but was eminently self-possessed, as she raised herself from her knees, and said:

"This is Mr. Ranger, I believe? Walk into the sitting-room, here to your right and I will call the housekeeper. You were not expected today, and house-cleaning is going on."

He started to obey, but alas! the boards were wet and slippery, and he had just taken two steps, when to his mortification and Huldah's consternation, his heels went up and he went down, and there he lay, with his elegant figure stretched full length on the floor.

Huldah bent solicitously above him.

"I—I am afraid you are hurt, sir," she said.

"Nay, not hurt," with a strong inclination to laugh; "but," pleadingly lifting those dreamy brown eyes to the attractive face, "how am I to get up? Can't you—won't you just reach me your hand?"

And Huldah in good faith, believing it was necessary to render him assistance, held out her small wet hand, and clasping it more firmly than there was any need, the tall, handsome fellow was instantly on his feet.

"Many thanks," he said, warmly, watching the color come and go in her cheeks. "That was an awkward fall. Will you not tell me to whom I am indebted for once more standing on my feet?"

"To a girl your housekeeper hired to help clean the house," she replied demurely, as she ran away to inform Mrs. Madison of his presence, and beg that she would not reveal her name.

All of Robert Ranger's carefully arranged queries concerning "that handsome girl with the white arms and melodious voice" failed to elicit the required information.

As Huldah went to her home that night, a telegram having come announcing her father's return on the morrow, Robert Ranger could gain no trace of her whereabouts. But he did not intend that the only girl in whom he was ever interested should slip thus suddenly out of his life. Even though he had found her doing work of the most menial description, he had recognized in her a perfect lady.

But for a time all quest was unavailing, and he had given up all hope of ever seeing her again, when one morning, upon ringing the door bell at the residence of Mr. Lester, with whom he had business to transact, she answered the summons.

Very lady-like, and more than pretty she looked, attired in a dress of soft gray fabric, shot through with roseate tints, purchased with the very money she had earned of his housekeeper, her gray eyes shining, and her dark hair simply caught up in a knot at the back of her head.

He held out his hand. The dreamy look left his brown eyes.

"I have found you at last!" he cried out, joyfully. "What made you disappear so mysteriously?"

"I had finished my work at your place," she said, roguishly, letting the long lashes droop over her eyes to hide their mischievous glance; I am now in the employ of Mr. Lester. He was expecting you on business to-day. Walk in, sir;" and she ushered him into a small room, where Mr. Lester sat examining a yellowish document he held in his hand.

"Father, here is Mr. Ranger," she said; and then as the gentleman's eyes opened wide with surprise, she left the room.

Ere long Robert called again at the cottage. Indeed, as the days sped by, he seemed to have a great deal of business there, judging from the frequency and length of his calls. The old man, however, said that "his business did not amount to much; he only wanted Huldah for his wife, and as she was willing, and he was rich, he was welcome to her."

A petrified ham has been found at Richmond, Ky., and all the boardinghouse keepers are bidding for it.

POOR FELLOW.

'There!' exclaimed Mrs. Prittle, you left the inkstand on the table and have turned it over and ruined the carpet.'

'Well,' replied her husband, 'why did you not leave the inkstand on the table and not turn it over?'

'None of your foul puns, William. I'll crack your head with this duster. I'd just as leave do it as not. Here I have to scrub, scrub, scrub, all the time, and we never have anything fit to look at.'

'When you've finished your tirade I'd like to say—'

'Tirade!' she snapped. 'It's quite enough to make anybody swear. I do think that you are the most careless and good-for-nothing man I ever saw.'

'I'd like to say, in case a convenient season should roll around, that I have been unjustly assailed.'

'Unjustly assailed!' she howled. 'I ought to drive you off the place. Just look at that carpet. Ruined all on account of your foolishness.'

'If you are ready, Madam, I will make a casual observation. This morning you asked for my ink. I told you that it was on my desk. You put it on the table and wrote the note you have just sent down town. So you see I had nothing to do with the performance.'

'Well, I don't care,' exclaimed the poor woman, bursting into tears 'it was just like you to leave it there. You are always leaving things where they don't belong. I am a great mind to declare that I won't live with you another day.'

'What have I done?'

'What is it you haven't done?'

Unable longer to bear her burden of grief she went into the adjoining room and sobbed. An hour later, while her husband sat reading his paper, soft arms stole round his neck, tender lips pressed his forehead, and a sweet voice said:

'Am I so very bad?'

He Was Insane

'What occupation has the defendent followed?' asked the attorney for defense in a case of petition for the appointment of a conservator.

'He carried a hod for $1.50 a day,' replied the witness.

'Had he succeed in saving any money?'

'He had saved up $1,000.'

'Well,' said the lawyer, pointing his index finger at the nose of the witness, 'do you swear that you believe the defendent to be crazy?'

'I do,' said the witness, firmly.

'What did he do to make you think him insane?'

'He threw down his hod and started a country newspaper!'

'That will do,' said the court; put him in the asylum and the conservator will be appointed."

That Husband of Mine.

A woman hastily entered a Harlem lager beer saloon and demanded of the proprietor:

'Has my husband been in here?'

'I don't know him. Is he a tall man?'

'Yes.'

'Red-headed?'

'Yes, and red complected.'

'Full beard?'

'Yes.'

'Wear a slouch hat?'

'Yes.'

'He was here not five minutes ago. He came in, drank a lemonade, and then he walked down the street.'

'Drank what?'

'Lemonade.'

'Wrong man?' she said, shooting herself out of the door.

Accounts for It.

It is the custom of a certain Hindoo caste for a woman about to marry to have her third and fourth fingers cut off at the first joint. This accounts for the peculiar scratch marks visible on the face of the Hindoo husband.

INYO COUNTY.

Its Past, Present and Future.

The persistence with which errors and mistakes are repeated is so common that it is hardly worth remark. Yet when a serious error is seen doing injury in one place, that has long been exploded in another, it may not be out of order to call attention to the fact. The notion that prevailed so long and so recently that California was useless for agriculture is now so fully dismissed that though the mining industries of the State yearly add millions to the wealth of the nation, the value of farm products so much exceed that derived from mining, that the latter is sunk into comparative insignificance. The value of the fruit canned in the State last year was equal to half the product of the mines; there are thousands of men in the State who but a few years ago turned with contempt from the land on which these fruits are now grown, and would not take them as a gift. Many of these men are still homeless wanderers, while comparative strangers in the State are getting rich and enjoying all the comforts of life on the once despised lands. Talking of the stubbornness of Scottish character, an old minister once said: "It behooveth a Scotch man to be richt, for if he's wrang ance he'll stay wrang for eternity." There are people in this State whom it "behooveth to be richt." The same foolish notion that prevailed of lands west of the mountains still retards the development of Inyo Conuty. The great valley of Owens river opens its broad bosom, offering peace and plenty to the settler; year after year the vast grass covered plains remain unpeopled, their myriads of wild flowers waste their sweetuess on the desert air, and no sound of industry is heard, save where the wild bee murmurs on the wing. It might appear gross folly to say that, contrary to all experience elsewhere, the mineral wealth of Inyo has been a hindrance to the developmnnt of the county. And yet this may not be so far from the truth. Here as in all othther parts of the State, explorers were attracted by the search for gold and silver. Several rich mines were found and fortunes made; the firm that operated at Cerro Gordo took out in a very few years $13,000,000. The richness of these mines turned the thoughts of men in one direction, and little but mining was thought of. The few who took to farming got extravagant prices for all their productions; six to seven cents per pound for grain, and thirty to forty dollars per ton for hay. When the mining companies quarreled with each other, and in consequence, many of the mines were stopped. and the prices of the farm products came nearer to market values elsewhere, the few farmers in the county thought they were ruined, and their lands would never be worth anything again. This deepened the conviction already existing, that the country was entirely dependent upon mining, and that the fortunes of all settlers must be determined by the success or failure of the mines. Just at this juncture when the lull came in mining business, the railroad made its advent into the country, and being simultaneous with the decline in the price of farm products, was at once charged with being the sole cause of the decline. It is a great fact, that as in the case of the great valleys west of the mountains, Owens river may be made a wonder of prosperity, if not a pound of ore should ever be taken from the mines of Inyo county. The vast extent of fertile land and genial climate, make it a most desirable place for industrious and intelligent settlers, and when the resources and attractions shall be better known, no part of the Pacific coast will receive a greater proportion of that great stream of immigration that is now flowing toward the setting sun. In farming is to be found the assured prosperity of the country; this is not said in disparagement of mining, that Inyo has vast and valuable mineral resources is too well known to admit of denial. But the existance of those resources is only another reason for the more persistent developement of the farming interests of the County. Already there are evidences of a revival of mining industry on a safer bases than before. It cannot be denied that the great activity in mining a few years ago was largely speculative. The methods pursued on the Comstock were tried here; companies formed, not for opening mines, but for opening the purses of dupes. This made an unnatural activity, and false value, that could not long continue. All this has passed away, now mines are being opened by the owners, and to be conducted as any other legitimate business should be conducted. In nearly every case mines so managed in Inyo county are paying handsome profits. If the owners had not requested silence for a time, mines could now be named that will in the next year or two take rank with the best ever opened in the State. But again, let it be repeated, Inyo is rich independently of mines or mining; her soil and climate will never fail; instead of decreasing in value, these will become more precious as the years roll away. A farm in this beautiful valley will in time become a princely possession, and a more certain resource than the best mine ever opened. For any of the present settlers to sacrafice their possessions would be very great folly, a great increase in values is sure to come in the near future.

THE Greely Arctic expedition penetated farther north than any expedition that ever preceded it, and this is claimed as an American triumph over other nations. As a matter of pride it is something to boast of, but there is little in it after all. The party led by Lieutenant Lockwood reached latitude 83° 24′ north, longitude 40° 46′ west. The only additional discoveries made were the tracks of foxes, hares, lemmings and ptarmigans. Does this knowledge compensate for the lives lost in the venture?

THE LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE.

In his letter of acceptance Governor Cleveland says:

"I have carefully considered the platform adopted by the convention and cordially approve the same. So plain a statement of Democratic faith and the principles upon which that party appeals to the suffrages of the people, needs no supplement or explanation. * * * Parties are the necessary outgrowth of our institutions, brt a government is not by the people when one party fastens its control upon the country and perpetuates its power by cajoling and betraying the people instead of serving them. A government is not by the people when a result which should represent the intelligent will of free-thinking men is, or can be, determined by the shamelessness of their suffrages, when an election to office shall be the selectlon of voters of one of their number to assume for a time a public trust instead of his dedication to the profession of politics, when the holders of the ballots, quickened by a sense of duty, shall avenge truth betrayed and pledges broken, and when the suffrage shall be altogether free and uncorrupted, the full realization of a government by the people will be at hand; and of the means to this end, not one would, in my judgment, be more effective than an amendment to the constitution, disqualifying the President from re-election. When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public place once gained, and, more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office-holders, with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the President for re-election a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people."

Evidently the Governor does not favor prohibition legislation; he goes on to say:

"The limit between the proper subjects of governmental control and those which can be more fittingly left to the moral sense and self-imposed restraints of the citizens should be carefully kept in view. Thus laws unnecessarily interfering with the habits and customs of any one of our people, which are not offensive to the moral sentiments of the civilized world and which are consistent with good citizenship and the public welfare, are unwise and vexatious."

These extracts contain the gist of the letter of acceptance.

WILLIAM M. BRENNAN, the man who was shot in Carson two weeks ago has since died. He was a native of Bangor, Maine, and was aged thirty-three years.

PLUMS are reported very scarce in New York. Canners buy all they can get of egg plums at six to seven dollars per barrel. In this valley plums grow to perfection, the quality is unsurpassed, and the crop sure.

THE case of the Mono Gold Mining Company against the Rustler Mining Company, in regard to the possession of certain mining land, which has been dragging its weary length through the courts for five years, has been decided. Some time since the demurrer of the Rustler Company was overruled and no answer has since been filed. Judgment for the plaintiff in $20,000 by default has accordingly been rendered by Judge Sawyer.

FROM the amount of all things nasty and vile that are reported in the daily papers, and the almost total absence of all of a religious or even moral nature, it might be inferred that these papers were read only by persons of a depraved taste. This is not the truth, however, and in recognition of that fact the Los Angeles Express says:

The Express sees no good reason why base ball matches and prize fights should be reported in the daily press and religious matters entirely neglected. We propose to make this a newspaper, and to give religious news as well as secular. The devil and his works shall be given no advantage in these columns if we can help it.

LAST Tuesday the body of William Whistler, late member of the Greely party, was exhumed at Delphi, Indiana. His father, grandfather and grandmother were present. The face and trunk were in a good state of preservation. His red hair and beard easily identified him to his friends. All the flesh had been cut from Whistler's arms and legs. The limbs were perfectly bare of muscle. The right foot, which had been frozen, was not touched by the knife, and the left hand was cut only to the wrist. The breast was not touched, but every particle of flesh was stripped from the back. The physicians found nothing in the stomach. The doctors will make no report of their observations unless asked for it by the Government.

THE State Board of Equalization finished its labors on the rating of railroads last Saturday night. The valuations are as follows: Amador Branch, $175,000; California Northern, $95,000; California Pacific, $2,700,000; Northern Railway, $2,300,000; Sacramento and Placerville, $291,000; San Francisco and Northern Pacific, $1,300,000; San Pablo and Tulare, $950,000; Southern Pacific, $17,000,000; Stockton and Copperopolis, $425,000; Vaca Valley and Clear Lake, $190,000; Nevada County Narrow Gauge Railway, $115,000; North Pacific Coast, $425,000; South Pacific Coast, $500,000; Santa Cruz and Pacific Improvement Company, $150,000; Pacific Coast Railway, $240,000; San Joaquin and Sierra, $125,000; Carson and Colorado, $215,000; Central Pacific, $24,000,000; California Southern, $150,000.

Farm and Fruit.

It is safe to predict an early day when this State will rank among the first fruit producing countries of the world. What may we expect a few years hence, when all the young orchards that are now being planted come into bearing? It has been estimated that 75 per cent. of our orchards are devoted to the finer grades of fruit, such as apricots, oranges nectarines, figs, limes, lemons, prunes, etc' are not yet in full bearing. Our farmers are depending less every year on the wheat crop, and more on general products and new industries. They are begining to understand that unlimited markets have been opened up within a brief period of time, for all the varieties of choice fruit that can be produced. The demand for California fruits, in the Atlantic States and Europe is increasing very rapidly. It is estimated that not less than 12,000 tons of fruit were shipped overland last year. The great Eastern cities have become quite heavy customers for fresh fruits from California, and the interior towns begin to come in. Wherever there is direct railway connection the fruits of California orchards may be sent in a fresh ,healthy condition. When the Oregon and California Railroad is opened it will create a market for the fruits of Sacramento valley and other places in northern and central California, as the opening of the southern route did for those of the lower countries. The fruit business of California is in its infancy even for for fresh fruit. But the demand for dried fruit is unlimited. Few people have a correct idea of the magnitude of the fruit-canning business of California. It will soon equal in value the cereal production. Last year it reached an enormous sum. It has been estimated at nearly 40 per cent of the value of the wheat crop and nearly 50 per cent of the gold mines. Many farmers have discovered that there is much more profit in an acre of orchard or vineyard than there is in several acres of grain. The investment in fruit canning establishments, in various localities, is having the effect of encouraging fruit-growing. It is said that with all commercial nations the consumption of fruit is yearly becoming more enormous, and a vasr importance must ultimately attach to the very few regions of the earth where fruits can attain the rich perfection that our climate and soil insure.

THE Lyon County Times is authority for the statement that Knapp & Laws, Hawthorne's enterprising merchants, will establish a branch of their house at Bishop Creek.

Agents for winemaking houses in New York and in Canada have been purchasing tons of grapes at various points along the Hudson river during the past week, buying the fruit as ft is at $50 a ton net.

William H. Vanderbilt has sold Maud S. to Robert Bonner for $100,000

Honey in comb is quoted in San Francisco at 8 to 11 cents per pound. Extracted 5 to 5½ cents.

—Gov. Stoneman offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the party or parties guilty of the murder of P. W. Bras, which occured near the town of Anaheim, Los Angeles county, on July 26th last. He has also offered a reward of $500 for the capture and conviction of the two masked men who murdered Charles L. INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 23, ...1884.

NOTARY PUBLIC.—Mr. P. A. Chalfant has been appointed Notary Public for Deep Spring Valley.

BULLION.—Last week 21,000 pounds of lead bullion were shipped by the Owens River Company for J. W. Pearson, San Francisco.

PEACHES CHEAP.—Mr. E. Robinson offers to deliver peaches at the railroad for three cents per pound. This ought to satisfy the merchants of Hawthorne.

NO MARKET.—A large quantity of early apples were sold by Mr. Densmore at four cents per pound. This is uncommonly low, "No Market" did it.

BULLION. — Last Wednesday there was shipped 28,000 pounds of ore from Keeler for Selby & Co., Oakland wharf, and 10,000 pounds of bullion from Elna for J. W. Pearson, San Francisco.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—Rev. Andrew Clark, of Bishop Creek, will hold religious services at Independence on Sunday, August 24th. It is to be hoped that the attendance will be good.

NO MARKET. — Teams came down from Bodie last week to Round Valley, wanting fifty tons of grain. About half that amount of old grain was found in the valley, and the new crop is not yet ready.

REDUCED FARE.—On the arrival of all trains at Independence station, comfortable conveyance and good horses are in attendance to carry passengers to any part of town for fifty cents each.

* H. LEVY, Stage Proprietor.

A CANDIDATE.—Attention is invited to the card of Mr. J. H. Shannon, who offers himself as a candidate for County Clerk. Mr. Shannon is a well known citizen of Inyo; he is competent, and would make an efficient officer.

NO MARKET.—The first wheat of this season, grown at Fish Springs, has already been made into flour, and all sold. The flour brought five dollars per cwt. Last week "gilt edge" flour was quoted in San Francisco at five dollars, ten cents per barrel. "No market" makes the difference here.

WHY THEY DID IT.—The action of the Board of Supervisors in ordering that the Court House should not be used for festive gatherings was necessary in order to save the insurance policy. To permit the use of the building for any other than the usual business of the county would vitiate the insurance.

NEW TURNOUT.—A very handsome new carriage and harness arrived a few days ago from San Francisco for Mr. O. J. Mairs. It is covered with a fine leather top that will make it a comfortable conveyence between the railroad station and town; the owner bought it expressly for the greater comfort of his patrons, and now runs it regularly.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—The Reno Gazette of Tuesday last says: Michael Cummings, brother-in-law of Mike Logan, of Pleasant Valley, met with an accident yesterday that will prove fatal beyond doubt. He was knocked off a small bridge by a horse and fell in such a manner as to dislocate his neck. Doctors Hogan and Dawson were sent for, and they found the body paralyzed from the neck down. The man was still living when the doctors left, but they had no hopes of his recovery.

EXCUSED.—In last week's issue mention was made of the evils of having so many unmarried men in the country. One of the number has since given satisfactory reference to prove that he had made forty six seperate proposals, and been rejected every time. This unfortunate may say like Squire Western, "The woman as I'd ha' wouldn't ha' me, and the woman as would ha' me, the divel would'nt ha' she.' He will be excused.

STRUCK BY LIGHTING.—Last Monday Reno had a heavy thunder storm. The Gazette says: "Last evening, during the brisk thunder shower with which Reno was favored, Mrs. F. C. Updyke, who resides in the western part of town, was cooking over the kitchen stove, was severely shocked by electricity, which she experienced at the instant of that deafening clap of thunder, heard by every body in this vicinity. Mr. Updyke, who was near sprang to her assistance in time to save her from a fall, when she immediately complained of a pain and numbness in her left foot, which continued for several hours, although there were no outward signs of the effects of electricity, either on her person, the house or the stove.

SUPERVISOR'S PROCEEDINGS.

Some dissatisfaction having been expressed with the proposed arrangement of the Supervisor districts, the Board reconsidered the motion by which said arrangement had been ordered, and made such changes as it is hoped will give general satisfaction. District No. 1, boundaries not changed. No. 2. changed so as to include Big Pine and Fish Springs with Independence. No. 3, southern boundary line moved north so as to pass nearly four miles south of Independence. In the other districts no changes were made.

The Board ordered that the Auditor draw a warrant for $40 in favor of John Forsyth, and indigent sick person, to pay his fare and expenses to Mohave.

The following resolution was adopted: "It is hereby ordered that in future the Court House building shall not be used for any dance, festival or other entertainment."

The following bills were allowed: E. Robinson, $60 40; A. Spencer, $79 20; Thomas Boland, $72 80.

The Picnic.

Young and old who attended the picnic last Saturday had a very pleasent time, and certainly the conditions for pleasure were most favorable. Beautiful and extensive grounds: trees, not only giving shade, but laden with luscious peaches, nectarines, plums, apples and pears, surely this was a very paradise for children, and through it all were permitted to roam at will, the only restriction being a request that unripe fruit should not be eaten, nor branches of trees broken. It is doubtful if any where else on the earth an unlimited number of people, young and old, would be given such a privilege as was freely accorded this party; certainly no where else could there be found a more delightful combination of bright skies and cool shade, pure air and clear streams, fruits and flowers, rivaling each other in brilliant hues and sweetness. In other lands the owners of grounds less attractive than the scene of this picnic imitate the Chinese by building walls around their possessions, as if grudging to others even a glimpse of the smiles of mother Nature. It is only in our own happy country where the human heart is found in accord with the lavish generosity of nature. and where the chief enjoyment derived from the possessions of the choicest productions of soil and climate. appears to be the power to make others happy, The children and all friends of children, owe lasting gratitude to Mr. S. A. Densmore for his kindness in giving them the use of his house and grounds for their picnic.

Personal Mention.

Mr. Mee came up from Darwin last Sunday.

Mrs. Naylor of Big Pine was in town some days this week.

J. J. Gunn of Darwin is making the rounds in the valley.

Mr. John Stoutenborough came down from Bishop last Sunday.

Ed. Shepherd is very sick; a physician is in daily attendance upon him.

Mr. Thomas E. Jones, of Round Valley, came down to town last Sunday and remained till Tuesday.

Mr. Morrison, of Cerro Gordo, was in town at the beginning of the week.

Mrs. Man came down from Bishop station last week and remained in town several days on a visit to Mrs. Gregg.

Mr. N. Rhine left here last Monday evening for San Francisco. It is expected that he will be gone some weeks.

Suicide.

Last Saturday evening a young woman named Jennie Trip, better known by the name of "Trix," shot herself in Los Angeles. The Express says: "The unfortunate woman who thus summarily brought her life to a close, came to Los Angeles two years ago from Fountainville, Iowa, at the time, so far as is known, a pure and innocent girl, intending to marry an industrious young man living in Inyo county, in this State. She was met here upon her arrival by her affianced, who took her to the home of his sister. As she was in ill health the marriage was postponed, and she was left in medical care while he returned to Inyo. She was attending school during this time and was considered a modest and prepossessing young woman. The young man to whom she was engaged sent her money from time to time through a friend then and now doing business on Main street. It was soon observed by the friend that her associations and conduct were not what they should have been, and the affair coming to the ears of her affianced the remmittances were stopped. She went from bad to worse and was soon leading a life of open shame. In December last a well known drayman named Ike Gordon came to his death very suddenly when in her company, on the sidewalk on Third street, between Main and Spring, by being shot. Suspicion was directed to the woman, but it was judicially decided, upon her evidence, that he committed suicide. She has, however, continued to rest under a certain degree of suspicion in the matter. She claims to have been fired at a month or two ago by an unknown party and was given permission to carry a pistol."

Here and There.

A few men are at work at Mammoth; they are getting out fair ore.

The M. E. Conference has been in session during the week at Genoa, Nev.

It is stated that the May Lundy mine at Lundy will pass into other hands shortly.

There have been severral cases of diphtheria in Virginia city lately. The disease is attributed to unusual rains.

WE have a small army of candidates for office, and all of them appear very careful not to do any thing that would afford opportunity for charges of want of sobriety, or any violation of the social proprieties. It is a redeeming feature of office hunting that it goes far toward making the candidates gentlemen, at least externally.

NEW FLOUR.—Jacob Vagt took a load of new flour to Lone Pine yesterday. The flour was made at Bell's mill, and is first-class.

BULLION.—Last week 20,000 pounds of bullion were shipped from Keeler for Selby & Co., San Francisco. The bullion belonged to the owners of the Modeck mine.

MUSIC EXTRAORDINARY.—A few days ago a cat in Harris & Rhine's store saw a mouse on top of a box. Tom (he is that kind of a cat,) made a dash at the mouse with open mouth and the latter jumped down the cat's throat. Tom then walked away and laid down, and for some time afterward the mouse could be heard chirping quite briskly inside the cat. No mistake about this music being from catgut. Next.

LETTER FROM CARSON CITY.

A few days ago in company with a friend, I paid a visit to the State Capitol. The grounds contain two blocksy and are beautifully laid out with sandy walks, shade trees, flowers and velvet greensward, which contrast finely with the white sandstone of the Capitol.

The State Library contains several hundred volumes of the best standard works of English, German, French and American authors. The librarian is a lady, and from her I learned that only the State officials are allowed free access to it, and it is by their courtesy that any others are permitted to read or take away books from this vast wealth of literature. It is bad enough to hoard up gold, but far worse to prevent the free circulation of the treasures of the mind. But this may not be the desired object of this library—that is, for circulation.

After looking in upon the Secretary and his gentlemanly deputy, I was shown into the office of the Treasurer, Mr. Tufly, who answered my questions politely, showing me the gold in his keeping, after performing a kind of "open, sesame" upon the huge iron doors, that tell of the cupidity of man. There was nearly one million in gold coin, the State indebtednes being less than a quarter of a million; with nearly three-quarters of a million of school-funds in government bonds, the annual interest on which, is over thirty thousand dollars. Few states can show a better record, and few have a finer capitol or better qualified officials in every department of state.

Soon afterwards I paid a visit to the State Prison, where, to all outward appearance, it might have been a place of pleasure resort. A negro advanced and took our team; later, I was told he was a prisoner; these are called "trusties." Ladies and gentlemen were playing lawn-tennis on the green in the yard; these were not prisoners. We were then escorted by the warden, Mr. Bell, to where we could see, through the grating of a huge iron door, the prisoners, about 140, go to their cells and be locked up for the night, from 5 P. M. to 6 A. M. They came up from the dining room in single file, each with both hands on the shoulders of the one before him; and with their striped clothing and this abject submission, it was hard to realize that these were the thieves and murderers they really are. There is something akin in the shutting of the cell doors to the thudding sound of the first clods of earth upon a coffin lid; and I had rather it were the latter I heard, upon any friend of mine.

We then went into the spacious prison yard, examined the "foot-prints" of men and animals of pre-historic periods which some scientists, who have seen these footprints, date back from one to two hundred thousand years, since these were first impressed upon the yielding sands or mud.

The warden showed us through the different workshops, as these were then vacant. In the boot and shoe shop as in others, there were several boxes and pots of plants and flowers, looking as if tenderly cared for, telling silently of the love of the beautiful in even the most depraved natures.

There is one hundred thousand dollars appropriated annually by the State for the support of the prison, besides the convict labor, which is worth some thirty or forty thousand more. What might not this amount of money do for the prevention of crime instead of spending it upon equivocal punishment.

One prisoner was confined in a solitary cell, where he is sentenced to remain until next Christmas, for recently attempting to break away from prison, having secreted a shoe knife ground to a point, and using it on all who came in his way as he tried to escape. cutting the arm of one of the officers and another in the breast, but only through his coat. The prisoner was serving a sentence of twenty-one years, eight of which had expired, for train-robbery and murder. He had asked for a pardon, but had been refused; now he suffers a penalty so bitter that his former prison life would be comparative freedom.

As we drove out of this living tomb into the beautiful shaded streets of the city, never did I more fully realize the value of perfect liberty, to go at will on the face of the green earth.

Last Sunday I went to the Episcopal Church. I don't often attend church, but like the girl who got religion, it was because I pitied the preacher, for as he had a few evenings before been my partner in a game of whist, I thought it would do me no more harm to go and hear him preach.

Last night I went with several children to see a Marionette show. It was very good and greatly amused the little ones, as well as some that were older. The opening scene, the minstrels, was very laughable, the end men acting and getting off their conumdrums in the most perfect manner, using the bones and tambourine as natural as life.

I have met several tourists from Lake Tahoe, some of them having traveled extensively in Europe and other parts of the world, who say that Carson City, with its beautiful shady walks and drives, with its summer resort at the lake, is one of the finest places to visit on the globe. It is mostly people from a distance that visit and appreciate the magnificence of our mountain towns and surrounding scenery; and we are made aware of these only when we are far away and deprived of seeing them.

To-morrow I go to Lake Tahoe, and will tell you of that famous place next time. L. H.

TRAVELERS.—A party consisting of three men and one woman camped near here last Saturday, and remained till Monday. One of the men is named Bain, another Keene. The party were on their way from White Pine, Nevada, to Calico; they said that there is nothing at all doing in White Pine, and they had to go elsewhere to make a living. They had a good outfit, consisting of four horses, a new wagon, plenty of food and clothing and appeared to be enjoying the trip. They had already been eight days on the way.

DECIDED.—The celebrated water suit at Big Pine, J. W. McMurry vs. H. F. Uhlemeyer, has been settled, and the neighborhood is happy. J. W. P. Laird wss attorney for plaintiff, and S. D. Woods for defendant.

ANNUAL ASSESSMENT WORK.—It has been decided that if a locator of a mining claim should fail to do the necessary assessment work before the expiration of the year but should resume work upon the claim at any subsequent time, and before a new location should be made by any other locator, then the title of the original locator is good. The law does not require that any assessment work shall be done for past time, but only that it shall be kept up from the time of resumption.

RETURNED.—W. F. Matlack and party returned on Tuesday last from a seven weeks' very pleasant trip to the Calaveras Big Trees. On the way down they experienced considerable difficulty in getting through the snow drifts, which delayed them so long that an extension of their trip to the Yosemite was impossible. But few people had yet arrived at the summer resorts when they left. On the return trip they found the road washed out near Bakers by a water-spout, otherwise the road was in excellent condition. Mr. Matlack will be found at his old stand on Edwards street, where he is prepared to do all kinds of blacksmithing in his usual first-class style.

MEETING OF REPUBLICAN COMMITTEE. The Republican County Committee met on Monday and fixed dates for holding primary meetings for the election of delegates, and for the meeting of the County Convention. The primary meetings will be held on Saturday, Sept. 6th, and the convention will meet Sept. 13th. The Committee adopted a resolution to recommend to the Convention that no one be admitted to take part in the proceedings thereof as the proxy of another, unless said proxy shall himself be a regularly elected delegate. S. D. Wood tendered his resignation as a member of the County Central Committee; the same was accepted, and a vote of thanks was unanimously tendered him for his very efficient services while in office as Chairman of the Committee. The vacancy was filled for the time by the appointment of A. R. Conklin, who was also elected Chairman. As a test entitling parties to vote for delegates, the Committee resolved that all might so vote who had voted for Garfield electors, or who would have done so had opportunity permitted. See the call elsewhere published for primary meetings and County Convention.

FRUIT.—The remarkable adaptation of Owen Valley to fruit raising cannot be too much dwelt upon. In the orchard of Mr. E. Robinson, at Indpendence the peach trees are so laden with fruit that they rest upon the ground. The peaches are crowded together like grapes in large clusters. Mr. Robinson makes no effort to market the fruit, yet he must have several tons of peaches alone, and this fruit is now reported by the Virginia City papers to be selling there for eight cents per pound. In the same orchard are many pear trees, most of them of best varieties, and now very heavily laden. A few trees of the German prune are now ripening a heavy crop of fine looking fruit. Many apples trees are bearing as large and fine looking apples as ever were seen growing. While going through this orchard last Saturday, Mr. Spencer of Bishop Creek said that he had tons of pears in his orchard, and being asked what he would do with them said "nothing, give 'em away or or let 'em lie". Yet pears from the Sacramento valley are shipped all over Nevada, and for canning, pears are the best of all fruit. Evidently the business of Owens river valley is very badly adjusted, or whether the fault lies with the people themselves. or with the railroad, or with both.

Deeds of Old Men.

There are old men who are not to be despised. Some are apt to think that none but young men can do much. Some, indeed, shoot up like a rocket, and go out like one. Others rise slowly, like fixed stars, and as they are slow to rise they are slow to set.

Wickliffe, the morning star of the Reformation, was most active and useful from 48 to 60 years of age. Latimer in King Edward's days was a hard student; he was at his studies about two o'clock in the morning summer and winter, though his body had been bruised by the fall of a tree, and he was about 67 years of age.

Cromwell was only a captain when he was 41, and his greatest deeds were performed between 48 and 59, when he died. Young was an old man when he wrote some of his best poetry, and he was sixty when he began 'Night Thoughts.'

Thomas Scott wrote as much at 70 as at any period of his life. Talleyrand, at the age of 80, stood at the head of affairs in France under Napoleon, and then under the Bourbons.

When the Russians were determined to make a stand and fight the French under the walls of Moscow, they put old Kutusof at the head of the army in the place of Barclay-de-Tolly.

Old Blutcher was 70 when he was defeated at Ligny and fell under his horse, and the French cavalry rode over him, yet a day or two after he led on his Prussians against Napoleon at Waterloo.

After many years of warfare, those old men, Wellington and Soult, stood at the head of their respective Cabinets, one in England the other in France, preserving by their talent the peace of Europe and the world.

Politeness Rewarded.

'Will you be kind enough, sir, to hold this ram for me while I open this gate? It is fastened on the inside and I must climb over.'

This modest request was made yesterday by a man who was standing at a gate running out of New Dorp, Staten Island, and it was addressed to a stalwart sailor who had just come up. The only other living object visible on the long straight road was the large black ram, whose massive crooked horns were being held by the man as the two stood quite still in front of the gate.

'Why, sartinly, shipmate,' said the obliging tar, as he seized the big horns and relieved the first holder.

The latter climbed quickly over the gate.

'I thank you very much,' he said politely, when he had got to the other side. 'You will be surprised to hear that I never saw that ram before an hour ago, and we have been tussling together ever since. As long as you can stand before him, holding his horns firmly, he can't hurt you much. Good bye-I hope you will be as lucky in getting away from him as I have been.'

The New Dorp man, when telling the story, neglected to report the sailor's reply. He did not know what had become of him.

Pleasant Experimenting.

He was a bashful wooer, but there was a certain manliness about him which indicated that he only needed a little encouragement to let himself out. She saw this, and resolved on a policy of encouragement.

'Do you believe these stories in the funny papers about the willingness of young ladies to be kissed?'

'I—I really can't say,' he replied. 'They may be true.' Then gathering up more courage, he added: 'I hope they are true,' and he drew closer to her.

'It seems to me,' she said, 'that there is only one way in which a young man may discover whether they are true or not.'

'And what way is that?' he then asked.

There was a brief pause. Then with a far away look in her eyes, he answered:

'By experimenting when he has an opportunity.'

He experimented.

THE CHAIR-MENDER.

I was called about three months ago,—(said the doctor)—to attend the old woman who was dying. She had come to the town only the evening before, in the traveling-wagon which served her as a house, drawn by an old broken-down horse, and accompanied by two great black dogs, who were her friends and guardians. The priest was already there when I arrived. She appointed us her sole executors, and in order that we might comprehend the full purport of her last wishes, the told us the whole story of her life. I never heard anything stranger or more poignant.

Her father and mother had both been traveling chair menders—menders of old straw-chairs. She never had a fixed residence in her whole life.

When she was a very small child she used to run about, ragged, sordid, covered with vermin. The wagon used generally to halt in the neighborhood of villages, beside the ditches; then the horse would be unharnessed and turned loose to graze; the dog would go to sleep resting his nose upon his paws; and the child would amuse herself rolling in the grass, while the father and mothes set to work, under the shadow of the roadside elms, rebottoming all the old chairs in the parish. There was scarcely a word of conversation in the traveling wagon. When they had halted, the parents never spoke except to decide who should take the first turn at making a round of the village with the familiar cry, "Chairs to mend!" And then they would sit down in silence, face to face, and commence to twist the straw. But when the child wandered a little too far away, or tried to make friends with some village urchin, forthwith the father's furious voice would thunder out: "Come back here at once, you stinking good-for-nothing!" Those were the only affectionate words she ever heard.

When she grew a little older, they used to send her to buy material for the bottoms of worn-out chairs. In this way she managed to make the shadow of an acquaintance with the little boys of the neighborhood; but on such occasions it was the parents of her new friends who would brutally call their children in-doors: "Here! come in at once—you little blackguard! Let me catch you again talking to vagabonds and tramps!"

Often the little boys used to throw stones at her.

Sometimes ladies gave her a few cents; and these she used to nide away carefully.

One day—(she was then 11 years old)—while she was passing through this part of the country she happened to see little Chouqnet behind the cemetery wall, crying as if his heart would break because a bigger boy had stolen two copper coins from him. These tears—the tears of a little burgeois—tears of one of those well-to-do people's children whom she had always pictured to herself, in that weak, foolish, little, unhappy little brain of hers, as ever happy and joyful—completely upset her. She approached him; and when she had learned the reason of his grief, she poured into his hands all her savings—7 cents, which he accepted quite naturally—at the same time wiping his tears away. Then, feeling almost crazy with joy, she had the presumption to kiss him. As he was still carefully inspecting his money, he allowed her to do it. Finding that she was neither repulsed nor beaten, she did it again; she hugged him with all her little strength, pressed him to her child-heart. Then she ran away.

What had taken place in that unhappy little head? Did she love the little urchin only because she had had the delight of sacrificing her whole vagabond fortune for him—or because she had given him her first loving kiss? The mystery of affection is as deep in children as in adults.

For months she dreamed of that cemetery corner and that little boy. In the expectation of seeing him again, she stole from her parents—filching a cent here and a cent there, misappropriating trifles in her purchases of straw, or pocketing an odd coin when sent to the market to buy provisions.

When they returned to the villages, she had thus managed to accumulate two francs and a half, but she was not able to do more than catch a glimpse of the little boy, very neatly dressed, in his father's drug-store, between a glass jar filled with red water and a bottled tapeworm.

She only loved him all the more—charmed, enchanted, ecstatically delighted with that glory of colored water—that apotheosis of shining crystal.

She kept that ineffaceable memory to herself; and when she met him again the next year, playing at ten-pins with his comrades, she threw herself upon him, caught him in her arms, and kissed him, so violently that he yelled with terror. Then, just to keep him quiet, she gave him all her money,—3 francs and 20 centimes,—a veritable treasure, at which he gazed with eyes made big by wonder.

He took it, and let her caress him to her heart's content.

For four years more she poured all her reserve funds ihto his hands; and he always conscientiously pocketed them in exchange for kisses endured. One time it was 30 sous, another time 2 francs, an other time only 12 sous—she cried with pain and humiliation to offer so little; but business had been very bad that year—and the last time 5 francs, a great big round silver-piece which made him laugh with delight when he saw it.

She could think of nothing else but him; and he used to watch for her return with a certain impatience, and even run to meet her when he saw her—so that the little girl's heart bounded for joy.

Then all at once he disappeared. He had been sent to college. She found it out by shrewdly questioning. Then by dint of infinite diplomacy, she tried to change the regular itinerary of her parents, so that they might stop at this village just about vacation time. She succeeded; but it took her a whole year's rusing to do it. Thus she remained two whole years without seeing him; and when she saw him again, she hardly knew him, so tall and handsome he had become, and so elegant he looked in his student's tunic with gilt buttons. He pretended not to see her and walked haughtily by.

She cried about it for two whole days, and from that time she suffered without intermission.

Every year she came back to the village; passed him by in the street without daring to salute him, and without his ever condescending to turn his eyes toward her. She loved him madly. She said to me: "He is the only man I ever saw in this world, Monsieur; I did not even seem to know whether any other man existed."

Her parents both died. She continued their business; but she kept two dogs, instead of one,—two terrible dogs that nobody would dare to interfere with.

One day, on her annual return to this village in which she had left her heart, she saw a young woman leaving Chouquet's drug store on the arm of her lover. It was his wife. He was married!

That same night she threw herself into the deep pond which is before the Place de la Mairie. A drunken man, who was getting home later than usual, saw her, fished her out, and carried her to the drug store. The younger Chouquet came down stairs in his dressing-gown to attend her; and without seeming to know her he undressed her, applied frictions, administered stimulants, and then said to her in a very harsh voice: "You are crazy!—mustn't play the fool like that!"

He had spoken to her! That alone was enough to cure her. It made her happy for ever so long.

He refused to take any money for his services, although she insisted on paying him as well as she could.

And all her life passed away in the same manner. While mending her chairs she thought of nothing but Chouquet. Every year she saw him behind the glass windows of his drug store. She made a practice of buying little stocks of drugs and medicine from him. Thus she could sometimes be near him and speak to him and enjoy the pleasure of still giving him money.

Well, as I told you before, she died this Spring. And after she had told me her whole sad story, she begged me to carry to the man she had so patiently loved the entire savings of her life of 52 years' labor; for she had worked only for him—often fasting in order to be able to lay a trifle of money by so that she might be sure he would someday think of her, after she was dead.

So she gave me 2,327 francs. I handed the priest the 27 francs for the burial expenses; and I took the remainder of the money home as soon she had breathed her last.

Next day I stepped over to the Chouquet drug store. The Chouquets had just breakfasted, sitting opposite one another at table—they were stout, rubicund, important and self-satisfied, and a smell of drug-store perfumes hovered all around them.

They made me take a chair, offered me a glass of Kirsch-wasser, which I accepted, and I began my discourse in a pathetic voice—feeling sure they were both going to weep.

But no sooner did he learn that I was speaking of that chair-mender, that beggar, that vagabond, than Chouquet bounded from his seat with indignation—as if she had robbed him of his reputation, of the esteem of all respectable people, of his family honor, of something so delicate that he esteemed it more highly than life itself.

And his wife, fully as exasperated as himself, could do nothing but repeat, "Oh, that beggar, that beggar, that beggar!" — without finding anything else to say.

Chouquet, after leaping to his feet, began to stride furiously up and down the room, on the other side of the table—his Greek cap hanging down over one eye. He stuttered out: "It is simply impossible to understand how such things can happen, doctor! Here is a horrible thing—a horrible thing for any respectable man. Now what can I do? Oh! if I had only known this thing during her lifetime I would have had her slammed into jail, the dirty tramp!—and she would not have got out again so easily, let me tell you!"

I was absolutely stupified by this unforeseen result of my kindly mission. I did not know what to do or what to say. But I had not yet completed the duty I had taken upon myself. So I found words to proceed: 'She enjoined me to give you all her savings which amount to 2,300 francs. But as what I have said to you seems to be so disagreeable, I suppose it would be better now to give this money to the poor.'

They both stared at me—the man and the women—fairly paralyzed with astonishment.

I took the money out of my pocket—miserable money of all nations and all dates—gold mixed with coppers. Then I asked: 'Well, what do you decide to do?'

Madam Chouquet was the first to speak:

'Why, since it was the dying wish of that—that woman—it seems to me that we could not very well refuse.'

The husband, still vaguely confused, added:

'Of course we could use the money to buy something for our children, you know.'

I observed, very dryly:

'Just as you please, sir.'

He said:

"Well, give it anyhow—since she told you to; we shall find some way to utilize it for charitable purposes."

I gave the money, took my hat, bowed and departed.

Next day Chouquet came over to see me, and exclaimed, brusquely:

'Say, she left her wagon here—that—that woman, didn't she? What are you going to do with it—with that wagon?'

'Nothing,' I said. 'Take it if you want it.'

'Good!—just the thing for me. I'm going to use it as a shed for my cooking stove.'

He was going away when I called him back. 'She has also left her old horse and her two dogs,' I said; 'do you want them?'

He stopped in surprise:

'Ah, no! I should think not! What on earth could I do with them. No; make any use of them you want.' And he laughed. Then he offered me his hand—and I took it.

Well, how could I help it? It would never do in a country village for the doctor and the chemist to be enemies.

I kept the dogs at my own house. The priest who had a large yard, took the horse. Chouquet turned the wagon into a shed; and he bought five shares of railroad stock with the money.

ENTERTERTAINING.

Mr. Henry Glidden, editor of the Fennellville WATCHMAN, visited the city the other day, and upon assurance of a half-rate advertisement, which for some time had been running in his paper at top of column, next to reading matter, he registered at the leading hotel. The next morning's paper contained a very flattering notice of Mr. Glidden, and as he had not called on the editor of the daily paper, having been busy among the merchants in an effort to convince them that a few squares of advertisements in his paper would turn the great trade of Fennellville into their establisment, he felt highly elated over the unsolicited encomium.

Ah," he mused "that fellow has taken notice of my writings, and that is why he says I possess one of the brightest journalistic minds in the State. I shall go around and give him a surprise. Will talk to him awhile and tell him who I am."

"Come in," said the daily paper editor, browsing among a pile of newapapers in a search for his shears "Sit down"

"Thank you," seating himself with a movement of impressive grace. "I'd like to look at a copy of this morning's paper."

"Find one on that pile there."

"Thank you," taking up the paper and opening it with a flirt that made the daily man nervous. "Ah, I see you give Mr. Henry Glidden editor of the Fennellville WATCHMAN a flattering notice."

"Yes," plunging into an exchange and gouging out a political item,

"Do you think he deserved such high praise?"

"I dont know. Thought we'd give him a little taffy. Those fellows are all vain, and a flattering notice tickles them nearly to death.

Mr. Harvey Glidden hid his face with the newspaper and said:

"Good writer, is he not?"

I never looked at his paper but once. Always throw it aside. He might write 'Uncle Josh Jones called on us yesterday,' or' Aunt Patsy Parker presented our wife with a tenpound squash,' but I don't think that greater mental exertion would agree with him."

"Sir!" exclaimed the editor of the WATCHMAN, rising in wrath, "I will no longer submit to your insults. I am Henry Glidden."

The shrewd daily man, quick to recover himself, threw back his head and laughed. "I told the boys" said he, "that I was going to get away with you. Haw, haw, haw! You are known down here as a humorist, and I made a wager of a new hat that if you came to the office I'd down you. You were pointed ont to me yesterday. Good joke,eh?" and as his scissers fell on the floor, he shook with laughter.

"Well, I declare," said Mr. Glidden. "If that ain't a hoss on me then the Czar is a mule. Come on lets have something. Say, dont mention this in the paper.

"Of course not," and the two laughing gentlemen went out to smile.

LETTER FROM CARSON CITY.

Some days ago, I took a trip to Lake Tahoe, fourteen miles north of west from this city. A few miles out of town is the terminus of the great V-flume for the transportation of lumber and wood from the vicinity of Lake Tahoe, which we crossed under and over nine times before reaching the summit. It is sixteen miles in length, going through one short tunnel, and can transport 1,000,000 feet in a week; but this is rather more than the two sawmills now running can supply. Large quantities of wood are sent down the flume, and several men are employed to see that it is not obstructed in its passage. Most of the way it is steep and rapid, broken into foam by the wood and lumber, making it look like a small cascade. From the summit, we descended some six hundred feet to the Lake, arriving at Glenbrook, the stage station and steamer connection with Tahoe City on the opposite side; the steamer leaving here at 1 P. M. and reaching Tahoe at four or five, going around the south end near the shore, and stopping at different places.

My first boat ride was taken with a young lady, daughter of my friend Mrs. Jellerson, who has a fine boat with awnings, which the young lady rows with skill and grace. We have since had several other boatrides, on both sides of the lake, as she went with me to Tahoe where we remained over night and returned next day.

The passenger steamer Tod Goodwin is a fine boat, fitted with pilot-house, engine room and cabin; the latter nicely fitted up, more especially for ladies. I was presented a ticket by Captain Goodwin, and shall long remember my pleasant trip. The boat is named for the Captain's grandson, a fine little fellow of some six years of age.

The scenery around the lake is very grand; but is being marred by the cutting down of the timber, which is fast disappearing from the sides of the mountains, where it has been thickly wooned, and still slopes down to the water's edge.

The groves and places of resort along the south side of the lake are as beautiful as dreamland, and Idlewild, the whilom residence of Mrs. Crocker and other millionaires, is kept in its pristine loveliness, as no ax or saw of the woodchopper is allowed to desecrate these private grounds, and no tourists permitted to land unless by invitation; there were some of these guests on board, so I had a near view of this Arcadia.

There are two boats, the Niagara and Meteor, owned, as are the sawmills and flume, by the railroad company, all costing over a million dollars, and that before any work was done or compensation received. These boats tow the logs in rafts and the wood in barges from the opposite side of the lake to Glenbrook, or to an "incline" a few miles below, where a stationary engine draws the logs up to the top of the hill several hundred feet, where they are conveyed by railroad to the mills, and the lumber then taken on cars to the summit, through one tunnel of three or four hundred feet, where it is put into the flume and goes on its rapid transit to Carson City, where there are acres of piled-up lumber and cordwood.

A sailing vessel is being built, for excursions and ior fishing, having a tank or aperture at the bow, through which fishing tackle can be let down or drawn up. It is thought that the monster fish seen by Mr. Robinson and others, can thus be secured. He feels sanguine of success, and said when he saw it, it appeared to be as big as the boat he was in; he did not say whether the boat was a skiff or a steamer.

This sailing craft is 75 feet long and 20 feet wide, and of 50 or 60 tons burden, and will be ready to run some time next month.

Lake Tahoe is 22 miles long and 12 miles wide, circumference about 90 miles. On the south side, at Emerald bay, there are falls or cascades of over 200 feet in height from streams flowing from half a dozen or more small lakes lying up in the Sierras beyond. The Truckee river flows out, a good sized stream, just south of Tahoe City. It is spanned by a good bridge on the road to Truckee, which is fourteen miles distant. There is a bulkhead or dam put just above the bridge to keep the lake from getting too low for some of the landings. At Roland's, on the southeast side of the lake, the water is quite shallow, and is of a pale green color; whereas the northern side, being very deep, is of a bright blue; and as the steamer passed along here, the waves looked like molten silver, breaking into crystal fringes from its bow, while the clouds and summits of the mountains were reflected from the surface as from a mirror. One feels as if in the region of the clouds, as he really is. There have been thunderstorms here nearly every day for two weeks.

The most remarkable curiosity that I saw about the lake was the "Shakespeare face." On passing it on a cloudy day it is perfect; and looks of a flesh-colored tint. It hardly seems possible that it can be of unsculptured rock. Near by is a deep chasm called the "Chimney," where a few years ago a young lady lost her life by her temerity in venturing too near its edge; she lost her footing and was dashed to pieces on the rocks at the bottom. A young man, her escort, held on to her hand until the glove came off, and with a shriek she disappeared and met instant death. I saw several tourists on the top of Love Rock and other high places overlooking the lake, but I thought the road that skirted them at the foot sufficient to satisfy my curiosity, especially as my climbing days are over.

Seldom have I spent so pleasant a time as this visit at the lake, at the pleasant summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. Jellerson. I had the pleasure of returning to Carson with agreeable friends, and am now keeping house for Mr. Dormer's folks, while they have gone on a trip to the lake. L. H.

LAST Wednesday the business portion of Mohave was burned. The fire caught in the Railroad Hotel. Thomas Dusing, the barkeeper at the Mohave Hotel, in trying to save some property, was burned to death. The wind was blowing hard and many barely escaped in their night-clothes. Nothing was saved, and as it was there were very many narrow escapes. A lady at Buckel's restaurant was seriously burned, and was taken to Los Angeles. Mrs. Nester, proprietress of the Railroad Hotel, escaped by a window, with her child losing everything.

WITH the increased capacity and better milling facilities we now possess, there surely cannot be any good reason for sending money to the Sacramento valley for flour. Every dollar sent away to pay for what we can as well produce at home, leaves us that much poorer. Every cent for freight and handling has to be paid by the consumer. Our own soil and climate are second to none for wheat production; and with the odds of freight for hundreds of miles in their favor, if our farmers and millers cannot compete with Sacramento valley flour, the fault is their own.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, ...1884.

P. W. Forbes came down from Bishop Creek yesterday.

Pap Walker of Olancha passed a few days in town this week, and kept every body in good humor while he stayed. "Weaving spiders come not near" when Pap is around.

BUILDING.—Mr. S. P. Roberts is building a new dwelling house near his mines at Pine Mountain.

PRUNES.—Two hundred pounds of fine German prunes have been taken from one young tree this season, in the orchard of Mr. Densmore.

TALL CORN.— Stalks of corn that stand fully foureen feet high, and still growing, may be seen on the farm of Mr. S. A. Densmore near town.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS. — There remains unclaimed at the post office letters addressed as follows Mr. Moffet; S. Moffet; Oscar Stickney; Samuel Thomas; John Walace; Dr. A. R. Whitell; A. Wolf.

NOT TO BE OUTDONE.—Independence is not to be outdone by the "desert" in raising fine peaches; since Mr. Walker brought in his samples, Uncle Abe Parker brought in a basketfull raised in town that fairly matched the othere.

REDUCED FARE.—On the arrival of all trains at Independence station, comfortable conveyance and good horses are in attendance to carry passengers to any part of town for fifty cents each.

H. LEVY, Stage Proprietor.

GRAPE CUTTINGS.—Mr. D. A. Bender offers to ship grape cuttings to any point on the C. & C. railroad at half rates. This is a very favorable offer to parties who intend setting out vineyards.

DOUBLING THE CROP.—In the orchard of Mr. S. A. Densmore are some large pear trees of the Bartlet variety, on which young pears are now forming from the second crop of blossoms, although the trees have already almost matured a heavy crop of fine fruit.

SHIPPING FRUIT.—Regular shipments of peaches, apricots, plums and apples are now being made to places on line of the C. & C. railroad from the orchards of E. Robinson and S. A. Densmore. These fruits are successfully competing with fruits from the Sacramento and San Joaquin valley.

FISHING PARTY.—A fishing party went up into the mountains last Tuesday. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. Conklin and Miss Conklin; Miss Minnie Thomson; Mr. S. D. Woods, a guide and an assistant. The ladies returned on Friday, and report having had a glorious time. The other members of the party have not yet returned.

PRESSED WITH BUSINESS.—The Oak Creek flourlng mill is now running steadily. Mr. Bell is so pressed with business that though the mill is kept running almost day and night, he can scarcely keep up with orders' The new machinery added to the mill gives a higher percentage of yield and better quality of flour. The wheat can now be ground "high," giving a whiter and better "rising" flour.

GO FOR THEM—It is reported that Chinamen employed at the Elna. This is altogether illegal, and is causing much just indignation. Every effort should be made to enforce the law in such cases as this, and if nothing better can be done, the citizens dwelling near the river should lay in wait for the scondrels and deal out summary justice upon them. These fish were plantad in the river at a cost of time and money, and the Chinaman should not be suffered to destroy them.

FRUIT PRESERVING MADE EASY. It is authortively stated that fruit prepared as if for canning in the ordinary way, and then placed in stone jars, or any other convenient vessel, and closely covered with cotton batting, will keep in perfect condition for an indefinite time. The fermentation and spoiling of fruit is caused by germs in the atmosphere; boiling the fruit destroys all germs already present, and being covered by the cotton while lt is hot, the access of new germs is prevented. It is stated that fruit covered only with cotton has already been keep in perfect condition two years, and even longer.

MORE OF THE "DESERT." The "desert" appears to be like the sailors "Cape Fly Away," or like the end of the rainbow, or the ague, always just a little farther away. Having gradually moved down Owens river valley, it appears at last to be immovably fixed just south of the Lake. It is not unlikely that it may move, however. Mr. Walker last Wednesday brought into the printing office from his place at Olanche, out in the "desert", a box of peaches that averaged within a small fraction of half a pound each in weight; the largest of the lot weighed nine and a half ounces, and and meaured ten inches in circumference. These peaches were very beautiful in color and fine flavor.

MINISTER REAPPOINTED—Rev. Warren Nims has been reappointed by the M. E. Conference to Owens valley. The next meeting of the Conference is to be held at Bishop Creek. Commenting on this the Reno Gazette says: "Whether this point was selected in interest of the church at that place, or the C. & C. narrow guage, is not stated."

It is probable that about twelve preachers will attend the meeting. It is still more probable thatthe C. & C. road will be asked to give reduced rates to these, if not to grant free passes. The Conference will not benefit the railroad Company (nor any body else) one dollar, and the Gazette is impertinent where it makes an insinuation that betrays an unclean mind.

FROM A SURVIVOR OF THE DEATH VALLEY TRAGEDY.

SAN JOSE, August 23, 1884.

EDITOR INYO INDEPENDENT;—Dear Sir:—I have been reading an article copied from your paper concerning the early emigrants who passed through Death Valley in 1849. You seem to have had a good deal of trouble to find one of those unfortunates; Mr. Brier was but a boy at that time, consequently could not be expected to give a very correct account of what occurred after 34 years have passed by. I knew his father on that trip; he was a minister, a very intelligent cultured gentleman; were he alive he could give you the correct narrative of all that took place. I have read many articles from yours and other southern county papers on this same subject, in which some errors occur, but in the main, the facts were correctly stated, I kept a diary of the entire trip from the Mississipi river to San Francisco, but left it East in 1852 and now cannot find it. There are two in this valley of that party besides myself L. D. Stephen and Thomas Shannon, (not the politician), of Los Gatos. Ed. Doty of Santa Barbara, myself, and John Rogers were the young men who worked our way to the San Francisco ranch and returned and assisted A. Bennett and J. B. Arcane to get their wives and children through to Los Angeles.

I traveled a greater portion of the route two, and in some places three, times over, as I was always in advance of the train looking for water and passes through the mountains—sometimes two and three days without being in camp and entirely alone. I carried a good field glass. I got a fair idea of the geography of the country. Although 34 years have passed by, some of our hard times is indelibly stamped on my memory. I have given Bancroft a history of the trip, as near as I could recollect it, after trying to forget it for 34 years, and I suppose it will appear in his history of the Pacific coast when published.

I write you this to let you know that there are some of us alive. I have not heard from my comrade Rogers since 1855; he was then on the Merced river. The last I heard of Bennett he was at Belmont, Nevada. Arcane died some years ago at Santa Cruz. If you could find Bennett he could give you all the information you desire.

Yours respectfully,
W. L. MANLY.

A RICH FIND.—Douglas county is excited over a rich find recently made in Red Canyon. A prospector brought in a sack of ore to Genoa last Thursday, which contained the richest specimens ever seen in Nevada. Free gold was visible with the naked eye, and it was estimated that the sack of ore would realize $1,000. People are flocking to the canyon and making locations.

THEATRICAL.—The intensely interesting drama of "East Lynne," is in preparation and will be performed at Mair's Hall on Monday evening, September 22d. The performance will be given in aid of a fund for building a new school house in town. Artists and artisans are now at work getting up handsome scenery and a fine stage. The cast of characters has been taken by young people who are now hard at work studying for the occasion.

BIG PINE HEARD FROM.—In the display of fine fruits Big Pine is the last heard from. Yesterday morning a box of assorted fruits—muscat grapes, apricots, plums, peaches, and apples—was received from there at the printing office. It is hardly necessary to say that these fruits were all of the finest. One red Astrachan apple measured fifteen inches in circumference. The fruit was raised on the Bell ranch at Big Pine, and the printers hereby tender Mrs. Bell their thanks for this very ample proof of her success in fruit raising.

WHAT A COMPETENT JUDGE THINKS. Mr. Leute, agent for Krug & Co., the celebrated wine makers of Napa Valley, made a trip through this valley this week. He is certain that this will become a great wine-making region, and said that inside of seven years no man will come to Inyo county with the expectation of selling wine. He said, also, that the bright warm atmosphere and character of soil out in the valley were well adapted to the production of sweet white wines; while the greater moisture and shade closer to the mountains would, he thought, produce an excellent claret. Being asked what he thought of the inducements to invite settlers here, he expressed amazement that such resources and attractions should be so little known abroad, and was very emphatic in declaring that no where else on the Pacific Coast could the same advantages be had for an investment of twice the money asked for improved property here. The beauty and fertility of Napa valley have become famous; yet Mr. Leute says the natural advantages there are in no way superior to Owens River valley, while this is vastly more extensive.

BUILDINGS BURNED.—Last week a fire at the Brown Monster camp destroyed a large building, or rather series of buildings, belonging to Mr. A. W. Eibeshutz. When the mine and mill were working, these buildings were used as an office and dwelling for the Superintendent; and boarding and sleeping house for the hands. The whole range of buildings were one hundred feet long. For some time past a part of the premises had been occupied by F. J. Reynolds, who had charge of the property as watchman. The fire occurred in an unoccupied part of the building, and no clear reason can be assigned for the origin of it. There was no insurance on the property or its contents; the fire made a total loss. Mr. Reynolds had a good deal of moveable property in the building, scarcely any part of which was saved. The fire broke out about eleven o'clock forenoon and in less than an hour the buildings were burned to the ground. The people who were in the house were unable to save anything but the garments they had on.

MINING ITEMS.

ARGUS RANGE.

Last Wednesday Mr. White, of Darwin brought in to Keeler a bar of silver bullion, valued at $1800, the product of ten and one half tons of ore from the Argus Range mines. The ore was milled at the Riley mill, and although the expense for hauling it is great, a handsome profit is still left to the miners. With the natural facilities existing close to the mine, a mill could easily be built and run that would make the State Range very valuable property. There is a large amount of ore similar in quality to that from which this bullion was obtained, and these united advantages cannot fail to induce some parties to take hold of the property who are able to make the necessary improvements.

HAWLEY MILL.

The Hawley mill was started on Tuesday of last week, and has been running steadily since. A correspondent says; "I can assure you, though heavy, yet it is welcome music made by the dropping stamps in the Hawley-Keeler mill once more, and on ore that will beyond doubt prove profitable to the owners, and renew the fame of Cerro Gordo and the Inyos."

PINE MOUNTAIN.

At Pine Mountain, Mr. Roberts has eight men at work in one of his claims, and will soon begin shipping ore to San Francisco. He has a lot of ore now ready, and will have it packed out to the railroad without delay.

COMMITTEE MEETING.—There was a full attendance at the meeting of the democratic County Central Committee, held at the Court House on Saturday last, There were present J. L. Bourland of Bishop Creek, C. H, Parsons of Round Valley, D. B. Curtis of Fish Springs, John Shepherd of Georges Creek, W. S. Hunter of Lone Pine, J. J. Gunn of Darwin, and from Independence A. W. Eibeshutz, J. C. Irwin, Crittenden Hampton, J. E. Parker and John W. P. Laird Chairman, Peter Laird of Big Pine was proxied by J. J. Moore, Frank Fritzgerald of Lookout by A. W, Eiveshutz and H. H, Welch of Pamanint by J. C. Irwin· J. S. Broder of Deep Springs and Edward Walker of Olancha were the only ones of the regular committee unrepresented A full discussion was had of the proposed adoption of the Crawford County plan of making nominations, which was participated in by the several candidates Judge John Hannah, J. W. P. Laird, John S. McGee, Wils W. Yandell, J. R Eldred, J. J. Gunn, Thomas Crough, J. J. Moore and W. L. Hunter. All expressed themselves content with the plan but it was generally considered too late now to put it into operation, so the matter was lost by a vote of one for, to thirteen against. The call for the primaries and nomoinating convention as finally agreed upon and ordered appears in full elsewhere. It will be seen that the primaries occur on the 13th prox., the day of the Republican County Convention, and the nominating convention will assemble here a week later, on Wednesday, the 22d.

FERTILE SOIL.—Ten tons of potatoes were raised from three quarters of an acre of ground near Independence. These potatoes were raised by Mr. Arthur Tanner, and sold for two cents per pound. The weight was not estimated, the potatoes were put in sacks and weighed. If any one knows of greater fertility than this they will confer a favor by making known the facts.

DEEP SPRING DISTRICT,
August 23, 1884.

Mr. Editor:—Permit me through the columns of the INDEPENDENT to answer two questions that are frequently asked to wit: When will Mr. McMurray get his furnace finished? Where will he get ore to supply it? Without permission asked of Mr. McMurray I will take upon me to answer these questions. A few days since I learned that hindrances and embarrasments have now been so far overcome that the work will be finished and the furnace ready for work during the next three or four weeks. Mr. McMurray has had a great many obstacles to overcome, but by patient perseverance he has succeeded in removing them all, and will surely bring the work to a close by the time stated. The mineral resources of Deep Spring district are now so far developed, that a full supply of ore for the furnace is assured from that source alone. Mr. McMurray is fully convinced that from Deep Spring mines he will get ore enough to keep his furnace in blast constantly, day and night, and need not go out side of that district for one pound of ore.

Within six miles of the furnace very large bodies of ore are now in sight ranging in grade from 30 ounces to 60 ounces per ton in silver, and from 33 to 65 per cent lead. These ores can be delivered at the furnace at a total cost of less than five dollars per ton. In addition to this there are other ore bodies of unascertained extent, that assay all the way from $25, to $250 per ton, and all carry more or less lead. All the ores of the district, so far as known, are base, and if they can be worked here pay handsome profits to the miners and smelters. There is no reason why the furnace should stop one day in six months for want of ore. Speaking for myself, I will guarantee to deliver at the furnace ten tons of ore per week for the first sixty days, and after that time five tons of ore per day, that will average 40 ounces silver per ton, and 45 per cent a lead. There are other mines here that will do as well, if not better. In less than twelve months from the time when the first cloud of smoke shall be seen to leave the furnace, there will be men enough in these mountains to make a home market for the produce of the farms in the valley and such an era of prosperity will ensue as this part of Inyo has not hitherto known. The forgoing is not written to advertise, but simply to make known interesting facts.

LETTER FROM ROUND VALLEY.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT.—We perceive that you are endeavoring to disseminate correct facts and figures concerning Inyo's agricultural and mineral resources. "Notes by the Way" and "Inyo's Past, Present and Future" are interesting articles. Old fossils like myself, who have resided in this region for twenty years, will verify your statements relative to the past and present, while we earnestly hope that your predictions as to the future will in due course of time be fully substantiated. Observing your earnestness and enthusiasm—(in fact, little can be accomplished without enthusiasm)—it is our duty to assist you financially and otherwise.

OUR CROPS

Of small grains are fair. Although some farmers entertained the idea, some time ago, of "immense" crops, we will find after threshing, that the increase on last year's will be slight. Of course there is a much larger acreage of wheat this year. The threshing machine has just commenced operations; still the principal crops of the Valley will not be ready for the thresher for a week yet. Several stacks of wheat have already been threshed and floured on Bishop Creek. Dugan and Blair say they have made about thirty tons of new flour, and it is all sold.

Small fruit and apricots have been abundant; plums, peaches, etc., will soon appease our thirsty souls.

OUR MONO MARKET.

The northern portion of this valley is in Mono county. For several years considerable feed, flour, butter, hogs, etc., have been shipped to Bodie, Mono Mills, Mill Creek and Mammoth.

During the last few weeks Mr. Evans has hauled abont thirty tons of feed and flour to the Mono Mills, bringing back lumber, posts, shakes, shingles or firewood.

Last Saturday we met Mr. H. L. Childs, present managing editor of the Bodie Free Press. He states that the late mining discovery in Bodie will still keep the town brisk and lively, thereby affording us a good market, hence we are strongly attracted to our Mono friends; their dollars being very acceptable to help us pay heavy taxes, while they receive equivalents in farm products.

MAMMOTH

Is not entirely dead. Several men worked there during last winter, and are still working, taking out ore, and at present running an arastra. Mr. Townsend passed through here the other day with some bullion for shipment. He predicts a "boom" for old Mammoth yet.

LAUREL HILL.

Mr. Maxwell, of Laurel Hill District, was in Round Valley to-day. This gentlemen, with others, has been operating in Laurel (this district is southeast of Mammoth, and overlooking Long Valley) for six years. He says that they have ore there assaying from $25 to $100 per ton, and some of it must and will be "squirched" before long.

ROUND VALLEY MINING MEN.

Messrs. Brooks and Sherwin, of this valley, are jubilant just now over a new discovery called the "New Boom." The organization of a new mining district is being agitated, which will take in the old French District, Rock Creek mine, and all the detached hills south of Round Valley. Should the "New Boom" prove valuable, dry goods will become cheap, and broom corn on the hill sold for tun.

POLITICS

Remarkably quiet. We know of no aspirants for office in this quiet vale. The height of our ambition is to raise good crops, (and some babies), and obtain fair, living prices therefor. so as enable us to pay big store bills and heavy taxes. A spirit of indifference prevails. Heretofore, three or four or half a dozen would constitute the priary, and in some instances, no primaries at all were held in this valley. This will probably apply to most precincts throughout the county. Let us wake up and proclaim for good government, which of course implies efficient officials. Being that the primaries and nominating conventions are approaching, we should attend in goodly numbers at the primaries, particularly, and select good men as delegates; also discuss and analyze the merits and demerits of the various aspirants for offices. Good timber is abundant. Let us declare at the primaries for sober, honest and competent men to run at least county machine.

Several parties in this vicinity are desfrous that you should republish in THE INDEPENDENT the full text of the "County Government bill" as passed by the last Legislature. RUSTICUS.

NO MARKET.—A few days ago a lady in town sent her little girl to a gardener for some blackberries. The lady sent a dollar to pay for the fruit, but the gardener said he would not take the trouble to pick the berries. It is too bad that we are so much troubled with "No market."

BLOODY FLUX—A Susanville correspondent of the Reno Gazette says: "That frightful desease, the bloody flux has made its appearence in town again among the children, Three deaths occured in the past week, which is a large mortality list for this place. Many families have taken their children and gone to the woods "camping." Quite a number are down with the disease; it is feared more deaths will occur." For years past Susanville has been regularly visited by this plague, and with as equally fatal results. Every Summer there is a slaughter of the innocents, and regularly families take to the woods with their little ones to save their lives. A single glance at the water used in the town would reveal the cause of the plague, Yet nothing is done to get better. In addition to the loss of lives enough property has been destoyed in the town by fire during the past five years, to have furnished an abundent supply of pure water for half-a-dozen such towns as Susanville.

PAINFUL ACCIDENT.—While at work on a thrashing machine at Big Pine last Monday, a young man named John Counts received serious injury. By some means not clearly explained one of his feet was caught between the large spur wheel and the pinion on the shaft, and taken entirely through. The foot at the instep was ground to a pulp, the bones being all broken into little pieces. Doctor Stevenson was telegraphed for, hnd hastened from Independence as soon as possible. Not much could be done for the poor unfortunate man on the spot; the doctor had him brought to the hospital here. The doctor is doing oll in his power to save at least a part of the poor fellow's foot but is not yet certain of the result, and fears that an amputation will have to be made above the ankle. It is some mitigation of this unfortunate affair that the sufer should be in the hands of one so kind and competent as Dr. Stevenson.

APPORTIONMENT.—The following was sent in by the School Superintendent in time to secure insertion in last week's issue, but was overlooked.

LONE PINE,
Aug. 15, 1884.

Dear Sir: I have this day apportioned the August State apportionment of school moneys to the various school funds of this county as follows:

Schools	School Fund	Library
Bishop Creek	$121 05	$13 43
Big Pine	60 52	6 73
Darwin	60 52	6 73
Independence	60 52	6 73
Irving	60 52	6 73
Lone Pine	121 05	13 43
Mitten	60 52	6 73
Round Valley	60 52	6 73
Union	60 52	6 73
Warm Springs	60 52	6 73
Total	$726 26	$80 70

Respectfully,
CHAS. GROVES,
School Sup't.

DISTRICE FAIR.—The Fifth Annual Fair of the Sixth Agricultural District will open at Los Angeles October 13th and continue to the 18th inclusive. There is reason to believe that many people in this county do not know that Inyo is a part of that district. It is safe to say not a single person in the county ever went to Los Angeles for the purpose of attending one of these fairs. In fact Los Angeles is so far distant from this county and the cost to get there so great that so far as getting any benefit from the fair is concerned, our people might as well be connected with a district in Utah or Dacota. This is equally true of our neighbor counties, Mono and Alpine. All three of these counties are effectually barred out from participating in the fairs of the districts with which they are connected. The vast Sierra mountain range is an almost impassible barrier that will forever prevent the people of the counties named from taking part in the agricultural fairs as now arranged, or deriving any benefit whatever from them. The easiest way for a citizen of any of the counties named to reach the fair of his district would be by the C. & C. road to the Mound House, in Nev; thence by the V. & T. road to Reno; thence by the C. P. road to San Francisco, and from that city the traveler could take his choice of making an ocean voyage by steamer or traveling hundreds of miles by rail. The mere cost of such a journey precludes all reasonable probability of farmers or miners having goods conveyed to the fairs to make an exhibit of the productive resources of the several counties, while the time required makes the conveyance of most fruits, or even live stock, utterly impracticable. The three counties named make a territory large enough, and have sufficient resources to make an independent district. The establishment of such a district would do much to stimulate their undeveloped resources and promote the more rapid settling up of vast tracts of land as good as any in the State, and that now wait only for the hand of industry to make them blossom like the rose. If the facts barely hinted at here, and many other cogent reasons not now named, were clearly stated in the legislature of the State, no reasonable body of men would hesitate for one hour to pass a bill establishing a new agricultural district. An appropriation of say two thousand dollars from the State would fairly establish the new Association, and this small amount would soon be reimbursed to the State by the increased value of property, and the great stimulus that rivalry to excel would surely create. These counties have so long been isolated from the activity, push an energy that so distinguishes all other parts of the State, that every available agency is needed to rouse them up, and make the people sensible of the immense resources that bounteous nature has scattered around them with such lavish hand. The wisdom of legislators, the resources of a State, cannot be more worthily employed than in promoting measures that will lead to the increase of homes where smiling plenty is the presiding genius, where virtuous women will grow up, and brave men, to be a wall of fire around their much loved land. The new Agricultural district can easily be established if the people of these counties show they are in earnest.

WE SHOULD BE REPRESENTED.—In the production of fine fruits Inyo is not second to any other county in the State. A most creditable exhibition could be made at the State Fair, and our fruit raisers should see that it is done. It is a too common experience, that persons attending the Fair, after examining the various products of other counties, say, "Why, if I had only thought of it, I could have brought better samples from home." Now if we cannot beat all the other countries, we can at least show as fine fruits and grains as the best of them, and the opportunity should not be lost of making known what we can do. In minerals, Inyo could make a rich and beautiful exhibit. Let us wake up and make our existence known.

POLITICS. — Attention is invited to the advertisement of the Democratic County Central Committe, making a call for a county Convention, and apportionment of delegates from the various precincts. Also the advertisement of Republican meetings at Bishop Creek, Lone Pine, and Independence next Saturday.

DIED

HARRIS—At San Francisco, August 29, 1884, Mrs. Esther Harris, aged 77 years.

—Mrs. Harris was the mother of our townsman, Mr. I. Harris, of the firm of Harris & Rhine. She was a native of Prussia, and, with her husband, who survives her, came to the United States twenty years ago and settled at New Orleans. Thirteen years ago Mr. and Mrs. Harris moved to California. Death was quite sudden and was caused by an affection of the heart.

VERDICT FOR DEFENDENT.

'George,' said his father, with a countenance more in sorrow than in anger. 'George, some one has cut down my favorite cherry tree. Do you know anything about it?'

Young Washington did not quail before his father's accusing glance. He looked straight in the eye, and an expression of honest resolution gleamed in the clear eyes and frank countenance.

'My father,' he said, 'I will not deceive you. I know something about it, but that is not the issue at all. You have, in effect, charged me with being privy to the destruction of your favorite tree. Now, the question is, since you have filed information and laid this charge against me, what do you know about it?'

'I know that you have a hatchet,' replied his father sternly. I know what a boy with a hatchet is liable to do. I know that some one has cut down my favorite cherry tree—'

'Stop right there,' interrupted the future father of his country. 'You say this was your tree.'

'I do.'

'How came it yours?'

'I planted it.'

'Now, sir, are you certain it was not on this farm before you came here?"

'No, sir, it was not.'

'Tnen why did you say so.'

'Why did I say what?'

'That's right; evade, quibble, crawl out of it somehow. All right. If you don't want to answer a plain, fair, simple question you don't have to.'

'But I didn't say it was on the farm when I came here.'

'Oh, very well; deny it. Is there any other retraction you would like to make?'

'I don't retract anything. I merely declare that I never said the tree was on the farm when I came here.'

'Oh, well, father, don't get excited and talk loud. You may go back on your entire statement if you wish. Perhaps you will next try to make us believe that this farm wasn't here, either, when you came."

"Why, of course it was here. I don't—" Didn't you say a moment ago that it wasn't?"

"That was the tree!"

"Ah, yes; you turn it off on the tree now. You ve been talking about the tree all this time, then?"

"Why, certainly I have."

'Then you just admited that it was here when you came here?'

'No. my son; that was the farm.

'But not half a questions ago you admitted that. You said in these very words, why of course it was here, did you not?'

'I said those words, but I was speaking of the farm."

"And yet you said but this very moment that all this time you had been talking about the tree.'

'It is useless to continue this examination. My father, of all human vices lying is the commonest, and I doubt not it is the worst. It blunts our moral sensibilities; it leads us to distort and exaggerate simple statements os facts; it blurs our powers of intelligent observation, until even a man of ordinary scholarship and intellectual development is unable to tell whether he is talking about a farm or a cherry tree. The complaint is dismissed. I doubt very much if you can even establish the fact that you ever owned a cherry tree. Go to the nursery, and if you intend planting a tree in the place of the one you imagine you have lost, you had better take a man with you to show you the ground, lest you might plant the tree in your hat. You may go.'

Sadly the old man turned away, but he told the man who helped him to plant the new tree that if he had a hundred boys he wouldn't let another one of them study law.

How Lincoln Won His Bet.

An amusing incident in the unwritten history of Abraham Lincoln is told by the Hon. Ward H. Lamon, of this city.

While the gentlemen were law partners in Illinois, and before Lincoln was thought of for President of the United States, they happened to visit an agricultural fair in an inland town of Tennessee.

Lincoln was in high spirits and seemed bent on fun. While casting about for such amusement as the exhibition afforded Lincoln discovered an attraction in the shape of a turned-down flour barrel containing a badger.

"Fifty dollars for a dog that will haul the badger out of the barrel," shouted the red-faced man who owned the outfit. "Fifty dollars, I say, to the dog that can haul out the badger."

There were a few takers of the badger man's offer, but the luckless dog owners who invested 25 cents in the experiment invariably lost in the speculation, for the badger's teeth were sharp and every dog that entered its stronghold came out in a jiffy, while the ferocious animal inside held the fort and grinned all over.

Mr. Lincoln hit upon a happy thought. Taking Ward to one side they found a lank countryman with a still lanker mastiff.

"Want to make $50 with that dog?" asked Lincoln.

"Course I do," replied the hayseed.

The dog was bartered for, and as Lincoln approached the badger man, elbowing his way through the crowd, he said:

"I'll invest a quarter in your game, sir."

The badger operator looked at Lincoln's hungry dog and smiled as he took the silver quarter.

Lincoln caught the dog and led it up to the barrel. Hastily grabbing the mastiff, he threw it into the opening t'other end first. There was a pause only of a second, and then followed a lively scrape inside the barrel.

"Hold on, there," cried the manager, "Fair play—"

But he was too late with his remonstrance. Out sprang the badly frightened dog with the badger sticking to his hindquarters. The crowd parted, and away went the dog and badger into the inner field of the race-track. The badger stuck like a brother, teams ran away, women fainted and the crowd roared. Lincoln fairly went into spasms of mirth, the fun was so enjoyable.

The countryman owning the dog was paralyzed, as was the badger owner, who set up a great howl and was mad enough to fight.

"Produce your $50," said Lincoln to the badger keeper.

"Foul play, foul play," cried the chagrined gamester, "and I'll never pay it."

Here is where Lamon came in service. Catching the badger's friend by the neck, he cried:

"Give up the $50 or I'll wallup you."

Lamon's herculean proportions were too argumentary to be trifled with, and the money was handed to Mr. Lincoln, who in turn gave it to the countryman.

The dog was well paid for, and the badger business closed up for want of a badger.—[Denver Tribune.

What is Man?

Man that is born of woman is small potatoes and few in a hill.

He riseth up to day and flourisheth like a rag weed, and to-morrow or the day after the undertaker has him in a box.

He goeth forth in the morning warbling like a lark, and is knocked out one round in two seconds.

In the midst of life he is in debt, and the tax collector persueth him wherever he goeth.

The banister of life is full of splinters; and he slideth down it with considerable rapidity.

He walketh forth in the bright sunlight to absorb ozone, and meeteth the bank teller with a sight draft for $357.

He cometh home at eventide and meeteth the wheelbarrow in his path and the wheelbarrow riseth up and smiteth him to the earth and runneth one of its legs into his ears

In the gentle spring time he putteth on his summer clothes, and a blizzard striketh him far away from home, filleth him with woe and rheumatism.

He layeth up riches in a bank, and the president speculates in margins and goeth to Canada for his health.

In the autumn he putteth on his winter trousers, and a wasp that abideth in them filleth him full of intense excitement.

He sitteth up all night to get the returns from Ohio, and in the end learneth that the other fellows have carried it.

He buyeth a watch-dog, and when he cometh home late from lodge the dog treeth him, and sitteth beneath him until rosy morn.

He goeth to the horse-trot and betteth his money on the brown mare, and the bay gelding with the blaze face wineth.

He marrieth an heiress with a wart on her nose; the next day her paternal ancestor goeth under, with few assets and great liabilites and cometh home to live with his beloved son-in-law.

Hints for Hot Weather.

Don't shake the hornet's nest to see if any of the family are at home. Don't go near a draft; if a draft comes toward you, run away. A slight draft is most dangerous. Don't blow the gun your grandfather carried in the war of 1812. It is more dangerous now than it was then. Don't hold a wasp by the other end while you thaw it out in front of the stove to see if it is alive. Don't try to persuade a bulldog to give up a yard of which it is in possession. Possession to a bulldog is ten points of the law.

WOULD WE BE WILLING?

Would we be willing if the summons came
To counter march this life, to live the same
Once more?
Say pain and joy, and poverty and wealth,
Good days and dark days, illness and health
Lived o'er?

The new life just as the old had been;
To find like friendship and the viler men,
As yesterday!
And would it pay? Life, like a play,
Is relished as we go, from day to day—
But stay!

Not many a play is worthy of recall!
The actors one by one come on, and curtains fall;
Then go away;
And shifting scenes, and music long and drear,
Grates on the list'ner's weary ear.
We dread the play!

And so as children tire of toys and sleep,
At close of life comes less and less to keep Us here always.
And then so many that have gone before,
And carried hopes to a brighter shore,
Are saying, come!

Those absent long, with anxious gaze,
Leading and lighting the darkest ways,
Would call us home!
Would we be willing to refuse their prayer?
Ah, no! Some day we'll greet them there—
Some day.

WANTED—A WIFE

Jack Hornby, of Brazenose, College, Oxford, had just finished his usual after-breakfast pipe, on the summer term, 1880 when his attention was arrested by a sharp rap at the door, immediately followed by the entrance of the well-dressed person of his college friend, Methven.

'Come along in,' said Hornby, 'and light yourself a pipe.'

'No, thank ye; can't stop,' replied Methven, 'as I have a lot to do this morning; but I thought I'd just run across and tell you a bit of news, I have just arranged a glorious hoax, at the expense, I need hardly say, of old Crofton; he has become too 'cute lately to be caught by our old time-honored jokes, so I have arranged the following plan: A week ago I inserted in the agony columns of the 'Morning Advertiser' a glowing matrimonial advertisement, in which I stated that the advertiser, who was handsome, rich and all that sort of thing, desired to meet with a pretty and accomplished girl with a view to matrimony. All applicants were to send their photographs, the replies to be sent to H. C., No. 151; St. Giles', Oxford—that's the house where my scout lives, and so, of course, I told him to bring me any letters thus addressed. I got no reply for a day or two, but four days ago I received a letter from a damsel, who described herself as young, handsome and accomplished, who enclosed me the photograph of a very pretty girl, and ended by asking me when and where I should meet her in town, and signed herself Miss L. Bernard, Piccadilly Circus Post-office. She also expressed a desire to have the advertiser's photograph so I promptly sent her that of old Crofton, which he had lately given me, and said I would write to-night when and where we'd meet; so my scheme is to somehow induce Crofton to meet this girl. She will, of course recognize him by the photograph I have sent, will probably rush into his arms, the Kangaroo will be overpowered, and there will be an interesting denoument. Now Hornby, don't you think that a magnificent piece of strategy?'

'No, indeed I don't,' said Hornby. 'I think It's an infernal shame and what's more, I have half a mind to go and tell the Kangaroo of the hoax.'

Oh, come now,' said Methven, 'you'd never do that, Jack; I know. Well, I can't stay any longer, so good-bye for the present.'

There is not the very slightest doubt that if the fates had not intervened, Hornby would have gone straight to Crofton and warned him of the impending hoax, and this story would never have been written; but, as it happened, no sooner had Methven left Hornby's rooms than in rushed the Secretary of the College Cricket Club in a state of breathless anxiety. There was a match a 11:30. it was now 11 o'clock and he could get together eight men, so Hornby was promptly enlisted, and by the time the match was over Methven and his scheme had entirely faded from his not too retentive memory. Methven, in the meantime had gone straight to Crofton's rooms. Now, this Crofton, who was about to fall a victim to Methven's wiles, was the son of a large Australian sheep farmer, and had come up to Brazenose the previous October. Like most colonists who have not been to school in England, he was very simple and unsophisticated; and though the Kangaroo, as he was generally called, was very popular, he was constantly being made the victim of small practical jokes, most of which were originated by Methven; who was the professional hoaxer of Brazenose. He alwaysfor gave them heartily, and joined in the laugh himself. However, his one year's residence in college had opened his eyes a little, and being naturally anything but a fool, his friends found it not quite so easy to take him in now, as it used to be, and several attempts having lately failed, Methven, to sustain his dwindling reputation as a joker, had concocted the plan he had just disclosed to Hornby. He found the genial giant busily packing his traps ready for going down next day. After chatting a moment or two the tempter began:

'As you are going to town tomorrow, I want you to do me a little favor. I promised to meet a girl, a cousin of mine, to-morrow. We had each got an order from the House of Commons, and I was to have escorted her, and as we meant to have had a little lunch together at Lucas' before we went in, we had arranged to meet at quarter past 2 at the Westminster bridge landing-pier, that being a place where we could not possibly miss one another. Now, as bad luck will have it, the Dean has sent for me to see him after collections, so I can't get up to town in time. Unfortunately I can't let the girl know, because she's away on a visit for a day or two to some friends, whose address I have forgotten, and she won't return home till she's been to the House. Now, I don't want the poor child to wait an hour for me, so would you mind going there about quarter past 2 and telling her I can't come because of that beastly Dean?'

'Oh, not a bit,' said Crofton. 'I should be delighted.'

'Well, remember, Westminster landing at quarter past 2. And now, good-by, and a pleasant 'long' to you.' Methven, highly elated at the result of his scheme, immediately wrote a note to Miss L. Bernard that H. C. would meet her at the Westminster Bridge pier at a quarter past two punctually, and that she must come and speak to him if she saw him first.

The next morning Crofton, having undergone that dread ordeal called 'collections,' having been bullied alternately by the principal, the Dean and the senior tutor, hurried off to the station and just managed to catch the midday express up to town. On his arrival, leaving his traps at a hotel, he rushed off to the Westminster Bridge landing pier and arrived within a minute or two of the appointed time. There were but few people on the Bridge when he arrived, and certainly no one resembling in the slightest degree the photograph of Mr. Methven's cousin. He looked up and down; no—there was only one young lady there, and she was not in the least like the photograph. She was standing close to the ticket office holding the hand of a little boy of ten or so—and she seemed to watch Crofton with an amused smile as he impatiently walked up and down, looking now at his watch and now at the parliament clock-tower. The little boy in the meantime, getting tired of waiting, slipped away and began playing with a little dog that was vaguely roaming about. The young lady did not miss him, and when Crofton happened to turn he saw the child, in trying to avoid a sudden bound of the dog, scramble and fall over the pier into the river. The child yelled, the girl shrieked, and the dog barked for sympathy, but Crofton, who fortunately had plenty of presence of mind and was a good swimmer, dived quietly into the water, caught up the child in a couple of strokes, and in a very short time restored his dripping burden to the young lady. She was of course most grateful to him for having saved the life of her little brother, (for so the child turned out to be), and, as Crofton put them in a cab she asked him to call on them at home and give her parents an opportunity of personally thanking him. Crofton at first pooh-poohed the idea of thus being made a hero of, but there was a pleading look in her pretty eyes that quite overcame his scruples; and having ascertained that her father was a Mr. West, and lived at No: 136 Cavendish Square, he promised to call there the following afternoon. And as there was still no sign of Miss Bernard, and as he was dripping wet, he hailed a passing cab and returned to his hotel.

The next day according to his promise, he called at No. 136 Cavendish Square, and was received most kindly by Miss West, his acquaintance of yesterday, and her mother, an old lady, who thanked him most volubly for having saved her dear Bertie's life, who, she added, was none the worse for the ducking, and was at that moment in bed with a mustard plaster on his breast and a basin of gruel by his side (probably thinking the drowning would have been infinitely preferable to the doctoring).

Of course Crofton was invited to stay to dinner so as to meet Mr. West, who did did not return until after six o'clock from business. About that time he arrived; a fine, cheery fellow he was, and right heartily did he welcome his new acquaintance. After dinner, as he and Harry were discussing a bottle of '34 port, Mr. West found out from the simple-hearted fellow that he was a native of Australia, and that, though he was happy enough during term time with his college chums, he found it very dull during the vacation, having but few relations and friends in the old country; and so Mr. West, liking the honest, manly lad, and feeling, of course, intensely grateful to him for having saved his child from drowning, invited him to spend a month with him at his shooting-lodge in Scotland. Crofton, being passionately devoted to sport, snapped at the offer, and so it was arranged that he should go up to Mr. West's shooting lodge in Cromarty on the 11th of August. To this day he swears that the month he spent at Balbriggan Lodge was the happiest time of his life—good sport, nice men in the house, and ah! far best of all, the society of Lillian West. At first it struck him that she looked upon him for some reason or other as rather a puppy, which considerably surprised him, for whatever his faults might be, conceit was not one of them. But as time went on, and she had plenty of opportunity of seeing what a modest, sterling fellow he was, (besides being the best shot of the party), the feeling seemed to pass away and soon gave place to a sincere regard. Sunday afternoon rambles through the heather, cosy chats in the gloaming after dinner, lessons in the mysteries of "go-bang" and chess, have brought together less susceptible hearts than those of Harry Crofton and Lilian West, and the day before he was returning to England he plucked up courage, proposed, and, to his delight, was accepted. The next morning, however, just before starting, home, Lilian came up to him and said:

'Harry, dear, before you go I want you to forgive me for the silly joke I played you about that advertisement.'

'Advertisement!' said he, 'what advertisement?"

"Why, the one, of course, you put in the 'Morning Advertiser.'"

Crofton looked very mystified, and again shook his head.

'Oh, come now, Harry,' replied Lilian, 'it is not a bit of use your trying to deceive me. Do you mean to say you didn't put this advertisement in the 'Morning Advertiser?'" and so saying she drew from her card-case a small newspaper cutting and handed it to Crofton. It ran as follows:

WANTED—A WIFE.—THE ADVERTiser, who is strikingly handsome, very accomplished and extremely rich, wishes to meet with a young lady with a view to matrimony; she must be good-looking, amiable, and accomplished; applicants must forward their photograph, and add ess H. C., 151 St. Giles', Oxford.

'Never saw it before in my life,' said Crofton.

'And you never wrote this?' continued Miss West, handing the last letter from H. C. to Miss L. Bernard, appointing the place and time of meeting.

'Most certainly not. It's not a bit like my handwriting. Couldn't write so well if I tried for a month.'

"Well, Harry, you must at least own that this is your photograph.'

'Good gracious, yes!' replied Crofton; 'that's mine, sure enough; but who on earth could have sent it? and why to you, of all people?'

'Oh,' said Lilian, 'I'm afraid you will think me very silly, but when I read that advertisement, I longed, I simply yearned—for I'm very curious, Harry, as you'll soon find out—to see in the flesh the human being who could be so consummately conceited as to frame an advertisement like that; and so I replied to it, directing my letter from the post office at Piccadilly Circus and signing myself by a fictitious name. I also sent the photograph of a pretty little maid I once had, and next day received the photograph and letter you have just seen. So with Bertie as my companion, feeling sure that the advertiser couldn't possibly mistake me for the original of Parker's photograph, I went to the Westminster landing-pier at the appointed time. Imagine my delight, then, when I saw you, the original of the photograph, stalking up and down the pier, apparently awaiting the faithless damsel. But, Harry dear, if you did not go to meet me, why in the world did you go to the pier at that very time?'

'I went on a commission for a college friend of mine, named Methven.'

'What! Mr. Methven of Brazenose?' said she.

'Why, yes; is he a friend of yours?'

'Oh, I only met him when staying in the country last Christmas; and I think, Harry, he liked me better than I did him.'

'Well,' continued Crofton, 'I went there to meet a cousin of his, and to give her a message from him; but I have a shrewd idea that this is one of his practical jokes he is always playing.'

'But tell me, how were you to know this young lady, Harry?' said Lilian.

'He showed me a photograph by which I was to recognize her.'

'Was it that of a pretty girl with a large hat and feather, and a fan in her hand?' said Lilian, with a smile.

'The very same,' said Crofton.

'Then, Harry, you are quite right; it was a practical joke, for that was Parker's photograph which I sent to the mysterious Mr. H. C. And now, Harry dear, it's not a bit of use getting angry about it, for we were both sold a little, and it has ended very happily for you and me; and so we will make a promise not to chaff one another in the future for the parts we have played in the strange little 'Comedy of Errors.''

I need hardly say that Crofton sealed the bargain with a kiss.

When Harry next returned to Brazenose the October term had begun. Port Meadow was flooded, the elms outside St. John's were rapidly losing their leaves, and the creeper on Harry's porch was in all the glory of its autumn foliage. Crofton arrived, first of the term, just in time for 'hall,' and as he was finishing his dinner, the scout who waited on the third year table handed him the following brief epistle scrawled on the back of the dinner bill:

Dear Kangaroo: Come to my rooms directly after "hall." Yours ever, J. HORNBY.

So after "hall" Crofton went straight to Hornby's room and found him uncorking a bottle of college port, and over the bottle, soothed by a fragrant weed, Crofton told the story of his love—the whole tale—how it happened and what a very lucky dog he was. He had just finished the narrative, when in walked Methven, just arrived.

'How d'ye do, Jack? Hillo, Kangaroo, how are you, old chap?" he began.

But, somehow, the look on Crofton's face Methven had never seen before, and what's more, didn't like it.

However, he continued: "Well, did you meet my cousin, eh? Come, come, old chap, you really must forgive me it was a beastly shame, I own.'

'Now, look here,' said Crofton, quietly—and there was an ugly look in his eyes and a firmness in his jaw that made Methven unconsciously creep near the door—'I don't want to have a row with any man, much less in Jack Hornby's rooms. But I tell you plainly, I think it was awful low of you to take advantage of my good nature in the way you did. I strongly advise you for the future, if you like a whole skin, not to try the game on again. I may tell you, your scheme entirely failed, and it's entirely through your attempt at a hoax I have become engaged to the nicest little girl in England.'

'Really,' said Methven, with a sneer, 'then I think the best you can do is to introduce me, as she may possibly like to make the acquaintance of the unconscious author of her happiness.'

'Perhaps she might,' replied Crofton, quietly, 'if she hadn't unfortunately made it before. Good night, Jack" and so saying he left the room.

'There, Methven,' said Hornby, 'I knew quite well some row would come of this hoax of yours.'

'Well, tell me what happened, Jack, if you know.'

Thereupon Hornby told the whole story from beginning to end. When he had finished, Methven said:

"I wonder who the girl was, and when and where she met me.'

'Of course I can't tell you the latter,' said Hornby, as he walked up to the chimney-piece to refill his pipe, 'but her name, if I remember rightly, is Miss Lilian West.'

Hornby heard a sharp groan, and on looking around saw Methven as white as a sheet, with his face buried in his hands.

'Good God! man, what's up?' cried Hornby.

'Oh, Jack,' said Methven, 'that's the very girl I loved myself. I met her last Christmas in the country, and I would have sold my very soul for her. And now,' he continued with a sob, 'and now she's lost forever.'

With these words he walked out, leaving Hornby to ponder deeply on the strange irony of fate.

Two years have rolled on. Lilian West is now the wife of Henry Crofton, B. A., of Brazenose College, Oxford, and Methven has long since come to the conclusion that there are safer modes of playing practical jokes on one's friends than by inserting in the papers fictitious matrimonial advertisements. — [J. COUNTY GOVERNMENT BILL.

Several requests have been made by subscribers to the INDEPENDENT that we publish the County Government Bill in the columns of the paper. This cannot be done, the text of the bill makes a pamphlet of sixty-three pages, and would occupy far more space than could possibly be spared for that purpose. An examination of the bill reveals some remarkable features, that are especially interesting to citizens of this county. The figures below give the gross amount paid to County Clerk, Sheriff, Recorder, Auditor, Treasurer, Tax-Collector, Assessor, District Attorney and School Superintendent in each of the counties named; and also the class of each county.

A comparison of the population and assessed valuation of these counties leaves one utterly at a loss to discover the reason for such an arrangement of salaries. Compare, for instance, the figures for Napa, Santa Cruz, Amador, Marin and a few others, with the figures for Inyo, and the result cannot fail to fill one with astonishment.

County	Class	Pop.	P'd to officers
Amador	19	11,386	$14,600
Calaveras	28	9,094	11,900
El Dorado	23	10,685	16,300
Fresno	26	9,478	18,700
Lake	37	6,586	10,340
Marin	20	11,935	17,700
Merced	39	5,654	18,900
Monterey	20	11,302	17,700
Napa	13	13,325	18,600
San Benito	40	5,584	11,900
San Bernardino	34	7,782	15,200
San Luis Obispo	27	9,142	17,100
Santa Barbara	25	9,523	18,700
Santa Cruz	15	12,801	13,200
Sierra	36	6,023	12,375
Siskiyou	32	8,010	13,300
Sutter	41	5,159	11,600
Tuolumne	33	7,848	12,000
Ventura	41	5,073	11,600
Inyo	46	2,923	20,500

The representatives of the county who fixed the salaries must have given their constituents credit for more generosity than ordinary business judgment.

A comparison of the resources from which the several counties derive their revenue will perhaps make more apparent the extravagant way in which Inyo pays for services. The latest reports from the State Board of Equalization of the assessed valuation of all the counties of the State is not at hand. The The following figures are from a former report by the Board, but as the increase in several of these counties has been more rapid than in Inyo since this report was made, a comparison made on the wealth of the counties now would be still more unfavorable for us. For all kinds of property, real and personal, the values given in the report quoted are as follows:

Amador	$2,674,409
Calaveras	1,829,865
El Dorado	2,331,350
Fresno	6,213,968
Lake	2,122,975
Marin	7,875,365
Merced	5,712,657
Monterey	7,105,272
Napa	7,970,925
San Benito	3,674,608
San Bernardino	2,577,814
San Luis Obispo	4,163,176
Santa Barbara	4,478,827
Santa Cruz	5,617,553
Siskiyou	2,643,252
Sutter	3,906,197
Tuolumne	1,649,611
Inyo	935,851

Comment here on these figures is unnecessary; every tax-payer can make his own comments. The approach of an election has been chosen as a good time to call the attention of the people to the foregoing facts. It ought to be kept in mind, however, that this election cannot affect the salaries of the present officers nor their immediate successors.

The assessed valuation of the county for the present year is $1,339,630. This is a large increase since the valuation given above was made; but, as already stated, the other counties have also increased in value, some of them in even greater proportion, so that if the comparison of expense was made on the latest valuation in each of the counties, the result would be not less unfavorable to us.

SPEAKING of lands along the foothills on the other side of the mountains, the Sacramento Bee says much of it can be bought "at prices less than twenty-five dollars an acre. Much of this foothill land, it is true, requires clearing, which sometimes adds materially to the cost of the land. [But yet, cost of clearing considered, it is safe to say that almost any of the unimproved land in the region named can be bought and put in thorough order for planting at a much less cost than fifty dollars an acre." The Bee intimates that the land would be cheap at fifty dollars an acre, and beyond doubt, so it would; but here in Owens Valley, better land than any in the foothills—land that will produce not only the finest of fruits, but of grains and vegetables—can be had for one-third of that cost, and there is no clearing needed; it is now ready for the plough.

Two miners, named Stearns and Wilkins, have sold a copper mine up in Mono for $35,000. The vein is said to be five feet wide.

UNITED STATES Senator Henry B. Anthony, died at Providence, Rhode Island, last Tuesday.

THE gambling fraternity will be duly authorized by law to practice their arts of robbery at Sacramento during the State Fair. The inducement for the city authorities to become pals of the robbers is a bribe, in the form of a license. It is thought that this will amount to about $12,000.

TO BE powerful a party must be pure. A bad man cannot be the hearty promoter of good measures. The first duty as well as the best policy for any party, is to select the best man for office. To let any other consideration than that of fitness of the candidate for the office control in making nominations, is to court deserved defeat.

THE increase of large sugar plantations on the Sandwich islands is rapidly destroying the natives. Large land-holdings are ruinous to any country; land monopoly is the worst of all monopolies. The largest number of farms in the hands of actual farmers, not only promotes the greatest good to the greatest number, but is the greatest element of strength in a nation.

IF an army from any foreign country were to land anywhere on our soil with hostile intent, instantly there would spring to arms so many brave and patriotic citizens that soon the invaders would be annihilated. Yet we tamely submit to have the soil taken from us and from our children by a band of foreign sneak thieves, whose only interest in the country is confined to what they can steal. In several States, and all the Territories, those thieves are making fraudulent entries of millions of acres of the best lands, or boldly enclosing the lands without making any form of entry whatever. The Government does not appear to be doing anything to check these frauds, and in several instances the land agents are accused of being in collusion with the thieves. The lands that would be defended to the death from an open, foreign foe, should not be tamely surrendered to an insidious foreign thief. If well-meaning settlers are hindered by these parties from entering upon the public lands to make homes, then the settler should treat his opponent as an open, armed enemy, and as such, do his best to destroy him. Companies of Scotchmen and Englishmen have already enclosed millions of acres of the best lands in several States and Territories, and are holding them as cattle ranges to the exclusion of honest settlers. This great wrong should not be tamely submitted to.

GRAPE growing is one of the most profitable industries in the State, and possesses the very great advantage that it can be carried on successfully on small tracts of land. The San Luis Obispo Tribune says: "San Luis Obispo is not known as a grape and wine producing country, nor, in fact, as a fruit producer, but the time will come. As an example of the profits of the business of grape growing and wine making, we may take the vineyard of Mr. P. H. Dallidet, of about seven acres, in this city, containing 7,200 vines. This, for a number of years, has paid an average $250 an acre, partly from the sale of wine, of which 3,300 gallons was made last year, and partly from the sale of grapes. Mr. Dallidet is extending his vineyard in the block south of Buchon street, proving that he is satisfied with the business. A small vineyard of about an acre is seen by the traveler going over the Cuesta grade in a little nook around which the road winds, and from this we learn the owner derives an income of about $1,200 a year. It is in a sheltered, sunny place, with the fertile soil of a mountain valley, and the grapes were of a fine quality. The locations where this could be repeated are without number in this country." In Owens River Valley there are very many small tracts along the mountains on both sides that would make excellent vineyards. Sheltered, sunny places, with the most fertile soil, that can be had for taking. It is predicted by good judges that this valley will yet be one of the best wine producing regions in the State.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:
SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, ...1884.

HALF RATES.—Mr. Bender has given notice that tickets to Sacramento during the State Fair will be sold at half price. From Reno the cost of tickets is $12½.

OURS THE BEST.—The Candelaria, Nev., True Fissure says: "The green corn received here from the Owens river valley is much superior to that which comes from the other side of the mountains.

REDUCED FARE.—On the arrival of all trains at Independence station, comfortable conveyance and good horses are in attendance to carry passengers to any part of town for fifty cents each.

H. LEVY, Stage Proprietor.

SCHOOL MATTERS.—Attention is invited to the notices of Superintendent Groves, published in another column. Members of the Board of Education and intending applicants for teachers' certificates should note the dates.

ASSESSED VALUATION.—The State Board of Equalization has fixed for taxation the value of the seventy-four and a quarter miles of the C. & C. railroad in Inyo county at $215,000. This action of the Board gives general satisfaction.

CHEAP LANDS.—Improved lands of excellent quality can be bought in Owens Valley at prices of from fifteen to twenty dollars per acre. No other part of the State offers superior advantages to settlers having a little money.

THE CELEBRATION AT LONE PINE.—In another column will be found the advertisement and program of the coming celebration at Lone Pine. The recollection of former events of this kind are too pleasant to all the old settlers to require that any thing more than the mere announcement should be made. To later settlers in the county it can be safely promised, that if they attend they will have a right good time.

THE DRAMA.—The scenery to be used in the presentation of "East Lynne" is now complete, with the exception of a few finishing touches. It is really much better than would be expected outside of a large city. Complete rehearsals are gone through by the whole company about three times each week, and beyond any doubt the play will be rendered in a very creditable manner. Admission tickets are now offered for sale, and a large number are already sold.

A SUBJECT FOR REGRET.—In all the orchards in and near town many trees are breaking down with their heavy loads of fruit. Great branches, four or five inches in diameter, go crashing down, to the great disfigurement as well as the injury of the trees. Better far pick off a portion of the fruit and throw it away than let the trees be destroyed. In several orchards the ground is covered with delicious peaches, and there are not even hogs to eat them.

GO FOR THEM.—It is reported that Chinamen employed at the Elna furnace are taking large quantities of catfish from the river in seines. This is altogether illegal, and is causing much just indignation. Every effort should be made to enforce the law in such cases as this, and if nothing better can be done, the citizens dwelling near the river should lay in wait for the scoundrels and deal out summary justice upon them. These fish were planted in the river at a cost of time and money, and the Chinaman should not be suffered to destroy them.

BOY SHOT.—Last Sunday George Rose, aged about 14 years, was in the house of Mrs. A. W. Robinson, and seeing a shotgun, took it up to examine it. The barrel was not securely fastened to the stock, and when the boy turned the weapon over in his hands, the barrel fell to the floor, and, being loaded, the charge was exploded, and a large quantity of fine shot entered the little fellow's right foot. A very jagged and painful wound was the result, but no bones were broken. A few weeks of confinement is the worst that will ensue, but for a boy that is punishment enough.

THE SILVA CASE.—Silva, the man accused of fraud in "salting" or misrepresenting a mine in making a sale, was taken to San Francisco last week on a writ of habeus corpus obtained for his release. The case was called before Judge Toohey on Friday, August 29th, and after hearing argument of counsel the Judge dismissed the writ before leaving his seat, and remanded the accused back to jail at Independence. Silva has not gained anything by the motion of his counsel, and is now in the same position he occupied before all the late proceedings were had, This trip to San Francisco and the consequent proceedings will probably cost the county between five and six hundred dollars.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—Last Sunday morning the north-bound train on the C. & C. road got derailed two miles beyond Summit station. Two Indians who were on the train got so badly hurt that both have since died. The brakeman, Nat Dow, got a severe bruising, but is expected to recover. A car-load of sheep belonging to W. R. Tibbetts was in the train, the car got upset, and about twenty of the number were killed. Assistance was at once hurried to the spot, and the road was quickly cleared. The detention to travel or freight was very slight. There was one passenger, William Lynch from Benton and the "peanut butcher" in the smoker; both escaped unhurt. Wells, Fargo and Co's messenger, W. E. Murphy, and the mail clerk, Norman Conklin, were in bed at the time but escaped unhur. from the damaged and overturned cars It is supposed the disaster was caused by a weak joint.

LETTER FROM CARSON CITY.

The circus has come and gone. but there still remains the flaring posters, with their rampant lions, tigers, huge elephants and other strange animals.

Then too, the wild Arabs, armed with dreadful knives, still stare ferociously from the walls. The show took in about fourteen thousand dollars but the hotels and other business places took in the show people and got most of it back again. The Carsonites feel like the San Francisco news-boy who sold a great many extras on the death of James King of William, he said to his chum "I wish they would kill a King of William every day, dont you Dick." True to the tradition of the business, this show followed the example of Barnum, and made humbug as profitable as possible, Once inside, people were made to pay three dollars where they were led to expect one would cover the whole cost. Perhaps this was caused by the great law of compensation, that in this way enabled the circus people to get even with their audience for grumbling unreasonably, or not applauding their best efforts. I wonder if the world is not out growing sports that formerly never failed to please: one is forced to think so, when even children are heard making sharp criticisms. In the circus were two rings, where performances were going on at the samd time; I overheard one little fellow, aged under ten, say to another "A fellow would have to have eyes like Ben Butler to see both rings at the same time." Two miles from Carson are hot springs and baths, not little tubs, but great resevoirs where one may swim, were it not that the warm water produces a delightful feeling of rest, and makes even the thought of exertion unpleasent. Perhaps this is the feeling that induces laziness, if so lazy people have my hearty sympathy. Stretched out in that warm, yielding fluid, the mere sense of existence is perfect happiness, and it is with reluctance that one leaves it to resume the cumbrous habiliments that custom requires, and that add so much to the burdens of life. The Orphan's Home is close to town, the grounds contains sixty acres all under fine cultivation. The House is a model of convenience for the purpose; order, neatness and good taste are evident everywhere. Mr. and Mrs. Mills have charge of the Institution. At present there are fifty children in the House, eighty is the largest number that can be received. Nineteen of the present number are under five years old, and that many high chairs were placed by the table in the dining room. Two foster mothers attend to all of the infants; these have an arduous task, but appear to do their duty in a thoroughly conscientious way. Forty children were found in the school room, equal numbers of boys and guls, and all under fifteen years old; after that age other homes are found for them. In the school room the children appear to be cheerful, yet studious, their teacher, Mrs. Jones, evidently has the confidence of her pupils, proof that she is qualified for the duty with which she is entrusted. Were there more Homes like this, in which not only orphans, but vagrant children might be cared for, there would be less need for jails. Pounds are spent for the punishment of crime, but only pennies for its prevention. I wish those who have plenty of fruit—and in Owens valley much goes to waste—would kindly remember these little orphan children. At present the funds limit the supply of fruit to one day in the week. It is more than likely that if requested, the rail road would carry without cost packages of fruit addressed to the Orphans home. L. H.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH.

A Former Resident of Independence Killed by His Friend.

Some days ago Mr. John Baxter, of Independence, was informed of the death of his brother, Charles Baxter, at Ditton, Canada. The deceased and a friend of his were preparing to go off on a hunting and fishing trip, and in the course of their preparations had driven their wagon and horses to the blacksmith shop in the town. Their business occupied some time, and both men had been in and out of the shop several times. At length the comrade of Baxter became interested in arranging the materials in the wagon, and among the rest being a rifle, he took it up to examine its condition, and seeing a target mark on the side of the shop aimed at it and fired, not thinking that anyone was inside. Unfortunately Charles Baxter was there, and received the bullet in his right breast: it passed entirely through his body, and came out below the shoulder blade, near the back bone. The unfortunate man lingered fifteen days after he was hurt, and at last bled to death by a rupture of some of the injured blood vessels in the wound. Charles Baxter had many friends in Inyo county, all of whom will sincerely grieve for his untimely death.

Personal Mention.

Doctor Kernodle and family left here last Wednesday for Los Angeles

Mr. John Baxter has the thanks of the printers for a basket of fine peaches.

The insolvency notice of John Schober is published in another column.

Mr. M. M. Glenn and family left here Sunday afternoon for Los Angeles they go by way of Mohave.

Mr. Henry Garlick, who lately came to Elna to take charge of the new refining works there, was in town this week, getting material to finish the works.

Mr. G. W. Brady left a box of beautiful peaches at the printing office a day or two ago the boys relished the gift and thank the giver.

When on a fishing trip a few days ago, over on the head waters of Kern river, Mr. A. C. Harvey of Lone Pine had an ankle badly sprained, and is now a cripple.

MINING ITEMS.

ELNA FURNACE,

A very important addition has been made to the works at the Elna furnace; this is the erection of a refinery, now almost completed. Hitherto the bullion was all shipped to San Francisco, thus adding largely to the expense for freight, and taking away lead that was needed to mix with ore in the furnace. Now the lead will be extracted at home, and will help largely to increase the amount of ore that may be worked. The full capacity of the furnace is thirty tons per day. and it will soon be working that quantity. The company can easily supply the furnace fully from their own mine.

DEEP SPRINGS.

Mr. P. A. Chalfant, who came in, a day or two since, from the Greenly mill, Deep Spring District, informs us that the principal object of his visit here now is to procure additional machinery and appliances for saving the gold at the Greenly mill in which he is interested and has been running since it was first started up in June last. Up to the present the mill has been running with no other means of saving the gold than a full set of silvered plates. Not over 60 per cent. of the gold can be saved by plates alone, and now, as above intimated, a concentrating machine and other appliances are to be added immediately. The mill has work enough ahead of it to keep it constantly employed for months to come, even from one mine alone, the "'78," which, in recent developments, shows up grandly, both in quality as well as quantity of its ores. The lead is fully 30 inches thick in most places in two different drifts, never less than 12 inches anywhere, and all pay ore. Three miles below on the same creek, Sam. Piper and Mr. Simonton have just completed and started a fine 12-foot arastra for the reduction of some very rich ore from mines belonging to the first-named, situate two or three miles north of arastra, but in Mono county. At Pigeon Springs, Palmetto district, Stevens & Co., are constructing, and will soon have in operation, two 12-foot steam arastras, and it is stated have an abundance of good $40 ore to keep them supplied for an indefinite period. The little silver mill at Lida, still further eastward, belonging to P. Keizer & Co., is making money right along. In Deep Spring Valley proper, at Antelope springs, some work is being done all the time toward completing the McMurry furnace—an enterprise that has the best wishes of every one in that region, for once in successful operation it would "boom" that country wonderfully. Properly managed, there is not a doubt but that it can be made a fine success in every particular. S. P. Roberts, at Pine Mountain, some ten miles distant from this furnace, is busy taking out galena ores for shipment to San Francisco. Mr. Roberts is confident he could, from his mines alone, keep this furnace supplied almost if not quite to its capacity taking galena and carbonate ores together. The latter is more abundant than the former, but not rich enough to give any profit to ship to the Bay, though quite enough so for local reduction. There are quite a number of other locations in Pine Mountain equally as good perhaps as those being worked by Mr. Roberts, but nothing beyond assessment work is or likely will be done upon them under existing conditions.

MILITARY RESERVATIONS.

July 5th, 1884, an act of Congress was approved by the President; said act applies to military reservation; and as much thereof as can have any bearing upon the lands at Independence Post is here republished:

An Act to provide for the disposal of abandoned and useless military reservations.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That whenever, in the opinion of the President of the United States, the lands, or any portion of them, included within the limits of any military reservation heretofore or hereafter declared, have become or shall become useless for military purposes, he shall cause the same or so much thereof as he may designate, to be placed under the control of the Secretary of the Interior for disposition as hereinafter provided, and shall cause to be filed with the Secretary of the Interior a notice thereof.

SEC. 2. That the Secretary of the Interior may, if in his opinion the public interests so require, cause the said lands, or any part thereof, in such reservations, to be regularly surveyed, or to be subdivided into tracts of less than forty acres each, and into town lots, or either, or both. He shall cause the said lands so surveyed and subdivided, and each tract thereof, to be appraised by three competent and disinterested men to be appointed by him, and who shall, after having each been duly sworn to impartially and faithfully execute the trust reposed in them, appraise the said lands, subdivisions, and tracts, and each of them, and report their proceedings to the Secretary of the Interior for his action thereon. If such appraisement be disapproved, the Secretary of the interior shall again cause said lands to be appraised as before provided; and when the appraisement has been approved, he shall cause the said lands, subdivisions and lots to be sold at public sale, to the highest bidder for cash, at not less than the appraised value thereof, nor less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre, first having given not less than sixty days' public notice of the time, place and terms of sale, immediately prior to such sale, by publication in at least two newspapers having a general circulation in the county or section of country where the lands to be sold are situate; and any lands, subdivisions, or lots remaining unsold may be reoffered for sale at any subsequent time in the same manner, at the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior; and if not sold at such second offering for the want of bidders, then the Secretary of the Interior may sell the same at private sale for cash, at not less than the appraised value, nor less than one dollar and twenty-five cents per acre. Provided, That any settler who was in actual occupation of any portion of any such reservation prior to the location of such reservation, or settled thereon prior to January first, eighteen hundred and eighty-four, in good faith for the purpose of securing a home and of entering the same under the general laws and has continued in such occupation to the present time, and is by law entitled to make a homestead entry, shall be entitled to enter the land so occupied, not exceeding one hundred and sixty acres in a body, according to the Government surveys and subdivisions. * * * *

SEC. 3. That the Secretary of the Interior shall cause any improvements, buildings, building materials, and other property which may be situate upon any such lands, subdivisions or lots not heretofore sold by the United States authorities, to be appraised in the same as hereinbefore provided for the appraisements of such lands, subdivisions and lots, and shall cause the same, together with the tract or lot upon which they are situate, to be sold at public sale, to the highest bidder for cash, at not less than the appraised value of such land and improvements, first giving the sixty days' public notice before provided; or he may, in his discretion, cause the improvements to be sold separately, at public sale for cash, at not less than the appraised value, to be removed by the purchaser within such time as may be prescribed, first giving the sixty days' public notice before provided; and if in any case the lands and improvements, or the improvements separately, as the case may be, are not sold for want of bidders, then the Secretary of the Interior may, in his discretion, cause the same to be reoffered for sale at any subsequent time, in the same manner as above provided, or may cause the same to be sold at private sale for not less than the appraised value. Provided, That where buildings or improvements have been heretofore sold by the United States authorities the land upon which such buildings or improvements are situate, not exceeding the smallest subdivision or lot provided for by this act upon the reservation on which said buildings are situate, shall be offered for sale to the purchaser of said improvements and buildings at the appraised value of the lands, and if said puchaser shall fail for sixty days after notice to complete said purchase of land the same shall be sold under the provisions of this act.

WE GIVE IT UP.—In a note accompanying a box of peaches sent to this office by Mr. A. C. INSOLVENT NOTICE.

In the Superior Court, County of Inyo, State of California.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN SCHOBER, AN INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

JOHN SCHOBER HAVING FILED IN THIS Court his petition, schedule and inventory in insolvency, by which it appears that he is an insolvent debtor, the said John Schober is hereby declared to be insolvent. The sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said John Schober, debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to him, or to any person, firm or corporation or association for his use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court except as herein ordered. It is further ordered that all creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. John A Hannah, Judge of the Superior Court, of the county of Inyo, in open Court at the Court-room of said Court, in the County of Inyo, on the eleventh day of October, 1884 at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assignees of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that, in the mean time, all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

TRIFLES TO AMUSE.

Motto for the coat of arms of a wealthy fruit preserver—'I can.'

'Waist makes want,' said a young husband, when his wife asked him to buy a fifteen dollar pair of corsets.

'When I'm waiting for James a minute it seems an hour; and when I'm with him an hour it seem a minute.'

The young lady who was blamed for allowing her glove to be discovered in a young man's pocket said she had no hand in it.

Since the publication of the fact that Queen Victoria has a fondness for fried hominy, the London hotels have begun to print in their bills of fare: 'Fried hominy, her Majesty's style.'

'Well, well!' said old Mrs. Gumbo, as she laid down her morning paper. 'So they've rescued poor old Greeley alive! I do hope that Horace'll take hold of the 'Tribune' again and edit it sensibly, like he used ter.'

An old lady gave this as her idea of a great man: 'One who is keerful of his clothes, don't drink sperits, ken read without spellin' the words and eat a cold dinner on wash day without grumblin'.'

She was admiring herself in a twenty-five dollar spring bonnet. 'Do you think it is becoming, dear?' she asked of her young husband. 'Yes, I do,' was his response. 'I think it's becoming very decidedly dear.'

A Pullman palace car porter refused to admit a lady's pet rabbit into the car and was shown a small turtle that was carried by another passenger, with the query why a rabbit was excluded and a turtle admitted. 'Cats is dogs and rabbits is dogs,' was the emphatic answer, 'but a turtle is an insect.'

A young man traveling by stage coach broke up the monotony of the journey by kissing a young lady who was a fellow passenger. He quieted her indignant objections by explaining that it was only a stage kiss, and therefore merely conventional.

A great big dog was roaming about the yard muzzled, when a little girl rushed into the house in terror. Her sister, younger but more valliant, coolly surveyed the situation and reassured her by remarking: 'He can't bite. He's got on his bustle.'

He Heard the Medley.

Some time since a concert was given in Bloomington by a combination composed of graduates in classical music, and old Jabez Youngpot attended in company with his nephew, whom he was visiting at the time. The first number was a cornet solo, and the player turned himself loose on a medley, ringing in 'Yankee Doodle,' 'Little Brown Jug,' 'Old Dan Tucker,' 'Father Grimes,' and many other familiar airs, in the course of his performance. The old farmer was considerably astonished, and could not restrain himself.

'Look, Jim,' he cried. 'That feller beats anything I ever heard. Lord! how he does make that ar horn hum. Jewhilikens! What do you reckon he'd do if he were sober?'

'Why, he's as sober as a door-sill. He never drinks anything. What makes you think he is not sober?'

'Wall, by gum! If he's sober why don't he stick to a tune when he tackles it? He don't get half through one thing before he tackles another. Now hear him! He's jes' makin' 'Rory O'More' climb, but I'll bet ye a bay steer—thar! Hear that? He's jes' raisin' thunder with 'Swanee River,' an' afore he gits half done he'll light out on—thar! What did I tell ye? Hear him? Thar he goes on 'John Brown's Body.' He's as drunk as a fool. Now listen. I'll bet he'll be rattlin' off 'I Won't Go Home Till Mornin'—I told ye he would, an' he did. You needn't tell me that he's sober."—[Bloomington Through Mail.

JOHN M. HORTON, HAVING FILED IN THIS Court his petition, schedule, and inventory in insolvency, by which it appears that he is an Insolvent debtor, the said John M. Horton is hereby declared to be insolvent. The sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said John M. Horton, debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to him, or to any person, firm or corporation or association for his use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property until the further order of this Court except as herein ordered. It is further ordered that all creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge of the Superior Court, of the county of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, in the County of Inyo, on the eleventh day of September, 1884, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assigners of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that, in the mean time, all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

JOHN A. HANNAH,
[SEAL.] Superior Judge
Attest, THOMAS CROUGH, Clerk.

OUT OF THE SEASON.

'But why not? There isn't a soul left in London — who's to see? What harm is there in it.'

'Oh, none, of course—a cup of tea is a cup of tea, and whether you drink it here or there, what matter?—only—well, the thing I think of is, would Rowley mind?'

'Mind his own business, I should say, rather. That's what they have to swear to do in the marriage service, haven't they?'

The lady to whom this question was addressed, Mrs. Rowley Dacres, shook her head reprovingly. She was young and very pretty; and Teddy Vere was not averse to seeing her make a pretence of being angry.

'Don't let me hear you speak so flippantly of matrimony,' she began severely; 'and for your future edification, it is not the man but the woman who swears to obey.'

'Then why in heaven's name don't you do as I bid you?'

'As you bid me! Come, that's rather strong form, I must say. Your not Rowley, are you?'

'No, worse luck for me, I'm not;' and the good-looking fair face put on such an intensely woe-begone expression that the resolution of the beholder gave way.

Poor boy! It really was dreadfully unlucky that he should be so desperately in love with her, more especially since Rowley had taken to be absurdly jealous of him, as if, now that she was married, she could ever think seriously of anybody. Only after you'd been brought up—to cut your teeth, as one might say—flirting, well, it was just a little bit hard to give it all up at 23. What more natural than that when she came up to town for a few days' shopping Teddy should offer to act escort to her?—it was such a pleasure to him, poor fellow! And as there wasn't a single soul left to see them, what harm could there be?

Notwithstanding, the lady never lost sight of propriety—Garden was always near enough for her to be able to say, 'I've my maid with me.'

Now it happened that on the previous evening Teddy had shown visible signs of becoming unruly. He didn't see why he should be sent away. Why could he not stop—stop and have dinner with her?

'Why? Because, in the first place, it would not do; and in the second —I forgot, though,' she said; 'being a man, I ought to have reversed the order—there is nothing to give you.'

'That don't matter,' said Teddy, heroically; 'I don't care what I eat.'

'Oh, don't you? but I do—you might be wanting to eat me.'

Teddy threw a look intended to convey that he could conceive no more delicious morsel.

'There, there, say good-by and go away, do!' she cried. Teddy was forced to obey her command that he should take his departure.

'I must take care not to let that boy go too far,' Nina reflected,

Her face softened with a smile that flitted across it as she assured herself that ten minutes with Rowley would make her forget the very existence of Teddy. Poor infatuated boy!

Possibly Mrs. Dacres's velvety brown eyes would have opened a trifle wider could she have followed the footsteps of her devoted admirer. Teddy, wise in his generation, made the provision of a consolation a matter of principle. Matters turned out as he premised, and he only picked up his grievance against Nina the next day when he was urging her that they should go to his rooms and have tea.

After that the question of the tea became a question of who should be conqueror.

'If I give in again, I'll be hanged,' said Teddy to himself; and he brought to bear the various resources he was master of with such effect that Nina was fairly beaten, and confessed to herself that it served her right—"he's been allowed to go too far, and this is the upshot of it.'

She made these reflections, however, with a face that told no tale, stepped into a hansom with a pretty air of being overruled by a will stronger than her own, and only insisted on keeping up her ungainly sized parasol because 'the sun in one's eyes is so disagreeable.'

Now, as chance would have it, instead of fishing in the country, Captain Rowley Dacres was spending that day in London. Circumstances had brought him to town early in the morning; but, to his discredit do I tell it, he hated shopping, and hadn't Nina told him in every letter she sent that she was with the dressmaker every hour of the day? During those few months they were engaged what a purgatory he had gone through. He was a lover then; he was a husband now, and he whistled the air of a popular tune known by the name of 'Not for Joe.'

The first few bars had but just escaped him when who should he stumble across but an old chum, Nick Walcot, who gave a mysterious wink of his eye, saying: 'All right, old fellow; I'm going somewhere and I'll take you.'

The somewhere proved to be a small bijou residence in the neighborhood of Thurloe Square; and, arrived at the door, it suddenly struck Rowley who lived there.

'Oh, come, I say,' he began, drawing back a step or two. 'I don't half think this'll do. I'm married now, you see, and I've given up this sort of society.'

Nick looked at him with an air of injured surprise.

'What do you mean?' he asked. 'Thare's nothing against Miss Fisher that I know of.' Rowley hastened to disabuse any prejudice against Miss Fisher. 'Only, don't you know, women get an idea, and though my little wife's the best sort in the world, if she got scent that I'd been lunching with an actress instead of going straight off to her, there'd be the very deuce to pay.'

'Fiddle dee dee! besides, how is she to know? who's to tell her? And before there was time to answer, a vigorous pull was given to the bell.

'Confound this fellow! I wish I'd gone straight off to Nina. What a fool I am!' These were the reflections of Captain Dacres.

'Good gracious me! Captain Dacres,' said Miss Fisher; 'what a time it is since I've seen you, to be sure; I took it for granted you were dead.'

'Dead!' repeated Nick Walcot. 'Why, he's married; didn't you know?'

'Oh, it's about the same to me,' laughed the lady, and then she called, 'Doady, I say, come in here —there's a surprise for you.'

And in answer to the summons a young lady appeared, who threw herself into a dramatic attitude, exclaiming, 'What! Captain Dacres? Well, I never! Why, who'd a thought of seeing you!'

Certainly it was not Captain Dacres who had anticipated that pleasure, for while responding with the best grace he could command to the chaff and banter which began to be darted at him, he was consigning Miss Fisher, and more especially the effusive Doady, to every depth between the world and the one below.

The announcement of luncheon opened a more cheerful vista. 'Here I am, and I must make the best of it,' thought Rowley, following in company with Doady, Nick Walcot and Miss Fisher. 'But if anything of the sort happens again may I be tarred and feathered. To think I ever thought this woman pretty and to fancy that to this day Nina is jealous of her.'

The luncheon took a long time getting through. Then it was discovered that everybody was going the same way, and it ended with two hansoms being called; Miss Fisher and Nick Walcot got in one, Captain Rowley and Doady Donne occupied the other.

'How tiresome the sun is; let me put up your parasol!' said our friend Rowley, with evident anxiety to screen her; but Doady begged he wouldn't trouble.

'I don't mind the sun a bit,' she said. 'And I'm not in the least afraid of any one seeing me, because evidently since you've married you've grown so very respectable.'

'Confound her!' ejaculated Rowley, and he mentally congratulated himself on the emptiness of London, resolving to keep his head well back and sit a little on one side as they went through Piccadilly. Hang the fellow, he's run into another hansom!'

'Why, if it ain't Teddy Vere! Oh my!' ejaculated one feminine voice, shrilly, while from under a red parasol, still open, another groaned, 'Rowley! it can't be! Oh, what will become of me?'

Self-preservation is the first law of nature; the woman who hesitates is lost. Before another minute had passed Nina was out of one cab and into another close by.

'Drive on as fast as you can —never mind where. I will tell you when we get further on;' and five minutes later she gave the cabman the address of Mrs. Chetwode's house.

Bursting into the room she cried, 'Oh, Bella, such a horrible thing has occurred! Do help me!' And she told her the whole story.

Mrs. Chetwode said something by way of calming her, and then she rang the bell.

'Tell Martin to go to Mrs. Dacres's, and say she will not return to dinner; I've prevailed on her to stop with me. Now, my dear, we must trust to Providence to help us through.'

'But suppose he saw me?'

'Oh, no, we'll suppose he didn't see you; and I think you may trust Teddy—he's got his head screwed on the right way.'

Nina wiped away the tears which had flowed over her face.

'I didn't care for Teddy. What could a boy like that possibly be to me? Why, of course I love Rowley dearly—more than I can tell you. And to think I should risk it all in this stupid way! Oh, it's my abominable vanity, that's what it is! Aunt Jane always said it would be my ruin, and so it will be—after this, you see, Rowley will believe anything of me. Oh, Bella, what shall I do? I shall die.'

'Well, my dear, it's the best thing that could happen to you if you are going to behave in this absurd manner. If I am to help you, it's not by letting you sit there and cry.'

'Wh-what do you wish me to do?'

'To dry your eyes and come down with me to dinner and chat away as we always do. If your husband was going home, Martin will bring back word that he is there, or else he will come here and fetch you.'

'You took the message?' Mrs. Chetwode asked, as the ladies descended to dinner.

'Yes, ma'am.'

'Really, Nina, I ought to have ordered a better dinner for you.'

'Oh, I'm not a bit hungry.'

'But you ought to be, after going about as much as we have to-day. By the by, how did you decide about that hat I saw? Do you think it will suit you? Describe it to me.'

Forced to answer, Nina was trotted by her friend from one subject of toilet to another, until there came a thundering knock at the door.

"Dear bless me! What a late visitor! Who can it be? Martin just go out and look—never mind the door,' and Mrs. Chetwode jumped up and stood so she could hear the inquiry, "Is Mrs. Dacres here?"

"Yes, sir: the ladies are at dinner.

"Oh! Ah!"

"Captain Dacres, is that you?" Bella had run out to meet him. "What a surprise—Nina, fancy, here's your husband dear," and she preceded Rowley back into the dining-room.

"My dear child, have I frightened you? I am sorry, but I found, after all, I had to come to town. Carna has made such an awful mess about the gun he was to get for me, so I didn't write. I thought I'd surprise you."

Nina laughed out like a boisterous child, "What a silly thing I am!" she said; "I was afraid something had happened."

Rowley put his arm around her, for though she was laughing, her voice sounded like crying all the time, Under the circumstances he might have been more struck with the little embarrassmet which she could not perfectly control, but at the moment he was not quite himself either. That impudent Doady Donne had played a shameful hoax on him—had acutually had the audacity to declare that she had seen his wife—Nina, Mrs. Dacres—in Teddy Vere's hansom! The bare notion made him furious, and—though telling himself all the while that he didn't believe it—until he found Nina seated with her friend it was impossible to feel any security.

"Pon my life, it's to bad," he was saying mentally.

While these reflections were occupying his mind he was giving scraps of news to Nina and answering Mrs. Chetwode, who was frankly saying that she hadn't a morsel of dinner to give nim. "But I don't want any; I have only just had an enormous luncheon."

Luncheon! where?

"Why, my dear, at the station—had ham, beef, beer—you know—veal pie—all that sort of thing."

"Rowley, how could you? you'll be awful sick, you know."

"Not a bit of it, not I. I—"But at this mament rat-tat-a-tat-tat went the knocker.

Oh, agony—there wasn't a doubt this was Teddy!

"I say what a game—here's another visitor," remarked Captain Dacres, in a cheerful manner. 'One who is expected, I shouldn't wonder.' Mrs. Chetwode, as usual, rose equal to the emergency. 'We may as well let the cat out of the bag, Nina, and tell him. We've got a young man coming to take us to the play,' and turning to Martin she said: 'Show him into the boudoir if that's Mr. Vere.'

'Mr. Vere! What, Teddy? Here stop, I'll open the door,' exclaimed Rowley, hastily. 'Don't you go.'

'But why?' interposed Mrs. Chetwode amazedly.

'Because its interrupting you so awfully in your dinner. No, no; we'll go up stairs together—it's all right, you'll see.'

'I'm not going to leave them together. Teddy,' called out Mrs. Chetwode, 'come in here. Have you brought the tickets for the comedy?'

'Tickets, eh?'

'Oh, its no use disguising; we have—'

'No, no,' broke in Rowley, 'not a bit. I know all about it, old fellow; they've told me what you have come to do—I'll go with you. By Jove. Capital idea. Ha! ha!

'Oh, it must be beer,' thought Nina.

'I'm awfully sorry, Mrs. Chetwode,' began Teddy, 'but do you know, I have made such a mess about the comedy; they are not playing that piece at all there now. I hope you will both forgive me.'

'How tiresome! what a naughty boy you are,' said Bella. 'Now there is nothing for us to do.'

'Nothing to do?' said Rowley. Not a bit of it; we aint going to be stumped for one failure. We will go somewhere—where shall it be Nina, eh?'

'Any place you like, dear, so long as I am with you,' the big brown eyes seemed to say; and Rowley, looking back again, though', 'And I could doubt her, bless her heart, the darling!' While Nina kept repeating, 'This will be a lesson for me as long as I live. Never again —no more flirtation —never, never, never!'

Later in the evening Nina and Rowley went off together.

'Are we to follow the turtle doves?' said Teddy, with sarcasm.

'As you please,' said Bella, but it doesn't in the least matter—you know I have a scolding in store for you, Teddy.'

'No, not now,' and he held up his hands pleadingly.

'Yes, but you've been most imprudent, and it's by the very greatest luck in the world that Rowley didn't see you. If he had it would have been anything but pleasant for Nina.'

'H'm!' and Teddy gave his nose a screw. He was terribly tempted to tell what he looked on as the best joke in the world—only—well—no —perhaps he had better not; and as Rowley had whispered at the door, 'Teddy, I say, not a word about having seen me before,' and he had answered, 'Honor bright, old chap, you may trust me.' He would keep the matter dark, only there was one to score against Miss Doady Donne for telling him last at dinner that she was going to play propriety to a friend that day. He hated a lie without reason, and as it seemed to him he had gone far enough in that direction, this would serve as a capital peg to hang a quarrel on.

'Shall we say good night?' said Bella.

'Do you want to get rid of me?'

'N-o.'

'Oh, I see you do,' and he held out his hand to her.

'Good-night,' she began, trying to hold herself severely, 'and let this little adventure be a lesson to you. All's well that ends well, but remember that all does not end so well.'

'Quite true,' he said, feigning to have listened patiently. 'By the by, would you mind repeating that same sermon to our friend Rowley? —it might be of service to him. What do I mean? Oh, nothing—only that one good turn deserves another.'

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13,.....1884.

Published Every Saturday, by

C. MULHOLLAND.

THERE was a fall of about two inches of snow at Bodie a week ago.

AROUND Reno frost at the begining of this week caused heavy loss to farmers.

LAST Sunday snow fell at the Summit, west of Truckee, to a depth of six inches.

AT THE Bodie Consolidated mill last week 180 tons of tailings was worked. The assay value of the tailings was six dollars per ton.

A DECLARATION of war against France has been issued in the name of the Emperor of China. The said Emperor is a boy under fourteen years of age.

AT STOCKTON a kind hearted citizen hangs on his gate, where school-children pass, a big basket of ripe apples, with a card, "Children help yourselves.'

MR. MILLS has resigned his position at the Orphans' Home, Carson. The Board of Trustees objected to having his wife's father live with him at the Home.

THE APPROACH of a convention is like a revivial meeting in one way; it puts a good many on the anxious seat and makes them seekers, but there the likeness ends.

THE decision of the Supreme Court, that Senators must be elected in the odd numbered districts, will unseat eighteen Democratic Senators and two Republicans.

THE Oakland Times says: "Every nerve has been strained and every government clerk's pocket picked to swell the Republican majority in Maine and we are prepared to see it go to 25,000.

AT THE Standard Consolidated they extracted and shipped to the mill 528 tons of ore and 590 tons of tailings. Received from the ore 590 ounces of crude bullion, and from the tailings 362 ounces.

LAST Monday a doctor in Carson undertook to amputate the thumb of a blacksmith with his teeth. The blacksmith disputed a bill presented by the doctor, and the latter rendered further service as stated.

THE Republicans of Maine have elected all four of the Congressmen and claim a majority of 16,000 in the State election. The Democrats concede the loss of the State by about 12,000.

ADMISSION DAY was celebrated with great enthusiasm at Sacramento and San Francisco. In the latter city the foundation of a Pioneer's Hall was laid that is expected to be one of the finest buildings on the coast.

FELIX DONNELLY, who killed two men at Bodie a few weeks ago, was tried first for the murder of Deegan. The jury brought in a verdict of acquittal. On the second charge for killing Coyle Donnelly was admitted to bail at $1,000.

GREEN PEAS are reported just coming up in Virginia City. Winter must linger in the lap of Spring all the year round up that way. The Enterprise says the weather is "bracing," overcoats are in order and all heating stoves have been put up.

THE full returns from Vermont give the Republicans a majority of 21,413. The complexion of the next Legislature will be as follows: Assembly—Republicans 78, Democrats 34, Greenbackers 4, Independents 31, no choice, 1; Senate—Republicans 26, Democrats 3.

THE noise and bluster, the procession, uniforms, stump speaches, and all the other devices, tricks and shams of a political campaign, show that the average political "leader" thinks the average voter is a fool. The voter looks, listens, laughs, and then—votes as he pleases.

THE Bryant mine, near Lundy, owned principally by the Hon. P. Reddy, is proving a reliable bonanza. With half a dozen men in the mine and a mill of two small stamps, the first clean up after a three weeks run, was $4,000 and the mine is looking better as it is developed.

ACCORDING to Democratic reports there are Republican leaders in every state working in aid of Cleveland, and Republican reports are equally positive that Democratic leaders are working just as hard in favor of Blaine. Both reports are entiteled to the same measure of credence, as both are equally untrue.

A GOOD SUGGESTION.

Some days ago the following letter was received. It contains a good suggestion to the people of Owens Valley, on the subject of getting up and disseminating information of the resources and attractions of the county. The "Immigration Association" is under the control of the business men of San Francisco, and among the members are some of the best known and most influential men in the city.

IMMIGRATION ASSOCIATION OF CAL.
No. 10 California st., Room 10.
SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 3d, '84.

Publisher INYO INDEPENDENT, Independence;—Dear Sir: We have watched with great interest the praiseworthy efforts of your paper in advertising the advantages of your county. Why cannot your citizens get up a local Immigration Association for the purpose of collecting material to make a little pamphlet concerning the county and publishing the same. We will gladly distribute thousands of copies of such publication. We also see several fine productions mentioned in last issue as coming mostly from near Independence. As we are getting up a large permanent exhibition at our rooms of samples of productions from all counties, we should be much obliged if you could cause Mr. Densmore and other citizens to send us a good collection (especially the 14-foot corn stalks) for that purpose. Resp'y yours, C. H. STREET, Secretary.

If any effort at all shall be made by the citizens of Inyo to carry out the suggestion made in the letter, the editor of this paper will do all in his power to aid. The natural resources of the county are vast, but almost wholly undeveloped; this great valley of Owens river can all be made as fertile as a garden; the soil, the climate, a great river of water—these are the elements of a prosperity greater than even the most sanguine can fully estimate. But to bring about that prosperity we need a large addition of both men and money in the county, and to attract these we must make known fully, clearly, truthfully, the extent and availability of our resources. Every dollar's worth of improvement made upon property in the valley adds something to the value of all other property here; therefore every one is directly interested in hastening improvement as much as possible. THE INDEPENDENT is trying to do a little toward making known the resources of the county to the world, but the united effort of the people can do much more. Remember, God helps those who help themselves, and so far as the development of this great region is concerned, it is hardly too much to say that God has done everything and man almost nothing. The people of Inyo may well have faith in their county; it is well founded, and with reasonable effort, all will speedily share in a glorious prosperity. But to bring it about we must be up and doing. We earnestly hope the request of the Secretary for specimens of our productions will be granted.

Farm Figures.

Some farmers around Independence have already had their wheat made into flour and much of their flour is sold. Some figures in this connection may be of interest. One field near town will serve as an illustration of many other tracts, The field in question contains twenty acres and the wheat gathered from it weighed twenty-two and one-half tons. Each ton of wheat made 1320 pounds of flour, and this sold for $4 per hundred pounds, or $52.80. From each ton of wheat there were 680 pounds of bran and shorts, worth $10.80, which added to the value of the flour makes the total value of the yield of each acre $63.60. The cost of milling the wheat was $8 per ton, leaving the farmer a net price for his wheat of $55.60 per ton, or a little over two and three-quarter cents per pound. Compare these figures with the yield per acre, the price of wheat and the cost of land west of the mountains, and the superior advantages offered to farmers in Inyo County become very clear. It is true that great tracts cannot be managed here as in the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys; farms must be smaller, but this is rather an advantage than otherwise. Better far have many small farms, with a comfortable home on each farm, than to have the whole of our great valley owned by a few great landlords, and peopled occasionally by a migratory army of virtual serfs.

THE San Jose Mercury claims that wheat raising will pay on land costing $40 an acre if the grain brings seventy-five or eighty cents per bushel. As heavy crops and as good gruin can be raised in Owen's River Valley on land that could be bought for less than half the above cost, The highest price named above for wheat, eighty cents per bushel, is equal to $1,33⅓ per one hundred pounds; the lowest price offered at Bishop Creek this season is $1.55 per hundred pounds and at that figure no sales are yet reported, farmers are demanding $1.75 per hundred pounds and we sincerely hope they may get it. No other part of the State offers more attractions or better chances for success to industrious farmers than Inyo county.

A FEW years ago Oakland was almost bankrupt. Manufactures were started, all kinds of property rapidly increased in value; now the City is in splendid financial condition. Had Oakland concotinued to import instead of manufacture, she would have continued embarrassed. What is true of Oakland is true of the whole country.

AN eastern fruit grower has made observations on the work of birds in orchards; he says that the meadow lark is the best insect destroyer and least injurious to fruits of any birds that came under his notice. Meadow larks are plentiful in Owens valley, and as fruit growing is rapidly on the increase these birds should be protected.

REDWOOD is now becoming so valuable that old fences are torn down, and the boards used to make inside finish for costly residences. These old boards when planed take on a very fine polish, and are said to make a handsome finish. It is predicted that old redwood stumps will yet be dug up and made into furniture, as black walnut stumps were in the East.

IN common with all countries containing the precious metals, the most pressing need of the mining interests of Inyo county is a cheap and effective method of concentrating low-grade ores. Unlimited quantities of such ores are here, and when the right method of concentration and reduction shall be found, the low grade ores will yield large profits.

CITIZENS of counties in the Sacramento valley are holding meetings and consulting together, how best to advertise the advantages offered in each county to settlers. This is an example well worthy of imitation by the people of Inyo. We can offer as good inducements to settlers as any other county fn the State, and we ought to make those advantages better known.

SOME interruption to travel was caused a few days ago by a switch engine getting off the "apron" just as the big ferry boat was leaving the slip at Martinez. The signal to go ahead had been given on the boat before the engine had backed away from the train it had just pushed on board. When the boat moved away the "apron" sank and the engine and tender plunged into fifteen feet of water. The engineer and fireman were saved. Trains had to go around by Stockton for some time.

A GERMAN official in South Africa was attacked by negroes; he fled, was pursued, and his life was in great danger. Fortunately for him a Limburger cheese factory was near; he rushed into the building and was saved. The Limburger was too strong a defense for the negroes to overcome. This hint may prove useful in future, should war break out in South Africa the cheese could be made up in suitable forms to be fired from cannos; of course the enemy would take to flight, noboby would be hurt, and after the battle the cheese, or most of it, could be recovered and would be as good as ever.

The May Lundy.

In relation to the trouble at this mine the Homer Index says:

Nothing definite has yet been learned as to what will be done about the present muddle of its affairs by the May Lundy mine owners. While many still have confidence that the indebtedness of the company will be paid without process of law, that feeling is not so general as it was a week ago. Rumors that the miners would be paid soon have been numerous during the week, and reports to the contrary quite as plentiful, but none of them could be traced to any authentic source. Several dispatches have been received from headquarters in San Francisco, and also from F. A. Pike, but such of them as have been made public have given no information as to what will be done. There are many people in Lundy who will not believe that Pike will allow the May Lundy to go under the hammer until they see it done. The property is too valuable for its owners to lose rather than pay the few thousand dollars indebtedness upon it.

Shortage of State Funds.

A recent examination of the accounts of the State show that its finances are not in a very encouraging condition, and that at the close of the present fiscal year there will probably be a deficiency of at least $600,000.

The tax levy for the fiscal year 1884-5 aggregates $3,269,100. The State Board of Equalization will on Saturday next fix the rate of taxation to meet this estimated expenditure. It is now estimated that the rate will be about 45 cents on the $100, or a fraction under that figure, provided the State Board increases the assesment rolls of different counties, as it now contemplates.

Attorney-General Marshall now has in his hands $475,000 delinquent railroad taxes, the question of the right to compromise which is now pending before the Supreme Court. Should the court declare the right of the State to receive these taxes under the compromise accepted by the Attorney-General, but $112,000 will go to the general fund of the State, which will remove but a small fraction of the deficiency of $600,000, the balance going to the counties and the sinking and school funds. There has already been borrowed $280,000 from other funds of the State Treasury to replenish the general fund and the next Legislature will be called upon to make good the large deficiencies. —*S. F. KITCHEN ECONOMY.

Interesting Tests Made by the Government Chemist.

Dr. Edward G. Love, the Analytical Chemist for the U. S. Government, has made some interesting experiments as to the comparative value of baking powders. Dr. Love's tests were made to determine which brands are the most economical to use, and as their capacity lies in their leavening power, tests were directed solely to ascertain the available gas of each powder. Dr. Love's report gives the following:

Name of the Baking Powders.	Strength: Cubic Inches Gas Per each ounce of powder.
"Royal" (absolutely pur)	127.4
"Patapsco" (alum powder)	125.2*
"Rumford's" (phosphate) fresh	122.5*
"Rumford's" (phosphate) old	32.7*
"Hanford's None Such," fresh	121.6
"Hanford's None Such," old	84.35
"Redhead's	117.0
"Charm" (alum powder)	116.9*
"Amazon" (alum powder)	111.9*
"Cleveland's" (short weight ¾ oz.)	110.8
"Sea Foam"	107.9
"Czar"	106.8
"Dr. Price's"	102.6
"Snow Flake" (Groff's, St. Paul)	101.88
"Lewis's" Condensed	98.2
"Congress" yeast	97.5
"C. E. Andrews & Co's" (contains alum)	78.17*
"Hecker's"	92.5
"Gillet's"	81.2
"Bulk"	80.5

*In his report, the Government Chemist says:

"I regard all alum powders as very unwholesome. Phosphate and Tartaric Acid powders liberate their gas too freely in process of baking, or under varying climatic changes suffer deterioration."

Dr. H. A. Mott, the former Government Chemist, after a careful and elaborate examination of the various Baking Powders of commerce, reported to the Government in favor of the Royal Brand.

Change in Mining Control.

For many years, Mr. Sharon and his friends have controlled the election for Trustees in the case of the Chollar and Potosi mines. These mines were formerly under one organization, known as the Chollar-Potosi, with a capital divided into 28,000 shares. Under that organization the property had all the prosperity it has enjoyed, paying quite a large amount in dividends. Some years ago, the mine was divided into two equal parts and the name separated in the same way. At the same time the shares were increased to 224,000, which gave the Chollar 112,000 and the Potosi 112,000. The property is sandwiched between the Hale & Norcross and Bullion mines. It has transpired that Messrs. Hayward & Hobart and their friends now control a majority of the stock in the Chollar and Potosi, and will soon call a meeting to displace the present Trustees, who are A. K. P. Harmon, C. L. Weller, E. M. Fry, Wm. Norris and J. H. Dobinson. It is thought that Mr. Sharon will not care to spend much money to resist the change in management. Superintendent Requa will resign and Mr. Hamilton will be likely to succeed him.—S. F. Bulletin.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, ...1884.

FINISHED.—The threshers finished up at Independence Thursday afternoon, and moved down to George's Creek the same day.

WILL ATTEND.—A good many people here have arranged to attend the celebration at Lone Pine next week.

THE SILVA CASE.—This case has been set for trial November 10th. Judge N. D. Arnot has been appointed by the Governor to try the case. In the interim Silva is in the custody of the sheriff.

REDUCED FARE.—On the arrival of all trains at Independence station, comfortable conveyance and good horses are in attendance to carry passengers to any part of town for fifty cents each.

H. LEVY, Stage Proprietor.

TEMPERANCE LECTURE.—Next Monday and Tuesday evening Rev. C. A. Bateman will lecture in Independence on temperance. The lectures of this gentleman are said to be much above the average in interest.

THE LIGHT FANTASTIC.—After the performance of "East Lynne" one the eve of a week from Monday, a dance will be given. Excellent music has been secured and the success of the evening is beyond a doubt.

BRONZE TURKEYS.—This, the finest variety of the finest fowl, has lately been introduced here with marked success. A large number of young were hatched out this Spring, and will be ready for market later in the Fall.

DISTRICT FAIR.—Thirteen races are already filled for the Agricultural Fair at Los Angeles, begining October 13th. Of these races seven are for trotting, and six for running. It is expected that several more races will yet be filled.

NO LONGER HEARD.—The cry of "No Market" is no longer heard; now orders for all kinds of fruits and vegetables are received faster than they can be filled. Fruit raisers complain of a scarcity of boxes, parties who receive fruit by rail will do themselves and others service by returning the boxes as quickly as possible.

FRENCH PRUNES.—Mr. E. Robinson talks of planting several acres with trees of the French prune. The experiments already made here with this fruit are very satisfactory. The few trees already planted bear well, and the fruit is of fine quality. For fruit drying the climate here is unequaled elsewhere.

UNUSUAL.—Last Sunday morning a little new snow could be seen on the highsummits of the mountains on both sides of the valley; this is unusually early for snow to fall in this region. In this part of the valley there has not yet been any trace of trost, the various fruits are ripening well, and roses and pansies are still blooming,

A COMBINATION OF CURES.—The Carson Appeal says: W. Merk, of Woodford's, was bitten on the hand by a rattlesnake recently. The prompt outward application of a live coal and carbolic acid, and inward application of whisky, counteracted the effect of the poison. Mr. Merk experiences no ill effects from the familiarity of the varmint.

BORAX.—It would appear that borax shipping is now the chief interest of Candelaria. The True Fissure says: "While it excites little or no comment among the people here, it cannot escape observation and mention that the borax production constitutes the bulk of the freight shipments from this station. From seven to eight car loads leave every week.

AMPUTATED.—On Monday last Doctors Stevenson and Middleton held a consultation on the case of John Counts, the young man recently injured by a horsepower at Big Pine. The doctors decided that it would be necessary to amputate his leg about one and a half inches above the ankle. The operation was at once performed, and since then the patient is doing very well. No further trouble is apprehended by the attending physicians.

INCREASED DEMAND.—Messrs Knapp and Laws write that they are having an increased demand for the fruits, vegetables, chickens, butter and eggs of Owens valley. The Firm have gained a reputation for fair dealing, and all who have any of these articles to dispose of should communicate with them at once. Goods consigned to Knapp and Laws, Hawthorn, Nevada, will be received at any station on the C & C railroad.

DEATH OF AN OLD BODIEITE.—The Calico Print gives an account of the death, caused by the explosion of a can of coal oil, of Thomas G. McClellan. The accident happened at the King mine, in Calico District. McClellan was a native of Nova Scotia, aged 33 years, and leaves a wife to mourn the loss of a noble and devoted husband. He was employed on the Booker Con., under the management of Col. Ellsworth, while in Bodie. His death occurred after lingering several weeks in great agony. The remains were shipped to Oakland.

PATENT RECEIVED.—Last Wednesday Jacob Vagt received a patent for his homestead at Fort Independence. Mr. Vagt has lived upon the land for twenty one years, during eighteen of which he had been trying to get his patent. His first filing was made at the Land office in Visalia, when he first settled upon the land, and was made under the preemption act; but three years later he changed the entry to a homestead. The delay to obtain patent was caused by the undetermined status of the lands at the Fort.

POLITICAL MEETING.—As previously kept his audience well interested in a announced, the meeting at Independence last Saturday evening was held in the Court house. There was a good attendence, and Judge A. R. Conklin speech that occupied more than an hour in the delivery. There were no other speakers, and with cheers for Blaine and Logan the meeting adjourned at the close of the speech. At Bishop Creek the hall was handsomely decorated, and was filled by the audience. Mr. S. D. Woods addressed the meeting, and spoke about an hour. When the first speaker closed Mr. Whitlock was called for and made a lively twenty minute speach; he was warmly applauded. The meeting at Lone Pine was addressed by Mr. George Gill; he had a good audience, and kept all present well interested while he was speaking.

POLITICS.—Most of the delegates from the Northern part of the County to the Republican convention arrived yesterday. Several candidates were also on hand, and these were very busy among the delegates. The chief struggle will be for the nomination for sheriff; for this office there are three candidates from Bishop Creek. Each claims to have a good many delegates pledged to support him. No candidate for this office has yet shown up from any other part of the County. For the nomination for clerk there is only one open aspirant, also from Bishop, but there is some reason to think that a little quiet work is being done in favor of one or two others. It is not clear at this stage of the game who has the inside track for any of the offices. Aside from the question of fitness, however, the matter of locality will have considerable innuence on nominations. It is not usual to nominate several candidates from the same district. A disposition on the part of delegates is apparent to prefer for the more important offices men of mature minds and experience in business.

HERE IS THEIR BEST CHANCE.—An exchange says; "The Land Agent of the Central Pacific Railroad Company is almost daily in receipt of cummunications from persons in the East who desire to settle permanently in California and write for information about lands One of very recent date is from Otto Sutton, Warminter, Nelson county, Virginia, who represents ten families. They have about $35,000 among them and desire to purchase lands in California for the benefit of their boys. They are all native Virginians, now engaged in farming, and some of them have good trades. The correspondent says that all of their friends who have gone to California write back that they are doing well. They want to come immediately, and possess all the factors of a prosperous colony." Owens valley is the country for them. Here lands can be bought for one tenth the price asked for lands of inferior quality in other parts of the State. If it be asked why the present occupants want to sell, a truthful answer is, they do not know the true value of their lands, nor when themselves are well situated.

Mr. George Clark, of West Bishop Creek, has a trotting bred colt twenty-eight months old that girts six feet five inches, and is built proportionately large. He has broad, full breast and strong hips. Mr. Clark expects a great deal of him and we do not think he will be disappointed.

On Saturday morning last when the Bishop Creek stage had nearly reached town Mr. B. L Rowe fell out of the back seat, the wheel on that side passing over his body. He was taken to the Bisop Creek Hotel and Dr. George called in. It is feared his injuries are internal and very serious.

The services of Miss Alice Howell have been engaged to guide the youth of the Warm Springs District through the intricate mazes of the Cnossian labyrinth of knowledge. May she be as successful as Ariadne of yore in providing for the young Theseuses of this district the means of destroying the monster Minotaur of ignorance.

Early in the evening of Saturday last a very strong wind began blowing carrying clouds of dust and driving every one within doors. About nine o'clock the blowing ceased and rain began falling in torrents, continuing until nearly four o'clock the next morning, when it ceased. In the vicinity of Bishop Creek most of the grain was in stack, so that beyond delaying the threshers a day or two no damage resulted.

In the middle of June Mr. Birchim sowed a quanty of Russian white oats on his place at Round Valley. The stand, a very heavy one, is just ripening. A competent judge estimates that this crop will harvest 3,000 pounds per acre. On the same place is a fine piece of wheat of a new variety. It was sown very thick but the stubble is strong and the heads are remarkably well developed. Mr. Birchim thinks that an average yield of sixty bushels per acre would be a fair estimate.

A party from Benton and Bishop Creek consisting of Messrs. George Watterson, Jim Nevins, Tom Callow, Sam Spratt and Tim Lynch, Mrs. Watterson and Miss Sallie Yandell returned last week from a pleasure trip of three weeks duration to the Yosemite and Big Trees. They went with wagons as far as Mono Lake and then on horseback by way of Bloody Canyon to Yosemite, returning via the Big Trees by the Tioga road.

MINING ITEMS.

BEVERIDGE DISTRICT.

During the past week a good prospect has been struck in the Golden Reef mine, Beveridge district. This is the property lately bought by Mr. Nixon. About twelve inches in width of the ledge where now exposed is quite rich, and the chances are that this will greatly increase in size when opened further. Mr. Nixon brought in the first shipment of gold bullion a few days ago. It is confidently expected that the next shipment will be quite large. In Hunter's cañon, in the same district, some Mexicans have made a rich strike lately, but the full particulars are not yet known. The Keynot mill is running steadily. The present outlook for Beveridge district is better than ever before.

FOUND IT—A few days ago a man named Joe Freeham got his left arm broken. He sought a quarrel and he found it. Mr. Levy having business at Bishop Creek, left Will Staines to take care of his place; Freeham was boarding at the hotel, and on the proceding night had been drinking; in the morning he tried to fasten a quarrel on Staines, who endeavored to avoid trouble. Staines went about his duties and soon was told that Freeham was in the back yard, kicking a calf that was there. Staines went out and requested the man to desist, but was answered by vile, abusive language, and Freeham advanced to attack him. Staines warned him to keep away, but the later still advanced, and Staines picked up a club and effectually defended himself, the third blow breaking the arm of Freeham who is now at the hospital.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER.

COMPARATIVE WORTH OF BAKING POWDERS.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It it a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure."
"H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE.—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A one pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

LEAP YEAR VERSE.

A Love Tale.

FRANK.

Come Dolly, dear, its getting late, and mother's wide awake.
She knows you're here and therefore your departure you must take;
I've got to lock the door and then put out the parlor light;
Please go, dear Dol, and you can come again some other night.

DOLLY.

Oh, pshaw, dear Frank, it's early yet, I'm sure I needn't hurry;
It's scarcely half past ten o'clock; your mother needn't worry.
But if you want to go to bed, then I'll no longer stay.
So, love give me another kiss and then I'll go away.

FRANK.

Oh, Dol, please don't! well, take it, there, now go; oh, please make haste;
If mamma should come down and see, your arm around my waist
I think I'd faint; come dearest; don't delay a moment more.
Put on your hat and shawl and I'll see you to the door.

DOLLY.

I think its just too bad that I've got to go so soon;
Well, never mind; I'll see you, dear, to-morrow afternoon;
I'll—hush. I hear your mother coming down with footsteps light;
I'm off—just one; oh, my; how sweet! Well Frankie, dear, good night.

INSOLVENT NOTICE.

In the Superior Court, County of Inyo, State of California.

IN THE MATTER OF JOHN SCHOBER, AN INSOLVENT DEBTOR.

JOHN SCHOBER HAVING FILED IN THIS Court his petition schedule, and inventory in insolvency, by which it appears that he is an Insolvent debtor, the said John Schober is hereby declared to be insolvent. The sheriff of the County of Inyo is hereby directed to take possession of all the estate, real and personal, of the said John Schober, debtor, except such as may be by law exempt from execution, and of all his deeds, vouchers, books of account and papers, and to keep the same safely until the appointment of an assignee of his estate. All persons are forbidden to pay any debts to the said Insolvent, or to deliver any property belonging to him, or to any person, firm or corporation or association for his use. The said debtor is hereby forbidden to transfer or deliver any property, until the further order of this Court except as herein ordered. It is further ordered that all creditors of said debtor be and appear before the Hon. John A. Hannah, Judge of the Superior Court, of the county of Inyo, in open Court, at the Court-room of said Court, in the County of Inyo, on the eleventh day of October, 1884, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, to prove their debts and choose one or more assigners of the estate of said debtor.

It is further ordered, that the order be published in the INYO INDEPENDENT, a newspaper of general circulation, published in the County of Inyo, as often as the said paper is published before the said day set for the meeting of Creditors.

And it is further ordered, that, in the mean time, all proceedings against said insolvent be stayed.

THE FIRST PSALM.

ROBERT BURNS.

The man in life, wherever placed,
Hath happiness in store,
Who walks not in the wicked's way,
Nor learns their guilty lore.

Nor from the seat of scornful pride,
Casts forth his eyes abroad,
But with humility and awe
Still walks before his God.

That man shall flourish like the trees
Which by the streamlets grow;
The fruitful top is spread on high,
And firm the roots below.

But he whose blossom buds in guilt,
Shall to the ground be cut,
And, like the rootless stubble, tost
Before the sweeping blast.

For why?—That God the good adore,
Hath given them peace and rest,
But hath decreed that wicked men,
Shall ne'er be truly blest.

A Cheap Burglar Alarm.

If the red-handed outlaw who suggested in print that 'a tin pan hung carelessly to a bedroom door makes an excellent burglar alarm,' will call at the residence of Mr. Lucullus Banford he may hear of something to his disadvantage.

And probably get the top of his head shot off

'Another daring burglary!' read Mrs. Banford, as she picked up the morning paper. 'Lucullus,' she said, turning to her husband, 'this is the fourth outrage of the kind in this town within a week, and if you don't procure a burglar alarm, or adopt some other means of security, I shall not remain in this house another night. Some morning we'll get up and find ourselves murdered and the house robbed, if we have to depend on the police for protection.'

Banford assured his wife that he would have the matter attended to at once. Then he left the house and didn't return until evening. When Mrs. B., with a touch of sarcasm, asked him if he had given a second thought to the subject which she had broached in the morning, he drew a newspaper from his pocket, and said:

'See here, Mirandy! There's no use o' foolin' away money on one o' them new-fangled burglar alarms. Economy is wealth. Here's a capital idea suggested in this paper —cheap, simple and effective.'

And then he read the fiend's suggestion about hanging a tin pan on the chamber door.

'I tell you, Mirandy! the man who conceived that brilliant notion is a heaven-born genius—a boon of mankind; and his name should go ringing down the corridors of time with those of such brilliant intellect as Watts, Morse, Edison and other successful scientific investigators. You see, the least jar of the door will dislodge the pan, and the noise occasioned thereby will not only awaken the occupants of the house, but will also scare the burglar half to death, and perhaps the pan will strike him on the head and fracture his skull. It is a glorious scheme, and the fact that it was not utilized years ago is the most remarkable thing about it.'

'Well,' assented Mrs. B., in less sanguine tones, 'it may be better than nothing, and it won't cost anything, and as Susan has gone out to spend the night with her sick sister, and we'll be all alone, I'll hunt up the pans now.'

Accordingly, each inside door was crowned with a tin pan and left slightly ajar. Banford also thoughtfully placed a six-shooter under his pillow, and stood a base-ball bat within reach.

'Now, Mirandy,' he courageously observed, as they were preparing to retire, 'if you are awakened by a noise during the night, don't scream like a Comanche Indian and jump out of bed and act like a she-lunatic with straws in her hair. Just lie still, or some of the bullets I fire at the burglar may go through you and kill you deader than a kit o' salt mackerel. Let me wrestle with the intruder, and I'll soon make him regret that he had not postponed being born for a few centuries!'

Then they turned down the gas, crawled into bed with a feeling of increased security, and were soon asleep. About half-past midnight they were awakened by a loud noise that sounded like a clap of thunder, followed by a wail that almost chilled the marrow in their bones.

'Good heavens!' screamed Mrs. B., in a voice swollen with terror, as she dived under the bedclothes, 'we'll be murdered in a minute. Shoot him, Lucullus! Quick—shoot him!'

Banford, after considerable nervous fumbling under the pillow, grasped his revolver with an unsteady hand and discharged its six barrels in rapid succession, but not with gratifying results. One bullet shattered the mirror in the bureau; another plowed a furrow along the ceiling; another splintered the bed-post; a fourth perforated a portrait of his wife's mother; and the other two left their imprint on the walls.

'D-d-don't be f-f-fuf-frightened, M-mi-randy,' said Banford, encouragingly, his articulation sounding as if it had 'collided' with an Arctic wave, 'I g-g-guess I've k-k-killed him. He'll not c-c-come here—'

At this juncture there was a noise in an adjoining room, as if a two-ton meteorite had crushed through a boiler foundry, and Mrs. B. uttered a series of ear-piercing shrieks that would have scared the life out of a burglar who had not become insensible to fear by living thirty years with a strong-minded wife.

'M-m-mirandy,' stammered the frightened and demoralized Banford, grasping the base-ball bat and swinging it around with such reckless promiscuousness that he struck his terror-stricken wife on the head, producing a lump as large as a walnut. 'Mum-m-mirandy, the house is fu-full of midnight mamarauders, and we'll be b-b-b-butchered in cold b-bub-blood! Save yourself and don't m-mind about me!' And leaping out of bed, he sprang through a window onto the roof of a back building, and accidentally rolled on to the yard, fifteen feet below, just as another burglar alarm went off with a clamor almost as deafening and harrowing as an amateur orchestra. Mrs. B., thinking she had been hit by the burglar, emitted a fresh outburst of shrieks, while her husband lay groaning in the back yard, with a sprained ankle and a frightful gash in his head.

A policeman had now been awakened by the uproar, and boldly mounting the front stoop, he pulled the doorbell out by the roots without evoking a response. Then he hesitated.

'If a foul murder has been committed,' he mused, 'the assassin has already made good his escape.'

This thought gave him courage, and he forced an entrance. In the entry he collided with a hat rack, which he mistook for the outlaw, and almost demolished it with several whacks of his club. Then he made a careful reconnoissance, and dislodged one of the burglar-alarms.

'Spare my life,' he yelled to his imaginary assailant, 'and I will let you escape!'

He thought he had been stabbed with a frying-pan. He rushed out of the house and secured the assistance of four of his fellow officers, and a search of the building was resumed. Mrs. Banford was found in bed unconscious. Her husband was found in the yard in nearly a similar condition, and the burglar was found under the sofa, shivering with fear, and with his tail clasped tightly between his legs.

The cause of the panic was soon explained. Mrs. Banford had overlooked the presence of her pet dog in the house, and this innocent animal in running from one room to another, had dislodged the "cheap and effective" burglar-alarms.

Mr. Banford is slowly recovering from his injuries. He has also reloaded his six shooter, and wants to interview the 'brilliant genius' who promulgated the tin-pan scheme. —[Puck's Annual.

A VISITING STATESMAN.

She was the personification of the good-natured, old fashioned, kind hearted and motherly landlady. She was fat and forty, and as she sat down to tell the Superintendent of Police her story she smoothed down her check apron and sort o' tucked up her sleeves as if getting ready to lay the foundation for a pot-pie.

'Two weeks ago,' she began, 'a very distinguished looking man about fifty years old called at my house to secure board.'

'Yes'm.'

'He represented himself as a visiting statesman, and I gave him the best room and the head of the table.'

'What's a visiting statesman?'

'Well, that's one thing I want to ask you about. I allus s'posed a visiting statesman, was a member of Congress, or had something of some sort or other to do at Washington. I kinder made up my mind he was visiting the hole they dug for the new post-office, or wanted to see something about the new Custom Mouse, or was Government agent for the cholera.'

'Um. Well?'

'Well, when Saturday came he said his credentials hadn't arrived, and instead of paying his board he borrowed five dollars of me.'

'What credentials?'

'I dunno. I never saw anything of the sort, dont know what they are made of or how they look. I did not want to give my ignorance away to a visiting statesman, and so I didn't ask any questions.'

'Well?'

'Well, the next Saturday afternoon he came in rather hurriedly and said his credentials had arrived and he wanted ten dollars to get them certified.'

'How certified?'

'I dunno. I s'posed it had something to do with swearing on a bible, and it struck me that ten dollars a swear was awful dear. However, I let him have the money.'

'And you have not seen him since?'

'No, sir; do you think he could possibly have fallen into the river?'

'He was a fraud, madam. He has played you for two week's board and fifteen dollars in cash.'

'La! But you don't say so!'

'That's the case.'

'Great stars! but he was a visiting statesman! If our statesmen descend to such tricks what will this couutry come to?'

'He lied to you. The fellow probably never saw Washington.'

'My sakes! but did you ever! and them credentials?'

'All bosh, madam.'

'Great cats! but it makes me shiver all over! And so I am beat?'

'Yes.'

'Well, well! did I ever! And when he gets them credentials certified to he won't come back?'

'Never—never more.'

'Dear me! but I must hurry home and tell my daughter Ann. He kinder made love to her, and she kinder reciprocated, and in case they made a match I was to keep house for them in Washington, and they were to take dinner with the President every day. Did I ever, ever! What statesmen! What Credentials! What wickedness!'

Love's Labor Lost.

'Madam, may I kiss these beautiful children?' inquired Uncle Dick Oglesby, as he leaned over the front gate.

'Certainly, sir; there is no possible objection.'

'They are lovely darlings,' said Uncle Dick, after he had finished the eleventh. 'I have seldom seen more beautiful babes. Are they all yours, marm?'

The lady blushed deeply.

'Of course they are, the sweet little treasures! From whom else, marm, could they have inherited these limpid eyes, these rosy cheeks and profuse curls, these comely fig- and these musical voices!'

The lady continued blushing.

'By the way, marm,' said Uncle Dick; 'may I bother you to tell your estimable husband that Richard J. Oglesby, candidate for Governor, called upon him this evening?'

'Alas; good sir,' quoth the lady, 'I have no husband!'

'But these children, madam—you surely are not a widow!'

'I feared you were mistaken, sir, when you first came up. These are not my children. This is an orphan asylum.'

Wanted to be Safe.

An old German down in Ohio, who runs a cooper shop, was elected overseer of highways for his township last spring. After waiting for a month or two for something to turn up he called on the Board of Supervisors and said:

'I vhas come to see aboudt a bond.'

'Bond? What bond?'

'Vhell, I like to gif a bond for one tousand dollar dot I doan't run off mit some money from de township.'

'Oh, as to that, you won't have any public moneys in your hands.'

'Vhell, den I like to gif a bond dot I doan't shteal somepody's cow vhile I vhas in office. I vhas elected only six weeks in office, but I begin to feel like I wanted to shteal a whole drove of cattle.'

He was allowed to give a bond and went home satisfied.

Working Around A Point.

About the first of July a Chicago fruit buyer went over to St. Joseph, on the Michigan shore, to view the peach crop prospects, and he found one fruit crop owner who was feeling so very blue that he said to him.

'Now then, I'll give you a thousand dollars for your fruit as it now stands.'

'No, I couldn't do it,' said the grower, after some hesitation. 'It would seem to be like doubting the Lord.'

Two weeks after, when the prospects were still poorer, he appeared in Chicago and said he guessed he'd take the thousand dollars.

'But it would be doubting the Lord,' observed the buyer.

'Yes, it probably will, but I've concluded to doubt Him on peaches and make up for it by hanging on to 'taters and cabbage.

Is the Aristocracy Educated?

I asked a professor of Oxford if the English aristocracy were really educated and refined.

'They are refined,' he replied, 'but not educated. A titled student seldom studies in college. The Prince of Wales, when he was in Christ college, never studied. He had private tutors to cram him. It is not good policy to let a duke or lord fail in his examination. They wouldn't come here if we made them study too hard. So the aristocracy come here, go through the forms of study, spend a great deal of money, and are finally allowed to graduate.'

My guide at Oxford tells me that the titled sons of the aristocracy at Oxford are the most dissolute young men at college. 'They have drunken revelries in their rooms, which the professors wink at; they gamble Sundays and run off to London to meet variety actresses. Finally, they go through the form of graduating and go home as ignorant as they came.'

Mexico's Brigands.

A letter from Mexico says the brigands are waking up to the fact their occupation is gone. Rapid travel brings them more surely into the clutches of the law. A gang of wreckers was pursued and shot less than a week ago in the State of Durango. The leader of the band was well known to the Mexican public by sight and through a record of daring deeds and bloody crimes. Young and boyish in appearance, handsome, dashing, and so brave and beloved by the entire clan of eighteen brigands that the identy of the chief was never betrayed or suspected. The other day the rurales tracked them down, sent eight bullets through the captain's heart, and destroyed the whole band, not leaving one to tell the story. They then learned that the handsome bandit boy was only a bit of successful masquerading, for when the riddled sombrero was removed and the bullet-burnt blanket thrown aside, a shapely form was revealed, and the astonished soldiers discovered that the leader of their foes had been a woman.

—Frogs sell for fifty cents a dozen and in Eastern restaurants three of them fricassed in cream bring forty cents. The demand enables sportsmen armed with shot-guns to make a good days wages shooting them. From the tributaries of the Chesapeake Bay alone the frog market yields $100,000.

—The worry of every day is like a grain of sand in the eye.

Good Advice.

Be regular in all your habits, especially that of drawing your salary.

Don't gather your neighbor's watermelons in the full of the moon.

Don't go to an editor seeking an apology for a fancied wrong; send your hired man.

Keep your mouth shut when you are traveling; and if you are a married man don't open it too often when you are at home.

Don t lie on the damp ground; and to avoid lying on the damp ground unexpectedly, keep a civil tongue in your head at all times.

Don't lift anything heavy before breakfast. You will not be harmed however, by carrying in the fifty-pound chunk that the iceman leaves at yonr door.

If a large, able-bodied man with a hard fist and a bad eye smites you on one cheek, tell him you will bring the other cheek around the day after to-morrow.

Look not on the premature peach when it is red on the top side, for in the middle it stingeth like a baldheaded hornet, and kicketh like a double-barreled earthquake.

Don't sit on a barbed wire fence to commune with Nature or think of the sweet by-and-by. The barbed wire fence as a frequent resting place is apt to produce nervousness.

FLOUR is sold at the low figure of four dollars a barrel in San Francisco.

THE Republicans of Mono have nominated R. J. Van Voorhees to the Assembly.

IT is reported by the Homer Index that the May Lundy mine has been sold, and that all the indebtedness, amounting to $85,000, will be paid at once.

A FAMILY by the name of Hayes, from Colorado, bound for Shasta county, passed through Reno a few days ago in old emigrant style, having been four months on the road.

AT Fresno, last Sunday, William Myers, about 18 years of age, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart. Unrequited love is supposed to have been the cause.

A PARTY of highwaymen stopped the Bodie stage one day last week for the purpose of robbing a Chinawoman who was supposed to have $400. The money had been sent on ahead by express and the robbers were foiled.

TRENMORE COFFIN, a prominent lawyer in Carson, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Helen L. Coffin. O. P. Kepes, a well known gambler, was a party in the case. This man and the woman are said to be living together in New York.

LAST Tuesday there were two mining accidents at Virginia City singularly alike. Felix Cornyn had his skull broken at the Hail & Norcross, and almost at the same moment William Pierce had his skull broken at the Combination shaft.

THE trouble at the May Lundy mine was not settled at last reports. The miners had been offered seventy cents on each dollar due them and the remainder in stock in the mine. This was refused, the men insisting on full cash pay which it was thought they would get.

THE Democratic Convention of Mono county made the following nominations:

D. L. Deal ..... Assemblyman
O. F. Hakes ..... Superior Judge
C. A. Schuman ..... District Attorney
C. F. McKinney ..... Sheriff
Ben H. Miller ..... County Clerk
Barney Peeler ..... Tax Collector
Z. B. Tinkum ..... County Treasurer
Joe Stowe ..... County Recorder
John M. Massy ..... Auditor.

HENRY VROOMAN and Benjamin Shurtleff, Presidential electors, have withdrawn from the Republican ticket least any objection should be raised because each holds a State office. Mr. Shurtleff has charge of the Asylum at Napa and Mr. Vrooman is State Senator. Their successors will be appointed by the State Central Committe.

A CHINAMAN recently made complaint that his ten-year-old girl was refused admission to the public school in San Francisco. Mr. Welcker, State Superintendent, was appealed to. He shows by the language of the State constitution that public education is intended only for those who can or are to become citizens; that the laws are against the Chinese in this and other respects, and that it is apparent their intent is to discourage Chinese immigration instead of encouraging it.

POLITICS are at white heat in Los Angeles. Last Saturday evening Democrats and Republicans had torchlight processions, long stump speeches, and all the usual hurrah of such occasions. The Express contains columns of descriptions of both meetings, and also a report of the proceedings at the Police Court on Monday morning. This report gives a long list of names of persons arrested for being drunk and fighting on Saturday night. They had got full of the political enthusiasm that is most powerful with procession politicians.

THE county should own and have at the county seat a collection of all the ores and minerals found in the county. There should also be samples of grain of each year, properly classified and labeled, and of all such vegetable productions as can be saved, such as straw of the various grains, and corn stalks. Such a collection once started would become of more interest and value every year. In addition to this, every farmer could deposit a record of the annual growth and productiveness of the various kinds of trees, fruit or timber. In this way a vast amount of very useful information would be accumulated, that would at all times be accessible to people from all parts of the county who have business at the county seat. The vast area of the county and its variety of soil would make such a collection very valuable.

NOW PLEASE DO IT.—The Secretary of the "Immigration Association" writes as follows: "You will oblige us extremely if you can induce some farmers in your vicinity to send us a box of samples immediately. We will pay freight charges." Mr. Street is doing much to direct attention to Inyo county, his request ought to be granted promptly. The address of the Association is No. 10 California street, San Francisco.

THE Homer Index reports that on Tuesday morning some person piled twigs against the west side of the Fraser House, under the stairway, saturated the pile and side of the building with coal oil and set fire to it. Almost instantly the blaze shot up to the roof, but fortunately it was discovered and extinguished before any serious damage was inflicted. The house was unfurnished and unoccupied save by four or five men who had been permitted to spread their blankets in the rooms of the second story. These would doubtless have been burned alive or seriously injured by jumping from the second story windows had the fire got under good headway, as it was set under the only stairway. But probably murder in another direction was doubtless contemplated by the incendiary and his accomplices, for clearly the fire was started for the purpose of robbing Wells, Fargo & Co's express office of a large amount of gold bullion during the confusion. The incendiary was seen but not fully recognized while he was in the act of placing faggots against the building. As this was the second effort in the same line within three weeks, property owners are considerably exasperated, although quiet, but a third attempt of the kind will be apt to cause an uprising that will bode evil to suspicious characters.

Bishop Creek Prohibitionists.

BISHOP CREEK, Sept. 18, '84.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:—As an item worth mentioning, I drop you a line to give a short account of a Prohibition meeting held in our village last night by the Prohibitionists. It is but just to say that it far surpassed both in numbers and enthusiasm any gathering ever brought together in this section, strictly political. Bonfires were lighted, the hall beautifully decorated, the ladies (God bless them) turned out in force—I had almost said en masse—to honor and countenance the demonstration. The I. O. G. T.'s had the matter in charge, and after organizing by electing W. P. George Chairman, and John Bourland Secretary, the meeting was called to order by the Chairman, and the objects and aims of the Prohibitionists briefly explained. Rev. C. A. Bateman, who is a Grand Lecturer of the State of California on behalf of the order, was then introduced to the vast audience of listening and eager spectators. For one and one-half hours the eloquent speaker enchained his hearers in breathless silence, save ever and anon when the tide of eloquence and argument was broken in upon by loud and rapturous applause; and it was refreshing to the sterner sex to witness the all but uncontrollable manifestations of approbation exhibited on the part of the ladies. From the opening to the close of the address the audience listened in rapt attention to every word that fell from the rostrum; and when finished the people broke forth into one universal round of cheers, and voted the speaker their unanimous thanks for the rich entertainment with which he had delighted them.

It is true our meeting is, and was, but a straw, but straws indicate from whence the wind bloweth; and if other sections of the land are moved upon as is our small community the Prohibitionists will be more than felt in the near future—they will be feared. So mote it be; and may God defend the right.

Annual Labor Not Directly on the Lode.

The question, "What work not on the lode itself will answer for annual labor?" is more easily asked than answered, as what under one chain of circumstances connected with a mine might apply to annual labor would, under a different order of things be inapplicable or insufficient. This much may be safely concluded from the tendency of recent judicial decisions, that all work in the line of legitimate mining and all improvements, which work and improvements are expressly designed for the development of a mine and paid for by the owner of the mine, will be applied to the required annual labor on that mine, even though the labor and improvements be not on the claim itself. Thus, a tunnel and a road run toward a mine or a group of mines for development of the property, and at the owner's expense, are recognized as complying with the statutory requirement of labor, and if of sufficient cost to fairly cover the $100 on the mine are all that is needed.

So, too, it has been decided by the highest authority, that where several mines or mining claims adjoin or are near each other, belonging to the same owner, he is not required to work or make improvements on each of the lodes, but may expend the whole sum required for all the lodes upon one of them, or even outside of all of them, if the work or improvements be expressly intended and calculated to develop the property as a whole. It is not the policy of the law to restrict a miner in the character and locality of the labor, so as to force him to scatter his money and efforts on the lodes separately, when the aggregate amount, in his judgment, can be more profitably expended in road-making, tunnelling, deep shaft sinking, or other improvements for the development of the group.

The cost of machinery purchased for mines, and even the transportation or freight charges, have been allowed, and before the machinery is in place the payment of such expenses will apply. Whatever, therefore, is thus fairly expended by the owner in the ordinary and legitimate improvement and development of mines, may be safely included in his compliance with the law.—Mining Review.

Another Big Mining Suit.

On the 22d of January, 1884, suit was commenced in the District Court by James Carrigan and Morris Conners against the Columbus Consolidated Mining Company to recover possession of the Company's mine at Candelaria, together with $50,000 damages and $50,000 rents and profits that have come into the hands of the defendant during its possession of the property. Last Thursday, upon petition of defendant and filing of the necessary bonds, the suit was transferred to the United States District Court, at Carson. Hon. P. Reddy is attorney for plaintiffs, and Messrs. Estee & Wilson and John H. Boalt represent the defendants.—Walker Lake Bulletin.

FELIX CORNYN and William Pierce, the men who had their skulls so badly fractured day before yesterday in the Hale and Norcross mine and Combination shaft, were getting along bravely yesterday. The physicians are now confident that both men will recover. It now appears that Mr. Pierce was the worst hurt of the two. The section of the broken skull removed from Cornyn's head was much smaller than that taken from the head of Mr. Pierce. Both men converse rationally and have recovered from the bad symptoms that at first appeared. That the two men should have been hurt in the same way and at the same time, though more than half a mile apart, was a curious coincidence, and the miners have not yet ceased remarking upon it.—Enterprise.

INYO INDEPENDENT.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 20,.....1884.

DENTISTRY.—M. W. Parsons, dentist, will be in Owen's Valley soon. Orders left at any postoffice will be attended to.

SCHOOL.—The school term at Independence will begin on Monday next. Miss Northrup will have charge of the school.

NEW DISTRICT.—A new school district has been established at Bishop Station. The trustees are Henry Man, Hart, McGee, and Gus. Thede.

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS.—See notice of speeches by J. B. Reddick at Bishop Creek and Independence. Mr. Reddick is a candidate for Presidential Elector.

REDUCED FARE.—On the arrival of all trains at Independence station, comfortable conveyance and good horses are in attendance to carry passengers to any part of town for fifty cents each.

H. LEVY, Stage Proprietor.

CONCERT.—Professor Wood will give a concert at the Blaney House this evening. He will be assisted by Miss Rose Tynan and others. The concerts given by Mr. Woods are always successful.

CAT FISH.—Some days ago Charley Begole and two friends caught a lot of catfish in Owens River below the big bridge near the lake. Nine of the fish weighed ten pounds. This settles the question about the river being fully stocked.

FINE CABINET.—The finest cabinet of minerals in the county, where the best representative collection of the various mineral productions of the county may be seen is owned by Mr. W. L. Hunter, of Lone Pine. The cabinet also contains many curious articles from distant lands.

TEMPERANCE LECTURES—The lectures given by Mr. Bateman at the beginning of the week were well attended and gave great satisfaction. Mr. Bateman, unlike the ordinary temperance lecturer is not "an awful example." He has always been a sober man.

UNDECIDED.—A leading attorney, at the session of the Superior Court on Monday, upon the suggestion of the Court that smoking in court was against the rule, facetiously remarked: "Which is the worst, your Honor, to sit in the Court-house and smoke, or sit in the smoke-house and court?" —and they smiled.

GRAPES.—Some samples of grapes were left at the printing office a few days ago by John Kispert, of George's Creek. Having seen the display made last year in Dashaway Hall, San Francisco, by the Viticultural Association, we feel safe in saying that these were as fine-looking as any of the same varieties shown on that occasion.

EAST LYNNE.—This celebrated drama is to be represented at the Edwards street theatre, Independence, by the I. A. D. A. on Monday evening. The play has been in preparation for some time and the successful rendition of it is beyond a doubt. We understand that the services of the noted violinist, Professor Woods, have been secured for the evening. The proceeds of the entertainment is to start a fund for building a school house and hall.

A BOON TO PROSPECTORS. — Every prospector should have a copy of Copp's "Manual for the Use of Prospectors on the Mineral Lands of the United States." This book contains all the information that a prospector needs, on the laws of location, forms of notices, mineral formations, character and characteristics of minerals, ores, lodes, and in a word everything of importance in connection with mineral prospecting. The work costs but fifty cents; address, Henry N. Copp, Washidgton, D. C.

NEW PATTERN OF BOXES NEEDED.—The standard size of boxes in which peaches are shipped is 20x12x6 inches, and in these the peaches are packed three layers deep. Mr. A. C. Harvey of Lone Pine, finds difficulty in using this pattern of box; his peaches are so large that he has to select the smaller ones to get three layers in a box. To get three layers of his best, or at least largest peaches, in a box he has to add three inches to the depth of boxes of the standard size. Mr. Harvey has a large crop and will fill all orders promptly.

ASSEMBLYMAN.—In the Republican Convention last Saturday, some discussion was had over the nomination of a candidate. It was argued that, following the custom hitherto observed, the nomination belonged to Mono. The new arrangement of districts was held, on the other hand, to supersede all former arrangements, and that Inyo had now an equal right with Alpine and Mono, and that for Inyo to concede the right to nominate to Mono, would be unjust to Alpine. This reasoning prevailed, and Mr. Stoutenborough was nominated, as stated in the report of the proceedings of the Convention.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.—The Board of Education met last Thursday morning. All the members were present. There were the following applicants for certificates: R. S. Peeler, of Bishop Creek, and Ed. J. Reynolds, of Lone Pine. For Diplomas of Graduation, Bennie E. Lasky and Max M. Skinner, of Lone Pine. Persons desiring certificates to be granted upon credentials now in their possession are Miss Elma K. Yaney, Messrs. J. H. Shannon and H. H. Howell, Mrs. A. N. Clark and Mrs. M. E. Stevens, all of Bishop Creek, and Messrs. George H. Hardy and Daniel Crough, of Independence.

OVERWORKED HORSES.—Last Thursday a team of horses came into town from Lone Pine; they were evidently pulling a heavy load and looked quite tired. In fact, the horses were over laden; Mr. A. C. Harvey had shipped a head of cabbage as a sample of what he can produce, and it was a little too much for the poor animals to take at one load.

BODY FOUND.—Who knows of a missing man from the Keynot mine? The Los Angeles Express says: "The dead body of a miner formerly employed in the Keynot mine, Inyo County, was found on the 3d of this month near Coyote Holes, between Mojave and Independence. When discovered the remains were much decayed. They were buried at the request of the Coroner.

FINE BUSINESS OPENING.—There is now a fine opening for any one who wants to go into the hotel business. A house well furnished and provided with every convenience; plenty of excellent fruit grown on the property; the location pleasant healthy and central. The hotel in question is about the longest established in the county, has a reputation that any hotel keeper may be proud of, and has always paid good profit. The only reason for proposing to sell is that the present proprietor is getting too aged to attend to the business. Information will be given by communicating with the editor of this paper, or with Mrs. Stewart, Lone Pine, Inyo county, Cal. See advertisement in another column.

ORCHARD GROWTH.— The following note gives some facts that fairly illustrates the experience had around Bishop Creek in the productions referred to. It will be seen that the figures do not represent any extraordinary results, nor was this expected. What is intended is to give reliable information on what the country produces.

BISHOP CREEK,
September 16, 1884.

Mr. Editor:—According to promise I send you samples of fruit from my orchard. The trees were set out seven years ago. The apple trees now average 26 inches in circumference; peach trees, 31 inches; cherry trees 27 inches; plum trees 22 inches. To-day I gathered 327 pounds of plums from one tree. This is no more than an average of what my trees will produce this season. These plums are worth six cents per pound, $19.62 for the crop of each tree. This I consider quite satisfactory. My hay crop this season is not up to an avarage of this vicinity; the land cut over will yield about four tons per acre. My grain crop, like all around here, is very good. Yours &c.,

JAMES B. CHAMBERLAIN.

Bishop Creek is not a fruit growing part of the valley. Grain, hay and vegetables are the principal productions and with all the farmers there fruits are but of minor importance. The sample of fruits alluded to by Mr. Chamberlain includes three varieties of plums, two of peaches and two of apples. All of these are in perfect form, of good size and excellent flavor. From the figures given in the note it is plain that fruit raising may be made of very great importance around Bishop Creek, but the fertility of the soil and its suitability to grain and hay, and the ready access to market of these productions, have caused farmers to neglect fruit raising for them.

THE RESULT AFTER FOUR YEARS.—Four years ago Mr. Diaz planted out about sixteen acres of ground in orchard and vineyard two and a half miles below Lone Pine. The trees planted include apricots, peaches, plums, nectarines and a few figs. The peach trees this season are very heavily laden with fruit more uniform in size than any we have yet seen. Experiments in weighing and measuring resulted in finding a large proportion of the peaches to measure twelve inches and over in circumference, and to weigh from twelve to fourteen ounces each. One or two of the fig trees have a heavy crop of black figs, equal to any grown around Oroville or on General Bidwell's ranch at Chico. These grape vines have a very heavey crop of grapes; the bunches are of great size and beauty. The "Flaming Tokay" grapes, grown on vines planted two years ago, are certainly remarkable. The beautiful grapes have a brilliant color, each grape is about the size of an average green gage plum, and the bunches far exceed in bulk anything we have ever seen. Musk melons were found to measure over thirty-three inches in circumference. Peppers, including the white, red and black Chillis, were growing on the same grounds in rank luxuriance, as easily raised here as beans elsewhere. Mr. Diaz is drying much of his peach crop and that already prepared for market looks to be a first-class article. New vines and fruit trees are planted as fast as the ground can be prepared. There is hardly a limit to the amount of fruit that might be raised in this locality. There is plenty of land available. Mr. Van Dyke, a near neighbor to Mr. Diaz, has vines that were planted fourteen years ago and these, with peaches, apricots and nectarines, never missed a crop in all that time.

MINING ITEMS.

POLITA MINE.

At the Polita mine five men are now at work prospecting. Of late the indications are very favorable.

CASEY MINE.

This mine is in the same locality with the Polita. Nine men are at work prospecting, and results of late have been so satisfactory that it is expected a mill will be built before long.

GOLDEN REEF.

During the past week Mr. Nixon has made valuable developments in Freeborn canyon. In two tunnels at different elevations a rich vein of ore was struck, the lower tunnel at a depth of 160 feet. The vein is wider in the lower tunnel than in the upper and the ore is high grade in both.

LONE PINE.

Lone Pine is well provided with facilities for entertaining strangers and for supplying the wants of permanent residents. Order being heavens first law, and of first importance to all who expect to get there, Fred Burkhardt attends to the movements of the great lights that rule the day and night, and sees that they appear and disappear at the times set for such movements by his clocks and watches. Having such infallible guidance the good, kind landlady of the Whitney House and the jolly landlord of the Lone Pine Hotel, never fail at the proper time to have tables loaded with an abundance of well prepared food. Should the visitor want to enjoy the soothing influence of a cigar, or later in the day an evening chat, or should he be curious to hear stories of adventure in the early times of the settlement of Owen's Valley, or of toils and dangers in the explorations of the mountains, or should he be curious to hear the authentic narrative of the first ascent of Mount Whitney, told by those who made the ascent, then he will be sure of full gratification by stepping in and taking a seat with Charley Levy or with Richards & Castro. Or if tains of the "Fatherland," reminiscences of the Rhine, legends of the Schwartzwald, the Hartz and the Broken are more to his liking, then he can walk into a grotto as cool as any in those old regions and John Lubkin will gratify him, and at the same time treat him to a glass of beer that would make even a Bavarian brewer turn green with envy. Several merchantile houses supply all the wants of the town and a wide region beyond; these handle a great amount of goods, but at the same time it must be confessed there is not much vim or energy in their way of doing business. The merchants appear to take life easy and to be satisfied with things as they are. The Sierras in front of Lone Pine attain their greatest elevation. Whitney, the highest point of land in the United States, almost overshadows the town. Fruits of nearly all kinds abound in and around town; the soil is very fertile and there are thousands of acres of open land near by, at this hour covered in gay profusion with myriads of wild flowers. Very rich ores are found in the mountains on the opposite side of the valley and ten to twelves miles distant. It is so easy to make a living, the climate is so pleasant, there are so many inducements to take things easy, to hunt, fish, visit, ramble off into the mountains, have a good time generally; the people have been so much isolated from the keen rivalry and competition that impels to ceaseless activity elsewhere, that improvements have not been made to that extent as where different conditions prevail. But that a new vigor, a more active state of affairs will before long stir up the people in and around Lone Pine is certain. That changed condition will bring with it a rapid increase in the productions and values of the country; but whether it will add anything to individual happiness may well be doubted, for certainly it would be far to seek and hard to find a more hospitable or happy people than those of Lone Pine.

Personal Mention.

J. W. Murphy, delegate from Darwin, arrived yesterday.

Mr. Rhine arrived here this morning from San Francisco.

Thomas McDonough, a delegate from Beveridge, arrived yesterday.

Sheriff Gregg has been gone on a trip to Panamint most of the week.

Dr. H. H. Howell arrived from Bishop Creek last Thursday evening.

Mrs. W. L. Hunter, of Lone Pine, is recovering her sight. Her eyes of late have improved a good deal.

B. L. Rowe has so far recovered from his injuries as to be able to walk around. He is still at Bishop Creek.

H. M. Yerington, D. A. Bender and Judge Leonard, of the Supreme Court of Nevada, came down this morning on a tour of inspection over the C. & C. road.

Miss Elma Yaney came from Bishop Creek on Thursday last to take charge of the school at Fort Independence. The school will open on next Monday morning.

Mr. L. Wood arrived at home from San Francisco yesterday morning. During his visit to the city Mr. Wood purchased a new stock of goods that will begin to arrive soon.

Mrs. Mairs still continues in very poor health. She was thought to be improving up to the middle of this week when a relapse set in from which she has not yet fully recovered.

Judge A. R. Conklin has been invited by the Republican State Central Committee to make a canvas of the counties in the Sacramento Valley and will leave this evening for that purpose. Mr. Conklin does not expect to return before November.

Here and There.

Mrs. A. C. Harvey, of Lone Pine, had sixty-three varieties of roses in bloom this season.

Every train that goes north now takes fruit along, chiefly plums and peaches. Yesterday John Baxter took a ton from his orchard to the depot.

It is reported that the Republicans of the northern part of the county are satisfied that they were not ignored in the Convention last Saturday; and yet they did not get all the nominations.

Don't forget that after the performance Monday night the floor will be cleared for dancing. The best of music has been secured; and Professors Woods and Celaya will probably participate.

REPUBLICAN COUNTY CONVENTION.

The delegates to the Republican County Convention met at the Court House in Independence last Saturday morning. The Convention was called to order by A. R. Conklin, Esq., at 10 A. M. Mr. S. G. Sneden was elected temporary Chairman, and Geo. M. Gill temporary Secretary. The usual committees were appointed, and an adjournment was ordered till 1 o'clock, P. M. When the Convention reassembled, A. R. Conklin, Esq., was elected permanent Chairman, and J. H. Morrison permanent Secretary. On taking the Chair Mr. Conklin addressed the Convention at some length, claiming that the auspices for the success of the whole ticket — county, district, State and National—was now exceedingly favorable. He dwelt upon the past ill success of the party in the county, which, though having a good majority of the voters, yet failed to elect Republican officers, and said that this was in great part due to the act of Republicans when in office appointing Democrats as their deputies, and ignoring the merits and claims of members of their own party. The speaker urged the necessity of party fealty, warned the convention of the ill effects of divided counsels, and of the selfish pursuit of personal aims, and assured his audience that by making good nominations, and every Republican remaining loyal to his party, the whole ticket was certain to be elected.

The Committee on Credentials reported favorably on all credentials submitted to them, and the report was was accepted. The attendance of delegates was very full, but few proxies being offered.
